BOOKS AND PAPERS IN PHAGAN CASE IN GRAND JURY'S HANDS

FELDER RAISING FUND TO PAY W. J. BURNS

The Journal Subscribes $100. Mr. Felder Declares a Burns Investigator Will Be Put On the Case at Once

By means of a subpoena duces tecum Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey Friday obtained possession of a number of books and papers of the National Pencil company.

The subpoena was served on Herbert G. Schiff and M. B. Dudley, two officials of the pencil company, by Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor, and the two men were ordered to have the papers before the grand jury at 11 o'clock Friday morning for use as evidence in the case of the state versus Leo M. Frank.

At that hour Friday morning the grand jury was holding a routine session, and the service of the subpoena occasioned the rumors that the grand jury was ready to go into the case.

No phase of the Phagan mystery actually went before the grand jury, however, and Solicitor Dorsey stated that no circumstances had as yet arisen which will change his determination to present the Mary Phagan murder case to the grand jury on either Thursday or Friday of next week.

Many witnesses in the case were before Solicitor Dorsey during the day Friday and he is working many hours each day to get the case in proper shape for presentation to the grand jury at that time.

THE JOURNAL GIVES $100.

The appeal of Attorney Thomas R. Felder to the public to raise a fund to employ William J. Burns on the Phagan case has met with an instant response. Friday morning the Atlanta Constitution contributed $100 to the fund. Friday afternoon the Atlanta Georgian subscribed $100 and The Atlanta Journal swells the fund with another $100.

Mr. Felder states that he has been in telephonic communication with a number of gentlemen who will make contributions to the "Burns fund."

Several ladies, well known in society, are said to have originated the idea of raising a fund to bring the great detective here and they are giving their time and money to this end, according to Mr. Felder, who does not wish to announce the names of the contributors.

Mr. Felder declares that an investigator from Burns' New York office will be in Atlanta within a few hours and he will immediately commence the probe. Burns himself, according to Mr. Felder, will hasten his return from Europe to come to Atlanta to work on the Mary Phagan mystery.

When asked about the probably entry of the great detective into the case, Mr. Dorsey Friday authorized the following tsatement:

MUST WORK INDEPENDENTLY.

"Mr. Burns will be welcome. We are delighted to have aid in arriving at the truth, no matter from what source.

"Mr. Burns would have, so far as this office is concerned, however, to obtain his information first hand.

"We accept the statement without question that Mr. Burns' employment is in entire good faith, but our attitude toward his, so far as this office is concerned, is exactly the same as toward the Pinkertons. They will be expected to give, but not to receive.

"The work being done by the local detectives is entirely satisfactory."

J. WYLIE SMITH RECOUNTS HIS EXPERIENCES

NASHVILLE GETS 1914 BAPTIST CONVENTION

Tennessee City Awarded Conclave of Southern Churchmen Over New Orleans

BY REV. ALEX W. BEALER.

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—The next convention of Southern Baptists will go to Nashville, Tenn. The committee on place of meeting had a number of invitations—Nashville and New Orleans were the chief competitors and they decided on Nashville. This will be adopted by the convention.

Chattanooga and Macon, Georgia, are already in the field for the 1915 convention. The selection of Nashville for next year will give Macon a boom for the following year.

In the discussion of the best way to finance the Judson memorial movement, Dr. John E. White, of Atlanta, selected on the religion of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. The will of the late financier opened with a declaration of faith in Christ which would have been accepted by any preacher in the convention, he said, but the gifts did not stand up to the profession of faith. In running over the list, declared Dr. White, it could be seen that everything was given to perpetuate the name of Morgan and nothing to give glory to the name of Jesus Christ, so that his profession of faith did not bear the right sort of fruit.

BUSINESS IN THE CHURCH.

A report from Dr. W. W. Hamilton, of Virginia, was adopted, the purpose of which is to bring businesslike methods into the churches. The committee showed that the Bible commands regular and systematic giving, that it provides for special collections, that it arranges for gathering previously promised bounty, and that it indorses hilarious giving in a time of great religious uplift. The report recommends that systematic effort be put forward to have every church prepare a budget and that every member o fthe church shall be made a contributor of at least a dollar a year for mission work.

An amendment was proposed to the constitution of the southern Baptist convention today to admit women on the floor as delegates. A vote will be taken before the convention adjourns. The amendment was offered by R. H. Coleman, a layman, of Dallas, Texas.

That there would be opposition to the amendment was apparent when on motion of Secretary Lansing Burrows, Mr. Coleman was ordered to reduce his

MEXICAN REVOLUTION TO LAST 100 YEARS, HE SAYS

Wife of Fallen Financier Is Cooking and Sewing for Living in Texas

J. Wylie Smith, frenzied financier, who voluntarily came back to Atlanta after two years' absence to answer the charges again him, is spending his time in the Fulton county Tower, recounting his experiences in Mexico.

"I am going to die," said he Friday to a Journal representative. "That's why I came home. I wanted to die at home. The revolution in Mexico will keep up for 100 years and I would have been safe there as long as I wanted to stay. Georgia never could have gotten me back if I hadn't wanted to come."

Mrs. Smith, said he, is cooking for her living in San Antonio, Texas. She ekes out a little more by sewing at night, said he. His six-year-old daughter is there with her and is sharing her destitution. When he found that his way back to Georgia led through San Antonio, said je, he telegraphed ahead to his wife asking her to meet the train; but she couldn't, said he. His little daughter was there, though, and it was the first time he had seen her in two years.

Smith's story is a pitiable one of misery following upon his mistakes in the management of the Commercial Loan and Discount company.

He had a hemorrhage Friday morning, he told The Journal's representative. He is so weak, he said, that he can't stand on his feet three minutes at a time. He firmly believes that his end is near.

He was not wounded in Mexico, he said. His sickness is due to physical debility and lack of proper medical care. He weighed 145 pounds when he left Atlanta, he said, and he weighs 95 now.

Smith talked freely of what he saw and much that he heard in Mexico, reciting a great deal that the daily news made history months ago.

Smith's capture was effected by a man who was among those that lost money in the wreck of the Commercial. T. M. Hamilton, of Hapeville, swore he would bring Smith back to justice, and he accomplished his purpose after the government and the Pinkerton detectives had failed—but not until Smith himself was willing and anxious to come back to Georgia.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS GIVE MORE TO PASTORS

Would Save Retired Ministers Humiliation of Asking Publicly for "Relief"

Following protests against subjecting infirm ministers and widows of ministers to the humiliation of asking publicly for support, the United Presbyterian assembly Friday morning voted to increase the appropriations for ministerial relief from 1 1-2 to 2 per cent.

It was also decided to appoint a special committee to devise plans to make indigent ministers feel like they are not objects of charity and to suggest a more euphonious term than that of "relief." Steps are to be taken also to increase the salaries of ministers.

The assembly decided to place all ministers coming from other Presbyterian congregations on the list of beneficiaries immediately, instead of requiring five years of service in efforts to see that all are provided for.

The assembly unofficially approved a plan for the union of churches so that the work at present being carried on along similar lines may be prompted by all churches in common without an organic union being brought about.

Various committee reports were heard and the assembly voted to instruct its moderator to join with the other Presbyterian moderators in a telegram of greeting to President Woodrow Wilson, indorsing his stand on moral questions. The United Presbyterians refused to include the name of Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan in this telegram.

MODERATOR URGES ACTIVITY.

Renewed interest in church activities was urged at the opening of the session by the moderator, Dr. Robert M. Russell, who declared that "some churches are getting no more new members than ordinary Shakespeare clubs."

He declared the fact that there were 15,000 less conversions in America during 95 per

"THE NEW BATTLE OF ATLANTA" FOUGHT IN U. S. A. ASSEMBLY THURSDAY, SAYS WM. T. ELLIS

Dr. Stone, the U. S. A. Moderator, Is a Hard Working Pastor and an Effective Evangelist — Dr. Lyons, the U. S. Moderator, Represents Liberal Wing of Church

By William T. Ellis

A DEED without precedent in Presbyterian history was wrought yesterday in Atlanta, when the carefully laid plans of some of the strongest men in the U. S. A. church were nullified four complete "slates" for the moderatorship were smashed; and an unpredicted and unexpected man was overwhelmingly thrust into the moderator's chair. Rev. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, is today the highest official of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., in vindication of the principle of self-government, of which he is now as truly a symbol as the gavel which he wields is the symbol of the moderatorial office.

Yesterday afternoon's session in the Tabernacle was a dramatic illustration of the truth that popular rule must prevail. What has been happening throughout the country in politics has now been dpulicated in the church from whose form of government republican institutions take their rise.

For long years to come the tale of the spectacular "Battle of Atlanta" will be told in Presbyterian circles the world around. Men conversant with general assembly precedents search their memories in vain for any analogy to yesterday's action. The experience likest to it occurred nine years ago at Buffalo when, while the shrewd campaigners were "jockeying for position" in the nominating speeches, a commissioner arose and moved that the nominations be closed, thus electing Rev. J. Addison Henry, D. D., a veteran Philadelphia pastor. Then, as yesterday, an altogether worthy and distinguished Pittsburg divine was disappointed in his apparently reasonable expectation of becoming moderator. On that occasion also one of yesterday's candidates, Rev. Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, was in the field.

THE BATTLE OF ATLANTA.

The new "battle of Atlanta" deserves chronicling in detail. As all interested Presbyterians knew weeks ago, there were four candidates in the field. About the two leaders various parties, theological and administrative, had grouped themselves. It was apparent that Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, was the leading candidate. He was recognized as a markedly gifted man, in all respects fit for the office. He bore a historic Presbyterian name. He was a moderate conservative in theology, but a progressive in service, being the pastor of what is probably the most successful downtown church in the country. Besides, he is a scholar and a Christian gentleman, peculiarly qualified to preside with grace over these unusual sessions. The one regrettable feature of yesterday's proceedings was that he, and other fine men, should be caught under the falling roof when the structure of long custom was brought crashing to the ground. His own candidacy was peculiarly free from the discreditable features of some of these pre-arranged candidacies of the past.

The nominating speeches, on the whole, were poor. They had been too long in incubation. They lacked spontaneity and the ring of simple genuineness. The best of the four expected speeches was by a Texan, Rev. A. L. Bishop, but his candidate, Dr. Johnson, was in a hopeless minority.

Then, to the surprise of everybody, a man who proved to be Rev. W. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., arose and declared that he wanted to nominate a man who did not expect to be nominated, and who would be the most surprised man in the assembly when he heard his name. Moreover, not a single commissioner, said the speaker, knew whom he was about to nominate; his candidate had no claims upon the assembly, but the assembly had claims on him. The aptest utterance from the platform was Mr. King's revealing statement "my candidate has the tenderness of John, the evangelistic spirit of Timothy, and the strength of Peter"—which, since most of the commissioners knew that Peter is Greek for stone, revealed John Timothy Stone. The applause that greeted Mr. King's straightforward speech showed how widespread was the desire for a "dark horse," and how welcome was the opportunity to vote for a man whose name was on no slate.

THE REAL ISSUE.

Men experienced in public assemblies at once predicted the election of Dr. Stone. It was essential, however, that there should be no misunderstanding or misinterpretation of this event. No room should be left for any ecclesiastic to say that Dr. Stone was elected by caprice, or because of a mischievous spirit of iconoclasm, or because of Dr. Stone's personal popularity. Therefore William T. Ellis arose, and in terms pointed out that the real issue before the assembly was whether government by caucus and prearrangement should be continued. He told the commissioners that they were voting upon the question of ecclesiastical politics rather than upon the name of any individual, and he was careful to exonerate the candidates from culpability. As I recall that speech, it sounded very much like an article in yesterday's Journal. Only two ballots were necessary. Dr. Stone led all the other candidates on the first ballot, and on

An excoriation of the divorce evil and resolutions recommending action by every presbytery in the Northern assembly are embodied in the report of the special committee on Christian life and work, which will be considered by the Northern assembly at the Friday afternoon session.

The report in part is as follows:

"We call the attention of the general assembly to the sad and alarming situation pertaining to marriage and divorce. Accurate statistics onthis important subject show that the evil is steadily increasing.

THE CHURCH'S DUTY.

"This matter is pre-eminently the care of the church. It reaches down to the vitals of the church and the state. Your committee has corresponded directly with the authorities in several of our synods and presbyteries and report a desire on the part of many to take advanced steps pertaining to the regulation of marriage and divorce. But it is evident that our ministers and our churches are not grappling with this great evil as they should. They are not keeping themselves informed as to the situation except in a general way. The result is that the movement for reform needs a great new stimulus of thought and effort.

"We recommend the following resolutions:

"That our ministers and church courts be urged to organize a new and widespread campaign of education in the churches, regarding the sacredness of marriage and the evils of divorce, and to arouse all classes in the community by means of the press, the school and the social agencies to the need of reform.

MORE STRINGENT LAWS.

"That all our ministers and church courts be urged to study the present laws of each state on marriage and divorce, with the aid of earnest Christian lawyers and other laymen, with a view to the introduction of new and improved codes pertaining to marriage and divorce, and to that end that competent committees be created to prosecute the matter successfully.

"That the committee on Christian life and work communicate with the Presbyterian men on the subject of the laws of the state and the United States, both as to marriage and divorce, recommending action by each in order to secure proper regulations by the state

JAMES DEFENDS FREE SUGAR BEFORE SENATE

Kentucky Senator, Speaking for Wilson, Answers Democratic Protectionists

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Senator James, accredited with speaking for President Wilson and the administration, interpreted the Baltimore platform in a speech in the senate today as committing the president and the Democratic party to free sugar. His remarks were in reply to declarations by Senator Ransdell and Senator-elect Broussard, of Louisiana, that it did not.

In the gallery was Secretary Tumulty, who went to hear the reply to the anti-free sugar Democrats, who for two days have assailed the sugar schedule which President Wilson has declared will not be compromised if he can help it.

Senator James declared the platform adopted at the Baltimore convention approved the course of the Democratic house in the last session of congress and that it included approval of the Hardwick free sugar bill. He read a paragraph from the Democratic campaign text-book approving "the excellent record of the house" in placing sugar on the free list.

Senator Ransdell asked if President Wilson had not declared in a speech at Pittsburg that he did not stand for free sugar.

Senator James returned that the president was not a free trader, and that the proposed bill calculated to raise $300,000,000 in revenue was not a free trade bill.

"If you say President Wilson is a free trader because he favors free sugar," demanded Senator James, "did you call yourself a free trader when you voted for free bread and free shoes?"

RANSDELL NO FREE TRADER.

Senator Ransdell denied he was a free trader and asked if the Democratic national committee had not instructed its orators in the west not to discuss free sugar and also if the party would not have been defeated if they had discussed it there.

"I know the Chicago headquarters so instructed," Representative Aswell, of Louisiana," he declared.

Senator James raised to the point made by the Louisiana leaders that President Wilson and the platform had declared against tariff reductions which would injure any legitimate industry.

"By 'legitimate industry' in the platform," said the Kentucky senator, "is meant industrially legitimate and commercially legitimate industry. It does not refer to an industry which has had 125 years of government aid and protection and is yet unable to take care of itself."

PRAISE FOR WILSON.

Senator James eloquently praised President Wilson's stand for free sugar.

"If William H. Taft had had half the courage of Woodrow Wilson he would have vetoed the Payne-Aldrich bill and bonfires would have been burned on every hillside in his honor," he said, "in my opinion, he would have been re-elected.

"President Wilson says he is in favor of free sugar and free wool and wants no compromise. At Pittsburg he merely said he did not want to destroy any legitimate industry. I challenge you to find anybody to whom Woodrow Wilson ever said he was not in favor of free sugar."

Senator Ransdell inquired if he considered the sugar business of the south and west legitimate.

Legally, but not economically," replied Senator James.

The senate met an hour earlier than usual today so that both Democrats and Republicans might speak before a vote was taken on the question of public hearings on the tariff bill. Under the agreement the vote was to be taken at 4 p. m.

Chairman Simmons, of the finance committee, was confident that hearings would be refused, and some Republican leaders were inclined to agree with him. Senator James, under the agreement, was to be the first speaker today. He was to answer the charge by Senator Ransdell that Louisiana Democrats had no meaning in the Baltimore platform or the speeches of President Wilson that they must expect free sugar.

Senators La Follette and Norris also planned to speak.

Going to New York? Carry Shave Along. Barbers On Strike

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—The barbers' strike continued into its fifth day today with the men who are out busy trying to bring the shaving and hair cutting industry up to a standstill. Posing as ordinary patrons, the strikers individually invade the hotel shops and while submitting to a decent shave, they quietly sought to spread their "cause."

Fifteen arrests were made as a result of various disorders charged against the strikers and their sympathizers yesterday, which included a pitched battle with the police in front of the Hoffman House, where a large plate glass window was broken.

Alex Genaro, a young barber arrested as a leader, was sentenced in the night court to six months in the workhouse, and another striker, to ninety days. Magistrate Cornell, in sentencing Genaro, scored the Industrial Workers of the World, which he said "should be driven out of every decent city." It was claimed by the strikers that 13,000 barbers have joined their ranks.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The appellate division of the state supreme court today reversed the conviction in the supreme court of Charles H. Hyde, former city chamberlain, and ordered a new trial. Hyde was found guilty of bribery in connection with the deposit of city funds in the defunct Northern bank and the Carnegie Trust company.

BRYAN IS READY TO ANSWER JAP PROTEST

Cabinet Will Hear Secretary of State's Reply to Japan on Anti-Alien Land Bill

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Secretary Bryan returned from New York early today and was at his desk long before the cabinet meeting, at which he was to present the reply of the United States to Japan's protest against the California land legislation.

It is probable steps soon will be taken to publish the text of the Japanese protest, though that may be deferred until the answer of the United States has been delivered.

Although frequent inquiries from the Japanese ambassador indicate a disposition to press the negotiations, probably in recognition of the state of the public mind in Japan, yet diplomatic practice warrants an allowance of at least several days for the delivery of the state department's answer.

President Wilson's announcement that there are to be no movements of troops or ships that could be connected with the situation is expected by official circles to be construed as evidence of his conviction that the issue can and will be adjusted by diplomacy.

So far the order has not interfered with the plan to send some coast artillery troops from San Francisco to reinforce the garrison in Hawaii.

But, as the movement is in expectation of comprehensive plans for permanent garrisons in the insular possessions and in the canal zone, outlined by the general staff last fall, and approved by former President Taft and former Secretary Stimson, before there was any suggestion of friction with Japan, it is believed that its execution will not be a violation of the president's instructions of yesterday.

The administration has been trying to discourage "war scares" by every possible means, as was evidenced by executive disapproval of an order last week for the immediate dispatch from Newport to Norfolk of the submarine flotilla.

President Wilson and the cabinet at a three-hour session considered the reply to Japan's protest against the California anti-alien land law, and it was announced that an answer to the Japanese note probably would be delivered very soon. Secretary Bryan presented a draft of the answer, which is believed to have been substantially approved. It may be made public after delivery to the Japanese ambassador.

BELGRADE, Servia, May 16.—The semi-official news agency declares that the report published by the London Express of the engagement of Prince Arsene Karageorgevitch, brother of King Peter of Servia, to Mrs. Huger Pratt, formerly of New York, is incorrect. Prince Arsene is with the Servian troops in the field.

MRS. MINNIE HARTZ GETS $5,000 ALIMONY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., May 16.—Mrs. Minnie A. Hartz, who has been suing her husband, Morris Hartz, for divorce, has been granted her second verdict and a sum of $5,000 as alimony. A short time ago Mrs. Hartz sued her husband for the recovery of diamonds worth of $2,500 and secured their possession. The divorce case has been of considerable interest here because of the prominence of both parties.

They were married in January, 1912, but lived together only a short time.

Mrs. Hartz claimed that she was cruelly treated by her husband after she left the hospital, and that he drove her from his home. The estate of Mr. Hartz is said to be worth about $75,000.

No appeal will be made from the settlement that will be made shortly, according to the mandate of the superior court.

Out of a Job and Penniless Man Falls Heir to $30,000

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, May 16.—Out of a job and with just forty-five cents in his pocket, James Walters inquired at the general delivery window at the post office yesterday if there was any mail for him. To his surprise, he was handed a letter, which informed him that his father had died and left him an estate worth upwards of $30,000.

The letter was from his aunt, Mrs. P. C. Petty, of Knoxville, Tenn., and was the first word Walters had received from relatives since he ran away from his home at Nashville thirteen years ago.

MANY COUNTY OFFICIALS IGNORE FEE REPORT LAW

More Than a Hundred Are Subject to a Fine of One Thousand Dollars

Something like a hundred county officials in Georgia have, through intent or oversight, disregarded the law which requires them to make sworn quarterly reports of the fees received by them and the expenses incurred in the conduct of their offices.

Every one of these delinquent officials is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of $1,000 or a twelve months' sentence on the public works.

The law, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, applies to all state and county officials who receive fees from their offices. Its object was to afford data for succeeding legislature, if they deem it proper, to enact in lieu of the present fee system.

Under the provisions of the law as passed, every official receiving fees is required to make sworn and detailed statements to the comptroller general at the end of each quarter, and the comptroller general must compile these reports in a comprehensive form for the information of the legislature.

The first quarter of the present year expired on March 31. A majority of the state and county officials were prompt in making their reports, but it is estimated that at least a hundred have failed to do so. There are 145 counties in Georgia, and each county has an average of five officials who report.

In Fulton county only two officials have filed reports. They are Tax Collector A. P. Stewart and Tax Receiver T. M. Armistead. These, with Ordinary John R. Wilkinson, were testing the Fulton county salary system law in the courts at the time for making reports. Ordinary Wilkinson declined to file a report until the supreme court had passed upon the constitutionality of that law, stating that until the courts ruled otherwise the salary law was in effect in Fulton county. Other officials of this county did not make reports because they accepted the salary law and were actually working under it.

However, Ordinary Wilkinson and all the other officials, with the exception of Messrs. Stewart and Armistead, must now file reports for the first quarter of the year, the supreme court having knocked out the salary law and put all officials back on the fee system.

Comptroller General W. A. Wright is now having the necessary blanks printed for the compilation of the first quarter's reports. Those officials who have neglected to file statements as required by law should do so at once and make proper explanations to the comptroller general.

BOYS' INDIAN HUNT ENDS AT JONESBORO

Youthful Atlanta Braves on Bicycles Abandoned Tour Into Wild West

An "Indian hunting" expedition to the far west by two thirteen-year-old Atlanta boys ended disastrously at Jonesboro Thursday night when they appealed to authorities of that place to be held after having ridden twenty miles on bicycles during the afternoon as the first leg of their journey. The youths were taken in hand by the town marshal, who took them to his home, provided a supper, and then tucked them away in bed.

The boys are Guy Blankenship, who lives with his parents at the Central hotel, and Joseph Coleman, of 312 West Fifth street. Thursday afternoon they stole away from their homes and met at a Marietta street bicycle store. Here they rented two bicycles. When they didn't return at dusk their fathers conducted independent searches of the vicinity of their respective homes. Before they reported the matter to the police, however, the lads had appealed for aid at Jonesboro and Desk Sergeant George Staley had been notified. He, in turn, notified the parents.

The youths were brought back to Atlanta this morning.

GIRL HELD ON REFUSAL TO RETURN TO HOME

Following her refusal to return to the Home of the Good Shepherd, in Cincinnati, Vivian Faulkenbury, nineteen years old, was bound over to the city criminal court on a vagrancy charge by Recorder N. R. Broyles Friday morning. The young woman was arrested by Patrolman Clark as she was masquerading in men's attire in her room in a hotel at 166 1-2 Peachtree street.

On the witness stand Friday morning the girl testified that she was a vaudeville actress and had donned the masculine clothes to rehearse an act she was to stage in a Jacksonville, Fla., theater. When she learned that she had been confined in the Cincinnati home Judge Broyles offered to commit her to that place. When she refused to go he bound her over to the criminal court.

METHOD OF FEEDING PRISONERS A PROBLEM

Whether Sheriff or Board Shall Take Charge Must Be Decided

Interesting developments are expected at the next meeting of the board of Fulton county commissioners, when the matter of the feeding of the prisoners at the jail comes up for consideration.

The county board at a meeting Thursday adopted a resolution by Commissioner C. P. Anderson rescinding all action relative to the enforcement of the salary system act, except that applying to the feeding of the prisoners at the Tower. Action on this matter was deferred pending an opinion from the county attorney as to the legality of the board of commissioners directly feeding the prisoners through its own employes instead of through the sheriff.

Sheriff Mangum states that under the old law, while his now in effect, he, as sheriff, is required to feed the prisoners.

Under the law he says he must care for the prisoners in every way and turn into the commission a bill for the expense of feeding the men and certain other incidentals. For that reason, he says, he took up the work again when the salary system act was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

Last year the sheriff had a contract calling for payment by the commission of 45 cents per day for the dieting of each man held in the Tower. This contract is said to have expired on the first of the present year. As to whether the commission will make another contract is problematical.

General Anderson states that since the commission assumed charge of the feeding of the prisoners on the first of the year the cost to the county has been 11 cents per day per man, or a saving on the contract price of more than 20 cents per day to the county on each man.

It is pointed out, however, that the salary of the steward employed by the commission and of its purchasing agent would increase this cost to the commission, while one of the sheriff's regular deputies had charge of the dieting of the prisoners last year.

ATLANTA MUSICIANS WILL PROBABLY GO ON TOUR

At a meeting of the Atlanta Musical association, held Thursday night, at which Mrs. John M. Slaton presided, several new members were elected, and business of importance discussed.

The present membership of the association is as follows:

Mrs. John M. Slaton, president; Mrs. John Lamar Meeks, Mrs. J. M. Van Harlingen, W. J. Lowenstein, Miss Edwina Behre, Mrs. Edward T. Brown, Mrs. Roby Robinson, Mrs. Milton Arrowood, L. E. Rogers and Forrest Adair.

Mortimer Wilson, conductor, renewed his contract, and promised to give his aggressive attention to the symphony orchestra.

During the course of the evening the question of taking the organization on a concert tour of the principal cities of the south was discussed, and in the near future more definite plans will no doubt be laid for such a tour.

VETERANS OF NORTH AND SOUTH TO BE ENTERTAINED

Atlanta camp, 150, United Confederate veterans, will hold an open meeting in the house of representatives at the capitol Monday evening in compliment to the many Union and Confederate veterans who are in Atlanta to attend the various Presbyterian assemblies.

Every veteran, whether of the northern or southern army, is most cordially invited to be present. A musical program, comprising anthems of both the north and the south as well as national airs, will be rendered. Quite a number of the members of the camp will wear the Confederate uniforms. Members of other local camps will assist in entertaining the visitors.

RECEPTION AT COLLEGE FOR THE PRESBYTERIANS

Only Social Affair Will Be on Agnes Scott Campus, Special Train

The only social function at which there will be gathered the commissioners of the three Presbyterian assemblies now in session in Atlanta will be the reception on the campus of Agnes Scott college Saturday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock.

This reception is tendered to the commissioners by the Presbyterians of Atlanta, and promises to be one of the most interesting features of these three great Presbyterian gatherings.

The faculty of Agnes Scott college and its 200 odd students will assist in the entertainment of the guests.

Music will be furnished by a large band, and refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

Agnes Scott campus, comprising eighteen acres of rolling lawns, heavily shaded, is one of the most picturesque spots around Atlanta, and will prove a wonderful stage setting for this interesting gathering.

A special train over the Georgia railroad to carry the commissioners and their wives to Decatur, where the college is located, will leave the union depot, near the Whitehall street viaduct, at 4 p. m. Saturday. The special train will leave Decatur at 6 o'clock returning to Atlanta.

HORSE CARS MUST GIVE WAY TO MODERN TROLLEYS

Covington and Oxford Railway Company Will Soon Electrify Its Lines

An amendment to the charter of the Covington and Oxford Street Railway company, permitting that corporation to increase its capital stock from $10,000 to $50,000, was authorized by Secretary of State Philip Cook, Friday morning.

The increase is desired by the company in order that it may be in position to electrify its present horse car line between Covington and Oxford, a distance of three miles, and to extend its line from Oxford to Porterdale, another three miles.

CHILDREN'S TEETH TO BE EXAMINED FOR PROGRESS

Examination Will Be Made at Crew and Bell Street Schools

The committee on dental examination of schools for the Atlanta chamber of commerce has arranged for another examination for the Crew and Bell streets schools to begin Monday. The object of this examination is to show the progress made since the former examination.

This matter was taken up by V. H. Kriegshaber, who has for years been interested in the medical inspection of school children and after a meeting of the committee he communicated with Superintendent Slaton and secured his consent to the examination.

The medical examination of public schools, whic hhas been in effect fo rseveral years, has already been a great benefit to the children of the city as the last report shows. The per cent of defects on it of all kinds, which was about as in other cities at first, has been reduced nearly one-half and the children are proportionately stronger and more comfortable.

The committee on dental examination believes this to be especially important because trouble with the teeth seriously affect digestion and so begins a train of evils, which trouble the whole body.

THAW OFFERED RELEASE FOR SUM OF $25,000?

White's Slayer Tells Jury That Superintendent and Lawyer Bargained Release

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dr. John Russell, former superintendent of the Matteawan asylum for the insane, and Horace Hoffman, a confidential agent for Harry K. Thaw, were principal witnesses called today at the trial of John N. Anhut, a young lawyer, charged with offering Russell a bribe to bring about Thaw's release.

Thaw was the only witness called yesterday and, having concluded his testimony, was taken back to Matteawan.

He testified not only that Anhut had agreed to bring about his release through Russell for $25,000, but that Dr. Russell himself first made the suggestion of his obtaining freedom by the payment of a large sum. He conferred with Anhut, he said, not as attorney for himself, but as attorney for Russell.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Charles T. Burns, an assistant foreman in the weather bureau, suspended at the time of the dismissal of Chief Willis L. Moore, today was reduced in rank and salary by Secretary Houston, who declared Burns "guilty of misconduct in the performance of his duties."

Moore was dismissed for "serious irregularities," and misuse of his office, of which it was alleged he had been guilty in his campaign for appointment as secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's cabinet. The case was referred to the department of justice for investigation. Burns was charged with complicity.

Prof. Oliver L. Fassig, against whom charges were preferred by Moore, was acquitted of all except one—that of making a false statement regarding an item of expense amounting to $6.85. No action was taken in his case. Fassig contended Moore made the charges because he refused to support his candidacy for secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Houston's investigation of the case disclosed, an official statement says, that on December 27, 1912, Burns recommended that an inspection of weather bureau printing plants in various cities was necessary in the interest of economy and efficiency, "whereas the trip was planned by Moore for the primary purpose of promoting his candidacy for appointment as secretary of agriculture and not for the promotion of economical or efficient administration of the bureau."

DYNAMITERS BLOW SAFE AT TOWN OF HADDOCKS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., May 16.—The people of Haddocks, Ga., twenty miles north of Macon, were thrown into a state of wild excitement last night by a loud explosion, which later showed that the postoffice safe had been dynamited. About $15 in money and $350 worth of stamps were stolen. The dynamiters escaped. Marshal Robert Bailey had just left the building for his home and shortly after he entered the house he heard the explosion.

A number of the citizens in the little town quickly joined the marshal on learning the cause of the explosion. The searchers soon found that the postoffice had been entered and the safe blown. A search for the robbers was made, but no trace of them could be found. It is said that a strange man was seen about the town several times yesterday, and all suspicion of the robbery points to him.

OUTSIDERS DRAFTING BILL FOR CURRENCY REFORM?

Friends of President, Not in Congress, Said to Be Drawing Measure

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson let it be known today that various persons have suggested plans for currency reform to him, and that some friends other than members of congress are at work on legislative bills. Mr. Wilson did not reveal the identity of the outsiders, but it is believed that Prof. Royal Meeker, of Princeton university, who holds a chair in political economy, is among the number.

Representative Glass has received drafts of many bills from prominent currency advocates, among them Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, of the University of Chicago. The indications are that the ideas advanced by persons outside of congress will be turned over to the heads of the senate and house banking committees for use in connection with the bills they are drafting.

EATON INQUEST IS RESUMED ON FRIDAY

Those summoned to testimy included Andrew F. Jacobs, who once worked for the admiral; James Thom, whose attentions to Mrs. Eaton's daughter are alleged to have aroused the admiral's displeasure; Arthur L. Bates, a druggist, and two men, whose identity was not disclosed.

Mrs. Eaton was accused of having poisoned her husband and is awaiting trial.

King Constantine May Wear Famous Bysantine Crown

(By Associated Press.)

ATHENS, May 16.—It is reported that the monks of Mont Athos, the celebrated monastery on the coast of the Aegean sea, are planning to send the imperial robe and crown used by the Byzantine emperors, now in their possession, to Athens for the use of King Constantine, at his coronation. It is said that the crown which is studded with gems may become the permanent Grecian crown. The robe, which is covered with beaten gold, weighs fifty pounds.

MOB WRECKS NEGRO HOUSES IN FORT WORTH

State Troops Guard Negro Slayer of Policeman, Fearing Lynching

(By Associated Press.)

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 16.—State troops continued on guard today at the Tarrant county jail to prevent the lynching of Tom Lee, the negro who yesterday killed Policeman Ogiltree and a negro named Moore and wounded three others, before he took refuge in a sewer and shot himself.

Last night's rioting resulted in considerable property damage in the negro section of the city, practically every house on East Ninth street, occupied or frequented by negroes, being wrecked.

Big bonfires, made up principally of liquors and trash, were started early today by small crowds, but the activity of the police and property owners prevented the flames from gaining any headway.

Considerable excitement prevails today, but the authorities apparently have the situation in hand and no further trouble is expected.

CINCINNATI STREET CAR SERVICE HANDICAPPED YET

Avondale Line Only One Used Thursday on Account of Strike

(By Associated Press.)

CINCINNATI, May 16.—A more determined effort was made today by the Cincinnati Traction company to extend its street car service. Absence of any serious interference with the operation of cars on the Avondale line led traction officials to believe service on other routes could be resumed.

Activities of the strikers were directed towards making its parade in the afternoon a success.

"Where is the spiritual voltage that flashed during Apostolic days," he cried. "The cottages of our people stand bathed in sunshine today, but the sunshine does not penetrate to the inside."

On the recommendation of the committee on ministerial relief the assembly decided to place upon the roll as beneficiaries, "upon the same conditions that govern our own ministers," those ministers received from the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, the Presbyterian church in the United States, the Reformed Presbyterian church, the Reformed church in the United States, the Reformed church in America, the Associate Reformed church, and the Presbyterian church in Canada.

The assembly removed from the "Presbyterian family" the ban requiring five years of service to the United Presbyterian church in order that ministers' and their families be recognized as beneficiaries.

ANNUITY FUND IMPORTANT.

Dr. J. C. Scouller, of Philadelphia, corresponding secretary of the board of ministerial relief, emphasized the importance of the annuity fund and the retirement fund, which provides for ministers who are members of the fund a small annuity upon their retirement by the synods.

The assembly voted to increase the percentage of appropriations to the ministerial relief committe from 1 1-2 to 2 per cent.

Walter D. Hawk, of Chicago, an elder, pleaded for an increase in the salaries of ministers, declaring it "a shame and a disgrace that some of our ministers in Chicago and other big cities don't receive living salaries." Ministers should be paid as well as the lately, he declared, and no minister should be forced to come before the assembly begging charity.

The moderator, Dr. Russell, indorsed Mr. Hawk's plea, declaring that the young graduates of Westminister college, of which he is president, often receive better salaries than many of the best equipped ministers.

Before voting to increase the appropriations the assembly looked in prayer while Dr. W. C. Williamson, of Clarinda, Iowa, invoked divine blessings on the rank and file of the ministry.

UNGE BIGGER INCREASE.

Samuel Ogilive, of Pittsburg, declared that the appropriation should be increased to even more than 2 per cent. He deplored the designation of the fund as a "relief" fund.

Dr. D. M. Cleland, of Wilmington, Del., and Dr. George McCormick, of Salina, Kan., urged that all suggestion of "charity" be taken from the donations to the aged ministers.

Dr. John A. Wilson, of Pittsburg, declared it "disgraceful that widows of our ministers are doled out pensions by having their names called out publicly like objects of charity."

It was decided to appoint a special committee of laymen to devise a better plan of presenting suggestions for relief to the assembly and to suggest a more euphonious name than "relief."

On the motion of Dr. Hugh H. Bell, former moderator, it was decided to send telegrams assuring the good wishes of the assembly to five ministers who are kept away by ill health—Dr. W. S. Owen, of Santa Barbara, Cal., former secretary of the board of home missions; Dr. A. G. Wallace, of Pittsburg, second clerk of the assembly and the church's oldest active member; Dr. James Harper, of Xenia, Ohio, former theological seminary president; Dr. James A. Grier, of Pittsburg, former president of the Allegheny presbytery, and Dr. W. G. Moorehead, president of the Xenia presbytery.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK.

The report of the general committee on Young People's work was heard and Hugh A. Kelsey, general secretary of the committee, urged the interest of local societies in the work.

"This is one department of the churches that doesn't need money," he said. "We need men."

Mr. Kelsey reported great progress in Young People's work during the past year.

Dr. Sartell Prentice presented the greetings of the Reformed Church in America to the United Presbyterians and pleaded for greater co-operation to combat the forces of evil.

Dr. Prentice suggested a union of churches so that the forces could be united toward common purposes, and the denominational lines still be drawn.

This was indorsed by the moderator, Dr. Russell, who touched up national politics by declaring that "until we get some initiative, referendum and recall we are not governing ourselves."

"When the constitution needs changing, we ought to change it," he said. "We ought to have as much sense as the hardshell crab that draws out of his shell when it pinches him.

OUR REAL GOVERMENT.

"The public conception of government is wrong. We do not elect a president to rule, but to look after our public affairs. We should elect to public office the men who do the leftest things.

"We are in a position," Dr. Russell concluded, "to link hands with the batteries of heaven and electrocute the devil now."

Dr. John Fox, of New York, representing the American Bible society, told the assembly that the publication and circulation of the Bible was the first duty of the church, and urged the United Presbyterians to adopt a similar plan in Bible study as that in vogue in the Methodist church.

"The Presbyterians ought to do as well as Methodists in supporting Bible societies," he said.

The work of the American Bible society was indorsed by the assembly.

COMMITTEE OF GUIDES.

Because of the fact that practically all the commissioners are strangers in Atlanta, it was decided to appoint a committee of five to lead the march from one meeting place to another.

OBJECTED TO W. J. BRYAN.

Cries of "No, no," greeted the suggestion of Rev. J. A. Mahaffey, of Bovina, N. Y., that the name of Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan be incorporated in a telegram proposed to be sent jointly by the moderators of the three assemblies to President Wilson commending his stand on moral questions.

The motion that the telegram be sent was made by Rev. J. W. Springer, of Pittsburg.

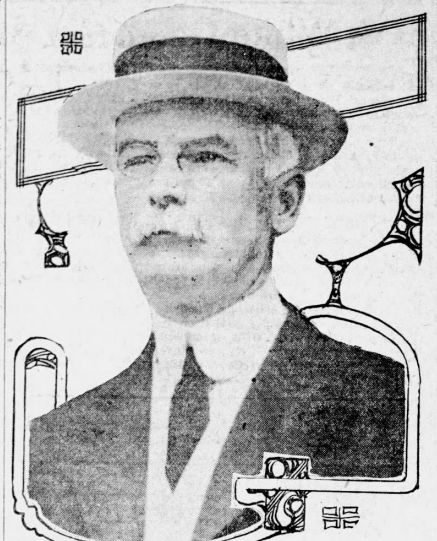

"Why not include the name of Secretary of State Bryan," suggested Rev. Mr. Mahaffey.

"No, no," cried Rev. Mr. Springer.

Dr. D. A. McClenahan, of the Allegheny presbytery, rose to his feet in protest, and commissioners from all parts of the church echoed the cries of "No."

The moderator relieved the situation by saying that if the name of any other one man was included, all should be mentioned, and the motion was carried with only the president's name mentioned.

Various committee meetings were held at the close of the morning session, the assembly resuming work at 2:30 o'clock.

BOSTON PREPARING BIG "OLD GUARD" RECEPTION

"Kinsley Post" and "Ancient and Honorables" Making Elaborate Plans

Information has been received from Boston indicating that the ceremonies incident to the visit of the Old Guard of the Gate City Guard in that city constitute the most elaborate honors ever shown a southern military organization by a northern city.

Colonel J. F. Burke, in comand of the Old Guard, has received letters stating that the hosts in Boston, the Kinsley Post and the Ancient and Honorables, are making great preparations for the entertainment of the southerners, including a big banquet at the American house, with Hon. Sam J. Elder, Hon. Sam L. Powers and exCommander Morse, of the Ancients, among the speakers.

It is stated that the Boston newspapers already are calling eloquent attention to the significance of the visit, and are expressing gratification that Colonel Burke, who arranged the original peace commission in 1879, will return this year in command of the Old Guard.

Colonel Burke has sent to Boston, at their request, some old war time photographs, showing himself and other veterans, as they appeared in the sixties.

One of the pictures shows Colonel Burke in command of the Charleston Zouave Cadets, the command which took care of the Federal prisoners in the casements of Castle Pinckney, in Charleston harbor, in 1861.

All preparations have been completed for the departure of the Old Guard from Atlanta Monday morning. Between fifty and sixty will make the trip. They will assemble at the Piedmont hotel at 9:30 o'clock and will march to the Terminal station with military escort, where a special train will be waiting to take them to Washington.

THREE TRIPPER CARS ON BUCKHEAD LINE

They Will Give a Ten-Minute Schedule During Rush Hours as Far as They Run

Three extra cars have been added to the schedule on the Buckhead-to-Brookhaven line.

They will run from the corner of Broad and Walton streets to Peachtree Heights park and return.

They will operate in the morning from 6 until 9 o'clock, and in the afternoon from 12 until 7 o'clock.

BROOKS MET DEATH IN WRECK; NO FOUL PLAY

At a post-mortem examination, held by Dr. Frank L. Etheridge, to discover whether there was any evidence of foul play in the death of Engineer R. B. Brooks, who was taken from a railroad wreck near Rice's station Wednesday night, it was found that all suspicions of that nature were groundless.

The examination was held as a result of rumors that soon went the rounds of the city after the accident, and in which it was stated that there were knife-like wounds around the heart which really caused his death. There was nothing found to warrant any such suspicion, and the doctor conducting the examination assured all that the man was killed as the result of the wreck.

The funeral of Mr. Brooks was held in the chapel of Greenberg & Bond Co. Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and the interment was in Atlanta Park cemetery. The pallbearers were selected from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

MILITANTS PLACE BOMBS THROUGHOUT LONDON CITY

Canisters of Explosives With Partially Burned Fuse Are Found Everywhere

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 16.—The militant suffragettes emulation of placing "bombs" in public institutions to coerce the government into granting the parliamentary franchise to women, was carried on in several quarters of London and the provinces today.

A workman-like canister of explosives with a clockwork attachment was found in the Rotherhite public library in southeast London this morning. It was labeled "Votes for Women. According to belief in some quarters it was placed there by a man. Indeed, the police suspect many men have been engaged by officers of the militant suffragettes' society for this work.

Another machine was found today in the letter box of the Wandsworth district postoffice in southwest London. It consisted of a glass tube containing fluid. A partly burned fuse was attached to one end. The police declare the bomb was apparently set there by militant suffragettes.

Still another canister of explosives with a partially burned fuse was found today in Holy Trinity church in Hastings, a popular watering place on the south coast, where the militant suffragettes have been most active during the past week.

A defeat has been inflicted on the government by the "wild women" in the matter of the suppression of the militant suffragettes newspaper, the Suffragette.

Attorney Archibald Bodkin, counsel for the treasury, had announced that the government would prosecute any one printing newspaper in the future, the labor press and some of the Liberal newspapers which are the strongest supporters of the present cabinet protested that this was an infringement of the liberty of the press.

The former Socialist member of parliament, George Lansbury, and the Socialist member, James Kerr Hardie, offered personally to undertake the publication of the paper, but the suffragettes declined their offer with scorn.

Thereupon the home office issued a statement declaring that Mr. Bodkin's pronouncement had been misconstrued, and that the Women's Social and Political union, or any publishes could issue the Suffragette so long as it did not contain any incitements to crime.

Sidney Drew, the former publisher, has written to the home office that he was compelled to promise that he will not hereafter directly, or indirectly, take part in printing the Suffragette, or any other issue of the Women's Social and Political Union, and he wants to know what steps are now to be taken to relieve him from this undertaking.

The special interest taken by the Labor party in the question of the suffragette was aroused because the labor newspaper frequently come into collision with the government. This is the case in regard to general conscription for the army, and the threatened legislation becoming the policy of the government, which the Labor party fears, the labor newspapers propose to urge the working men of the British Isles to resist it.

The militant suffragettes again complain that the government discriminates between them and the Ulster Unionists. They point out that Sir Edward Carson has gone to Belfast to open the new hall of the drilling club there, the object of which is to resist home rule if it should be established, and they ask why Sir Edward is permitted to advocate rebellion, whereas they are imprisoned for doing so.

This week's number of the Suffragette appeared today, and was freely circulated. The general tone of the newspaper is much milder than it was before the raid on the militant suffragettes' headquarters and printing office.

Miss Zoe Emerson, the militant suffragette of Jackson, Mich. was operated on today for appendicitis which is said to have developed owing to the privations she underwent while she was carrying out a "hunger strike" in Holloway jail.

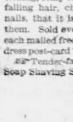

She was released on April 8 because of her weakened condition, and some time afterward was taken to a private hospital to prepare herself for the operation. She was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment on February 14 for smashing shop windows.

RINGWORM AROUND EDGE OF HAIR

Itched and Burned. Scratched and Made Sores. Hair Came Out by Combfuls. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

R. F. D. No. 4, Honea Path, S. C.—"Cuticura Soap and Ointment have done so much for me I would like other sufferers to try them. Last spring I had a very severe case of ringworm. It began in a ring around the edge of my hair. It looked like little pimples, and itched and burned so much and when I scratched it, it made sores. My hair came out by the combfuls. I lost fully one third of it. It kept getting worse so I could scarcely rest at night, it would itch and burn so badly.

"I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap, washed my head good in warm water and Cuticura Soap, rubbed the scalp good with Cuticura Ointment, let it stay on all night and washed it off the next morning. I kept the treatment up for about two weeks and my head was entirely well and I have seen no signs of it since. My face was covered with boils and I began using Cuticura Soap and they all disappeared. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Maude Sharpe, Mar. 25, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Mrs. Wilson Asked To Design Special Coin For the Blind

NEW YORK, May 16.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president, has been asked by the International Sunshine society, which is holding its fifteenth annual convention here, to design a special coin, the proceeds from which should go to help support and educate all of the blind babies in the United States.

The idea originated with Queen Alexandra and her sister, Empress Marie, who designed a baby coin for children in Denmark. The bit of copper which is worth intrinsically one-half a cent, is coined at the royal mint.

Delegates from nearly every state of the union are present at the convention. The report of Mrs. Cynthia Wegtover Alden, president of the society, points out that seven states have passed laws providing for the care and education of the baby blind. These are Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, North and South Dakota, Arizona and Rhode Island.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS PLAN FOR CAMPAIGNS

Executive Committee of National Committee Getting Ready for 1914-16 Fights

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Plans for drawing the political battle lines of 1914 and 1916 were talked over today at conferences of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee.

The plan included a conference over what the national committee should do to make the party successful in the state and congressional elections two years hence, with a look ahead to the next national election; a meeting with officers of the Democratic congressional committee regarding a greater representation of senators on that body and a conference with President Wilson.

"The committee, which met at its permanent offices, is composed of Committeemen Palmer, of Pennsylvania; Clark Howell, of Georgia; Cato Sells, of Texas; Homer Cummings, of Connecticut, and Fred Lynch, of Minnesota.

"Concentration, anticipation, amalgamation, confederation, harmonization," of methods, is the way one member of the executive committee epitomized the plans of the conference.

Today marked the opening of the permanent offices of the democratic national committee, which the party organization expects to maintain every day during the next four years at least.

The "executive" committee, so-called, but really a finance committee, is under instructions to devise methods for raising money under a resolution adopted at a meeting of the national committee on March 5, which indorsed the effort of Chairman McCombs to establish a permanent headquarters and press a vigorous publicity campaign.

The conference today discussed the importance of keeping the country reliably advised through committee propaganda regarding the executive and legislative policies of the administration, the attitude of the Democratic party on the tariff and currency questions, foreign policy and others questions, understanding of which by the public at large from the democratic standpoint, is regarded as helpful in the coming fight for continuance of the Democratic party in power at the White House and in congress.

WILSON WANTS CONSULAR PLACES IN CIVIL SERVICE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson favors putting consular representatives of the government under the civil service. This became known at the White House today. It was said that while there might be changes in the personnel of consuls general at the more important posts, these would extend only to such places as might have been filled with political favorites heretofore and not by promotion from the consular service itself.

Pickpockets Life $300 From Pocket Of Assembly Visitor

Pickpockets got busy among Atlanta's guests Thursday evening, and as a result Rev. R. H. Fleming, of Baltimore, Md., commissioner to one of the assemblies, is $300 in cash, seven Maryland railroad "permits" and a promissory note.

Mr. Fleming, who is stopping at the Imperial hotel, was getting on a trolley car just after the close of the great meeting at the auditorium Thursday evening, when he was jostled by three men in the regulation manner of pickpockets.

Mr. Fleming thought it was the natural hurry of the crowd, which caused the jostling, and did not realize until he reached his hotel that his purse had been lifted from his hip pocket.

The minister reported the robbery to the police, but was unable to give even a description of the men responsible for the theft.

CADETS FIGHT SHAM BATTLE AT EXERCISES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AMERICUS, Ga., May 16.—The commencement exercises of the Third District Agricultural and Mechanical college, Americus, were inaugurated today and will be concluded Monday with the graduating exercises at the college auditorium at which a class of eleven members will receive diplomas. Hon. John M. Slaton will deliver the commencement address. The commencement sermon will be preached by Dr. Bascom Antony, of Dublin.

A feature of interest will be the sham battle today participated in by the two companies of cadets of the agricultural college and witnessed by a great assemblage, the fighting being quite realistic.

The mechanical features of the school will be presented by transforming the auditorium stage into a miniature workshop with numerous students employed at anvil, lathe and other features of work.

FIGHT IS EXPECTED ON "BRIEF STATEMENT"

Southern Presbyterian Assembly Will Probably Have Lively Debate Over Document

There will be a fight on the adoption of the "brief statement" of the doctrines of the United States Presbyterian church as submitted to the southern assembly Friday morning was manifest when the document was read by Dr. James I. Vance, of Nashville, Tenn., and action or debate on the question deferred until Tuesday morning.

Two of the members of the committee of five who drafted the statement offered dissenting opinions and declined to have their names to it. They were the Rev. Dr. R. V. Webb, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia, S. C., defeated nominee for the moderator.

Dr. Reed said to a Journal reporter that he expected a fight on the statement because it was inferior to one that could and should have been made. "There are many," said Dr. Reed, "who are of the opinion that it is not in harmony with the doctrinal standards of the Presbyterian church. It is my belief and understanding that the general assembly has no right to frame such a measure, but that it is a matter that should be left entirely in the hands of the presbytery."

The dissenting opinion of Dr. Webb was to the effect that the church, its beliefs and its creed were too big for any form of a "brief statement," and for that reason he felt opposed to it and would not support the document as it now stands. Copies of the statement in pamphlet form, which is printed elsewhere in The Journal, were handed each commissioner for his careful perusal.

ATTACKS PENAL SYSTEM.

An echo of the general misunderstanding of the Ollie Taylor case in the north found its way into the second day's session of the southern Presbyterian assembly at the meeting Friday morning in the North Avenue Presbyterian church, when Judge McClellan, of the criminal court of Chicago, representing the United assembly, referred to the case in an appeal before the United States church for reforms and a better system of the courts in handling such cases.

It was the contention of the speaker that probation should be practiced in all cases where it was possible, and that prison sentences were more a matter of leniency than a form of sentence on the part of the court or trial judge. He referred to the unsanitary conditions of our dungeons, the dismal surroundings of others and the environment that the prisoners were subjected to.

A full attendance marked the second day's session of the Southern assembly which was opened at 9 o'clock Friday morning at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, with a short devotional service of song and prayer.

Dr. J. S. Lyons, elected moderator at the first session of the Southern church Thursday afternoon, was in the chair. The naming of permanent committees was taken up immediately by the moderator. He called attention to the appointment of Dr. G. B. Strickler as a member of each committee and chairman of none, by saying that owing to his long connection with the church and the good work for Strickler had done, he felt it a duty to the Southern church to place him where his influence and help always could be found.

MANY LETTERS REFERRED.

The reading of some ninety communications by the stated clerk was practically dispensed with by direct reference to the proper committee with instructions to report back. Many of the letters were of great length, but the announcement of the substance only made it possible to get through with them rapidly.

All matters referring to the overtures of other churches were referred to the committee on foreign correspondence. Overtures on a reunion with other ecclesiastical bodies were referred to a special committee after a motion to that effect had been defeated earlier in the morning.

WORK IS SHIFTED.

Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia, S. C., again brought the matter to the attention of the assembly, moving that the committee on foreign correspondence be relieved of all church union work. After some discussion it was carried as a substitute to the motion, putting the work in the hands of the standing committee.

GREETINGS FROM "U. S. A."

The first suggestion of a union of the northern and southern churches came when Dr. T. V. Moore, of San Francisco, Cal., was given the floor to express the greetings of the U. S. A. church. He declared that his branch of the church was as much southern as northern and expressed the hope that the joint conference would bring all three branches to a closer union. He was warmly received.

In the answer of Dr. Lyons, the U. S. church expressed the same cordial welcome for Dr. Moore and the cause he represented.

At 12:20 o'clock the conference adjourned until 2:30.

CITIZENS OF MIDVILLE WANT A UNION DEPOT

A large number of the citizens of Midville, Burke county, have filed a petition with the state railroad commission requesting it to use its good offices to cause the Central of Georgia and Georgia and Florida railroads to erect a union depot at that place.

These citizens state that heretofore both roads have used the same depot, which they declare is out-of-date and inadequate, but that now the Georgia and Florida is preparing to build a station of its own about a quarter of a mile distant from the Central's depot.

They declare that two depots will result in much inconvenience to the citizens and traveling public, and they say that notwithstanding five passenger trains pass Midville each night, the waiting rooms of the old depot are open only in the daytime.

May Be Paralyzed From Injuries—The County's Machine Plunged Over Bank

O. F. Walraven was injured Friday afternoon when an auto truck owned by Fulton county, on which he was riding, plunged down a forty-foot embankment on North Avenue opposite the Georgia Tech dormitory.

Walraven was on the front seat with the driver. Somehow the driver lost control of the machine and it promptly headed for the precipice and tumbled over, heels overhead.

The driver escaped unhurt, but Walraven was taken to the bottom with the truck, and is now at Grady hospital.

Walraven is employed by the county. His injuries may be serious. He is badly bruised and the hospital authorities fear that he may be paralyzed from the hips down.

The driver's name is Carl Garmon.

Policeman Directs Lovers to Minister

A kind hearted policeman went to the assistance of Cupid Wednesday night, when Joseph J. Price, a wealthy resident of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Marie Duhme, a former star with "The Three Twins" company, decided to marry. The couple were in Mr. Price's big Alco tauouring car, in which, it is said, he journeyed from Knoxville through the country to meet his fiance.

The young couple were riding through the city Wednesday night, when they suddenly decided to get married right then, and not wait, as they had planned. So the license was procured, and a search for a minister was begun. They tried several places, but each time the minister was out at some meeting of some kind. Then a policeman was found, and he was asked to direct them to a man who could tie a real lover's knot. The officer told them to go to Rev. H. D. White at 198 Stonewall street. The bluecoat said he could recommend him, as he, himself, had been there on just such a mission, and he knew Dr. White would make a good job.

So the young couple were happily married in the parlor of the minister's home, with a few friends as witnesses. The newlyweds then went to the Georgian Terrace, where they have been ever since.

Mr. Price is a member of the Knoxville Furniture company, and will take his bride home next week as a surprise to the family, or rather that was his intention, until the secret leaked out.

Miss Duhme, or Mrs. Price, is pleasantly remembered here for her clever work in the leading female role of "The Three Twins" company, which played a week at the Lyric in the spring. She is a New York girl, who will renounce the stage for the domestic life, she says.

JACKSON HILL BAPTIST CHURCH TO CALL PASTOR

At the close of the morning service Sunday a conference of the Jackson Hill Baptist church will be held to hear report of a committee of sixty appointed by the church some months ago to recommend a pastor, the pulpit having been vacant since the death of former Pastor Dr. Junius W. Millard.

The nature of the committee's report is not given out, but it is known that Dr. L. B. Barton has been strongly favored by the committee and congregation alike, and it is thought quite probable that his name will be presented.

Dr. Barton is at present pastor of the First Baptist church of West Point, and was for a number of years pastor of the leading Baptist church at Quitman, Ga. He is said to be one of the most eloquent of the young preachers of the Southern Baptist convention, and is known to be an aggressive and constructive pastor, having had large success with his previous pastorates. It is not known whether he could be induced to come to Atlanta, but should the invitation be extended and accepted it is considered that a valuable acquisition would be made to the already strong Baptist ministery of the city.

CHANGE SERVICE ORDER AT GORDON BAPTIST

Quite an unusual order of service will take place at the Gordon Street Baptist church next Sunday. The preaching service and the Sunday school will be combined and will begin at 9:30 a. m., with the pastor, Rev. W. M. Sentell, in charge. Just whether the pastor's sermon or the usual Sunday school exercises will be first on the program the congregation will not know until the opening hour arrives Sunday morning.

This is simply an experiment of the pastor in an attempt to solve the problems of getting the older folk to the teaching service and keeping the younger at the preaching.

During the services a normal class of eleven will receive King's teacher diplomas, and at the close of the ordinance of baptism will be administered by the pastor.

HOKE SMITH CLASHES WITH SMOOT IN SENATE

Georgian Calls Utah Senator Down for Remarks Concerning Finance Committee

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Senator Smoot and Senator Smith, of Georgia, clashed when the Utah senator called on his colleagues to compare the bill as it now appears and when it comes from the finance committee.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that the cotton schedule will be changed. I have no doubt that some interests will be taken care of."

"Why cotton any more than wool, any more than sugar?"

"Does the senator mean that the rate on cotton is to be changed, because people in my state are interested in it?" demanded Senator Smith.

"Does the senator say that he has not promised that the cotton rate shall be changed?" retorted Senator Smoot.

"I have promised nobody anything. Not a suggestion has come to me for a raise on the cotton rate from Georgia, but suggestions have come from New England for raises."

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE TO BAR NEGROES FROM OFFICE

House Reports Favorably on Farris Joint Resolution Amending Section

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 16.—House committee on constitutional amendments reported favorably the Farris joint resolution amending article 6 of the suffrage and eligibility section to read as follows:

"No person shall be eligible to hold or shall hold any office, state, county or municipal, under the laws of the state whether elective or appointive, unless he is a white person over the age of twenty-one years and a citizen of this state."

This is the quotation. There is no decision of any state or federal court on this question, but it is clear that the state would have the right to prohibit any negro from holding any state judicial position. Ex-parte Lockwood, a celebrated case, held that the state could prohibit the negro from being a lawyer on the ground that it is not a privilege to be a lawyer and the state can require that nobody be a judge who is not a lawyer.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

Surprise Boxes Just Unpacked

And When They Were Opened There Was

The Daintiest French Hand-Made Lingerie

The daintiest, the charmingest that ever we have seen at these prices!

Indeed, a new standard of value has been set for French Underwear.

The prices are less than what is usually called fair. They are low, very low; which you will better understand once you see the garments.

Nainsooks are so sheer and soft and beautifully woven—they could not have come but from France; and the hand-embroidery, as neat, as regular, as "sweet" and pretty—those who do such work will marvel that garments showing so much of it could possibly be sold at such prices.

Indeed, these were surprise boxes!

Gowns

Prices begin at $3.00 for nainsook gowns, chemise cut with dainty scallops and short sleeves. At $3.50 the ribbons appear, run through hand-embroidered eyelets, chemise cut style or buttoning in front. Then at $5.00 are the more elaborately worked gowns, chemise and low neck yokes, open sleeves.

Corset Covers

A novelty even at $1.75. A corset cover with short sleeves that act as a shield. Also all the fullness of the garment is confined in tucks. Then at $1.98, $2.50, $3.00 and $3.75 are corset covers that grow in beauty as prices mount—and the embroidery is all done with such exquisite neatness and in such novel and attractive patterns that a woman's appreciation of it will be great.

Drawers

Priced at $2.50, $2.75, $3, $3.50 and $3.75. Until now the price range on drawers so embroidered would have been $3.50 to $5.00. Narrow circular fitted drawers, flat legs with embroidered French dots and knots. The nainsook is a delight.

Petticoats

Priced at $2.75, $300, $3.50 to $15.00. When have you seen such petticoats?

Of nainsook flounces, fitted and all hand-made. And of special value even in this unusual lot are the petticoats at $2.75 and $3.00. They are narrow, with embroidered flat flounce, which shows a row of hand-worked insertion at the top. You will quickly note that in all the seams pearling is used.

Combination Suits

At $5.00, $6.00, $6.95 and $7.50. Corset cover and drawers. Those at $5.00, as well as those at all the other prices, are more elaborately embroidered than any we have ever had at corresponding prices—the ribbon-run beadings at the waist are very dainty.

A Corset With Elastic Gore at $1

But we have succeeded in getting this comfort device into a corset we can sell for $1.00.

Extra long skirt; medium low bust; four hose supporters. It may be had in all sizes.

The C.-J.-DuB. Special $1.50 Corset

A better $1.50 corset, made especially for our Corset Department—and we are proud to attach our name to such a worthy article.

The coutil is better, the boning is stronger, than $1.50 ordinarily buys. Very long skirt, medium low bust, six hose supporters.

Brassieres Priced

A special lot of $1.00 Brassieres is marked 69c. All fresh and new. The cambric is a fine quality; the embroidery trimmings are neat patterns, well woven. All sizes.

50c Brassieres 39c. They are all fresh, newly arrived. The embroidery yoke is four inches deep. All sizes.

BROOKHAVEN CLUB TO BE LEASED BY CAPITAL CITY

Deal Contemplates an Ultimate Purchase of Beautiful Country Club Property

Through its special committee, appointed to negotiate the deal, the Capital City club Thursday afternoon agreed to lease the beautiful Brookhaven club property on Peachtree road. This lease will give to the Capital City a country club feature the equal of any in the south.

Under the agreement reached with the Brookhaven estate the Capital City club is to lease the Brookhaven club for a period of one year at a rental of $100 per month, with the privilege of extending the lease for another two years at the end of that period. At the expiration of the three years the Capital City club is to have an option of purchasing the Brookhaven club property for $100,000 in 5 per cent bonds.

The special committee acting for the Capital City club is composed of Robert F. Maddox, Edward H. Inman, John E. Murphy, Jack M. Spalding, Dr. W. S. Elkin, P. S. Arkwright, Madison Bell and W. G. Humphrey.

The Brookhaven property to be leased consists of 150 acres, including the handsome new club house, with its furniture and fixtures, the golf course, tennis courts, lake and all improvements. The lessee is to pay all taxes and insurance on the property.

A formal transfer of the property will probably be made on June 1, when the Brookhaven club will take the name of the Capital City club. Under the terms of the lease the members of the Capital City club will enjoy all the privileges of the Brookhaven country club. However, the membership of the Brookhaven club is not transferred to the Capital City club. The latter recently voted to enlarge its membership from 750 to 800, and for a period of ninety days the initiation fee was reduced from $100 to $50. From the number of new applications being received, indications are that before the expiration of the ninety days the desired additional members will be enrolled and a waiting list established.

FLAGMAN KILLED ON EVE OF HIS WEDDING DAY

J. T. Allen Was Engaged to Marry Miss Irene Stanley

A broken-hearted young girl was one of the first to reach the undertaking parlors of Greenberg & Bond, on Houston street, where the body of J. T. Allen, the young flagman who was scalded to death in the wreck Wednesday night, was carried. She was Miss Irene Stanley, of 66 Houston street, and was engaged to marry Mr. Allen, the wedding plans being all arranged and the date set.

Mr. Allen met Miss Stanley when he went to her boarding house, and their acquaintance soon riped into love. They were so happy at the thought of being married that a telegram was sent to Allen's father, in Gibsland, La., by his son, announcing that he and Miss Stanley had wed. Mr. Allen's father replied, congratulating the pair and offering his blessing.

When the news that his son had met a tragic death was received in the father's home in Louisiana, the elder Allen wired to his son's "wife" to come and bring her husband's body home.

Miss Stanley was at the undertaking establishment when the wire was received. She was so affected when she read it, that she almost fainted.

"Oh, God! I wish it were true! I wish it were true. He wanted to marry me right away, but I wouldn't let him, and now I can't," she sobbed.

THREE DRUG STORES ON WHITEHALL ARE ROBBED

Burglars apparently had things their own way on Whitehall street, early Friday morning, for they entered three drug stores.

At each place the burglars effected an entrance by taking out a window, or door glass and in each instance, after their work in the store was complete, they put the glass back.

In Haynes Bros. drug store at Whitehall and Hood streets, they made away with 100 pennies and about $15 worth of goods. At the Stewart Soda company, a place at 242 Whitehall street, they got $2 in cash from the register. The gang entered the Whitehall Pharmacy at Whitehall and Humphrey streets, but nothing was reported as missing from that place.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DR. MARION M. H. HULL.

For May 18th—Gen. 42:3-17.

Golden Text: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6:7.

extremely severe. He scrutinized them most closely. His questions were very pointed. His manner extremely harsh. He suspected them of being spies, coming in the guise of merchants to find the points of weakness, and to eventually attack the country.

They asserted their innocence, they told him they were all brothers, implying that in reason no chief would send so many of his sons to act as spies. They claimed to be true men; they apparently had forgotten for the time how they had lied to their father twenty odd years before and to all appearances had never confessed their deceit to him.

But the prime minister would not believe them. Having learned that there was still a younger brother, he said he would put them to the test by that. The burden of proof was on them, to show that they were not spies, and he would put them all in prison, allowing one to return and bring the brother. Unless he could do so, they would be proven guilty and killed as spies.

That ended the conference. Officers were called who conducted them to the prison, where they stayed until the day after the next day (say from Wednesday afternoon until Friday morning.) I am not sure, but I can well imagine that those three days (according to Jewish count) were spent in very earnest thought. Each man in his cell had time to review his life and to wonder what would be the outcome of it. They knew enough of God to understand that He was just and would require of them an account of their evil desires and their unconfessed lies to their father, and began to wonder if finally God was bringing vengeance upon them for their sin.

In the morning after the second night they were startled to hear the command of the guard to march. They had been summoned to the presence of the prime minister again. With fear and trembling they came before him, and bowed down to him. Can you imagine their relief when they heard him say, "Because I fear God, I have determined upon a more lenient course. I will keep only one of you and the others may take grain back to meet the needs of your father and four families; but unless you bring the younger brother back with you when you return, you shall not see my face, or release your brother whom I keep as surety."

Simeon was chosen and bound before their eyes, while the others were sent to the granary to have their sacks filled and loaded upon their asses.

THE RETURN JOURNEY.

Joseph, for it was he who was the prime minister, had given privately orders that every man's money was to be returned to him and placed on top of the grain in the sack. He had no desire to corner the wheat and drive a hard bargain with his brothers or his old father; he had no need of their money. He wanted their love. He even gave them more than their money called for, as he provided for their return trip.

When one of them opened the sack to get food for his beast he found the money. Each one repeated the experience, and were in consternation. Instead of suspecting who it was who had done this, they were fearful of punishment. Each expressed to the other the fear that he had in his own heart. God was punishing them for their sin. Conscience had been dormant for twenty years, but kindness had awakened it, and they were under deep conviction of sin. They expected an attack at any time, but the rest of the journey was without incident.

They reported to their father all the details of the trip, never once suspecting that they had been dealing with their brother. He was distressed beyond measure and wailed as he thought of his lost Joseph and Simeon and now of the possibility of losing his beloved Benjamin. He upbraided them for ever telling that he had another boy, and insisted that he would never let them take Benjamin away as they would bring his gray hairs in sorrow to the grave.

JOSEPH'S PURPOSE.

What was Joseph's purpose in thus dealing with his brothers? Was it sentiment or revenge or reconciliation? At first it looked very much like the former. He had power in his hower; he could do with them as he pleased and no one say anything to the contrary. The severe scrutiny, the harsh words, the suspicious attitude all point to the former. The imprisonment points to revenge.

But, it was neither. If he had ever had any such feeling in his heart it melted away during the three days of their imprisonment. I believe his white purpose was reconciliation. He was heaping coals of fire on their heads, but he had to treat them as he did at first to bring them to the point where they would be willing to accept his proffers of mercy. My reason for so thinking is that Joseph could not have acted otherwise when we realize that he was constantly conscious of God's presence. Had God not been with him, he might have taken revenge; but with God with him, reconciliation was his only course.

Jesus as treated us just so. Our treatment of Him was far worse than theirs of Joseph. But the invisible God manifested Himself in Him in his efforts to reconcile, not God to us, but us to God.

What shall be your treatment of those who offend you? Can there be any other purpose if you are conscious of God's nearness, if you are looking at the things that are not seen?

Twenty odd years after the perfidy of his brothers, and after their lying and murderous hearts had spirited him away from his father and his home, there was a time of great distress in Cannaan. It was a hill country and a sheep raising country. It depended largely upon Egypt for its grain. There had been unwonted plenty for several years; there never had been such harvests and everybody that raised wheat had had an abundance. The supply was so great, however, that the price was low—the maketa were glutted. But for the last year or two, the crops had failed. They never had known such a poor harvest; in fact, they had not gathered as much as they had planted. No more could be shipped to Canaan, and the dwellers there began to suffer.

THE VISIT TO EGYPT.

Among those who began to feel the pinch were Jacob and his eleven sons, and their families. They had no wheat, but they were wealthy shepherds, and could afford to make a trip to Egypt to buy what was needed. So after a family council, this visit was decided upon. They planned that the men should go, leaving Benjamin with his father and their families. This was really necessary, for since Joseph's disappearance, the old man had never been the same. He was foolish about Benjamin, and did not want him out of his sight.

They reached Egypt after quite a journey, each with a bag of money with which to buy the coveted grain. They were referred to the prime minister, who was personally overseeing all sales, especially those made to outside parties.

They thought his action toward them

CASH WAS ELECTROCUTED IS VERDICT OF CORONER

J. C. Cash, the East Point policeman who was found dead in the street at the East Citizens' bank in East Point early Thursday morning, died as the result of being electrocuted by coming in contact with the chain that lighted an arc light on a pole within a few feet of where his body was found.

This was the discovery made by Coroner Donehoo, when he found unmistakable marks on the man's body indicating that it had been charged with a current of high voltage. The man evidently had attempted to light the arc, and the fact that the lamp was not lit during the night tends to prove that his death was due to electricity.

"Death by accidental electrocution," was the verdict of the coroner, who conducted his investigation in Hemperly's undertaking parlors at East Point.

Mr. Cash leaves a wife and three children; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cash; and nine sisters, Mrs. W. P. Heath, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. C. T. Jones, Mrs. M. I. Benson, Mrs. B. O. Morton, Mrs. Jim Watson, and Misses Kate, Pauline and Addie Cash, and three brothers, W. W., L. H. and Marcus Cash.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AND KILLED BY BROTHER

While Playing Soldier Richard Irvin Boone Is Shot by Allen Hartman Boone

Richard Irwin Boone, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Boone, of 25 Stewart avenue, was accidentally shot in the neck and killed late Thursday afternoon by his thirteen-year-old brother, Allen Hartman Boone.

The boys, with another brother, Powell, aged ten years, were playing soldier in the back yard of their home. Allen Hartman had a small parlor rifle in his hands when Richard Irwin, who was acting the part of an "insurrecto," sought to wrest it from him.

During the tussle the rifle was discharged and the bullet cut the jugular vein of the smaller boy. He bled to death before aid could be summoned.

Following an investigation, Coroner Donehoo announced that the shooting was clearly an accident and that no inquest would be held. The remains of little Irwin were taken to the undertaking establishment of Greenberg & Bond.

WANTS CITY TO PROVIDE ENTERTAINMENT FUND

Councilman Ashley to Ask for a Fund to Entertain Visiting City Officials

Councilman Claude Ashley, of the Fourth ward, announces that at the next meeting of council he will introduce a resolution providing for an appropriation of $1,000 in the June apportionment sheet to be used in entertaining visiting city officials who come to Atlanta on inspection trips.

He points out that the party of Orange N. J., officials who recently came here to inspect the sewage disposal plants were entertained at the personal expense of Chief of Construction E. M. Clayton and Water Commissioner W. J. Davis.

Other cities, declares Councilman Ashley, provide funds with which to entertain visiting officials and Atlanta cannot afford to be miserly in such a matter.

"The park board is proud of its new boarder at the zoo," said President Cochran, "and we would like other citizens of Atlanta to take such an interest in the zoo.

Often Exhausted

When Spring Came On, But Never Since Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. A. Hopkins, 225 East Bagle St., East Boston, Mass., writes: "Years ago I learned what a good medicine Hood's Sarsaparilla is. When spring came on I was thoroughly exhausted and obliged to take my bed. I thought I would rather die than be so tired. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before long was perfectly well. Since then, spring has never come without my having Hood's Sarsaparilla."

MME. PEVSNER TALKS ON SOCIAL SERVICE

Madame Bella Pevsner created enthusiasm in the address on social service which she delivered at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night.

"It is not enough to give bread when you have cake in the house, or old clothes when you have new," she said.

She said that the millionaire is miserable, as a rule, because he has gained wealth at the expense of the masses, and thus has been the cause of misery.

ACCURATE DOCTORS FIGURES AGREE

Mr. Joseph Justice, a Chicago business man, 409 W. Randolph street, was declared by two physicians to have Diabetes. One of the physicians was his family doctor and the other was an M. D. in the Columbus building. To make doubly sure he had two analyses made, and to show how accurate the physicians were, both reports showed four-sixteenths of one per cent of sugar.

Justice put himself on Fulton's Diabetic Compound and cut out sugars, sweets and starches. He began to feel better after the third week. Improvement was continuous, and on the disappearance of the symptoms he went to a third physician, an eminent Chicago specialist.

The doctor's charge was $20 for 25 minutes, but he writes that the examination was worth ten times what he paid for it. The doctor reported him strong and healthy, and his analysis disclosed no trace of either sugar or albumen.

Mr. Justice knew that the careful tests before and after made this a record case, and kindly gave us the details.

If you have Diabetes and are over fifty, you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Diabetic Compound before giving up. It can be had at Frank Edmondson & Bro., 11 N. Broad St. and 108 N. Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga.

THEATERS

ATLANTA—"Are You a Mason?" FORSYTH—Vaudeville. BIJOU—Vaudeville and Pictures.

Daily the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta is gaining in popularity and at every performance crowded houses greet them. This week the company is especially popular, as "Are You a Mason?" is the bill and it is a farce comedy over which one will laugh fully a thousand times. The scenes are excruciatingly humorous and the players enact them with a rush and a finish that is extremely satisfactory. The play will be seen three more times, tonight, Saturday matinee and night.

Next week the most sensational play of the decade will be given. This play is "The Deep Purple," by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, and has been a great success everywhere. It has never been seen in Atlanta, but the original Liebler production will be given by the Billy Long company. The play has been well cast and at rehearsals the characters are being given in a manner that is pleasing. Miss Tinsley Harrison, the Atlanta society girl, has quite a prominent part—the best she has had so far, while Miss Long and Mr. Vail take the leads. Seats are now selling for the week, including the matinees Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Commencing on Monday the Bijou will inaugurate a season of tabloid musical comedy and vaudeville. There will be the regular schedule of Bijou performances, including daily matinees, and two performances each evening with two matinees on Monday and on Saturday.

The scale of prices will be the same that has been set at the Bijou for four years—10 cents admission, with a section of reserved seats at 10 cents extra.

The opening attraction will be "A Trip to Joyville," with twenty cunning and clever entertainers, including a chorus of pretty girls who will be a magnetic box office attraction.

Vaudeville is evidencing the fact that this class of entertainment has a popular pull with the people. The Forsyth has been crowded all week. The first spell of real warm weather has found the theater comfortable. The ventilating system coupled with the cooling plant keep the temperature around autumn style, and a performance can be enjoyed without the sometimes disagreeable summer-time consequences.

The bill this week has stood the test fairly. There has been a most generous response from every audience in the way of laughter and applause, and the bill collectively has measured to the usual high standard of excellence.

For the week commencing with matinee on Monday and continuing all the week with performances on every afternoon and evening, Edward Gillette will present Adam and Eve, the smartest monkeys in all the world. These entertainers, supported by a group of other monkeys, will offer something entirely out of the ordinary. Gallagher and Fields in their roaring farce comedy, "The Battle of Bay Rum," promise an absurd laugh-winning sketch that should be just the tonic for warm weather, and it is sure that Josephine Dunfee, the singer who has been identified with some of the biggest and best musical comedy organizations, will come in for a real sure hit. There are other acts that are of the right quality and of course there is a demand for seats that is not at all unusual at the Forsyth.

PERMIT DENIED TO MAUSOLEUM COMPANY

The Atlanta Mausoleum company was Thursday afternoon denied a permit by the county board of commissioners to erect a mausoleum on Cascade avenue, about a mile and a half from the end of the Whitehall to West End street car line. The company originally planned to build on Blaine's bridge road but on the objection of citizens sought another site. The county board denied the permit for the building on Cascade avenue at the protest of citizens.

R. F. MADDOX, BACK FROM EAST, TALKS OF OUTLOOK

Seaboard, He Says, Will Need New Freight Terminals—Business Conditions

R. F. Maddox is back in Atlanta from a trip to the east, and on his arrival he had some interesting things to say about the plans of the Seaboard Air Line and general business conditions.

The Seaboard, Mr. Maddox said, is now in excellent shape, and is earning about 6 per cent on the preferred stock. The situation is so good that the directors authorized an expenditure of $3,000,000 for various improvements and additional equipment in the way of locomotives and cars.

Asked what Atlanta would get in the way of improvements, Mr. Maddox said that the road was not yet prepared to announce. He said, however, that it would be on the lookout for new freight terminals, although it would take some time to decide on a location, since the move would mean a big expenditure of money.

At present the road holds a joint lease with the W. & A. of the state's property in the rear of the Austell building, but this lease has only six or seven years more to run, and the road needs more room than it now has.

As to the union depot situation, Mr. Maddox said that the Seaboard would wait until it learned what lease disposition the state intended to make of that property.

In New York Mr. Maddox attended the dinner of the trust company section of the American Bankers' association, and he talked with the leading financial men of the country on the general situation.

"The feeling they had was that the underlying condition was good and that the country was in fine shape," Mr. Maddox said. "Crops are in excellent shape. Bankers can see no danger ahead.

"No pronounced business revival, however, is expected for several months. The country is marking time, waiting on various developments. The tariff, of course, will affect certain industries, more in the east than in the south. There will have to be more or less adjustment.

"Still, tariff reduction is a certainty and has been discounted to a large extent. The European situation is improving. We will soon enjoy the benefit of big crops. Next fall should see the country in fine shape."

MEMBERS OF U. P. ASSEMBLY GATHERED ON STEPS OF STATE CAPITOL

PRESBYTERIANS MEET IN JOINT SESSION

Spirit of Union Manifest in First Gathering of Its Kind Ever Held

Fraternal greetings that were construed easily as overtures to a union of all the Presbyterians in the United States, were extended at the first union meeting in the auditorium Thursday night of the Presbyterian commissioners assembled in Atlanta, by the retiring moderators of the U. S. A., U. S., U. P. and A. R. Presbyterian assemblies. It was the "fellowship meeting—first of the kind in the history of the world. It began a series which will endue while the Presbyterian visitors are in Atlanta.

The example that Canada's Presbyterians set, thirty-eight years ago in uniting, was told to his big audience of 5,000 or more people by the principal speaker of the evening, J. A. McDonald, managing editor of the Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada. "How it is, that you have neglected to follow that example baffles the wisdom of a newspaper man," said Mr. McDonald.

His topic was "The Church Responsibility for International Peace. He addressed himself to it forcefully and eloquently, proving to be such an admirable speaker that his audience would not permit him to abbreviate his speech. "Go on!" urged voices from all parts of the audience, when he offered to omit portions of it.

ATTACKS HARVARD LECTURER.

He attacked vigorously a statement which he attributed to one of Harvard's lecturers that "war is God's plan for the elimination of the weaklings."

"I do not have to go outside your own country to disprove his words," said Mr. McDonald. "Were the men killed in your Civil war your physically infant, your weaklings?"

A dwelt with much sympathy upon the cordial relations existing between the United States and Canada, along whose border line of 4,000 miles exists a condition found upon no other border in the world—a condition of peace absolute, or unarmed, aimless, and fortless peace. He discussed international American and world politics from the standpoint of the layman in a way best prepared for the extension of influence of the church.

MODERATORS INVITE UNION.

But not even the profound thought, the stirring eloquence and the important words of Mr. McDonald could minimize the significance of utterances that preceded his—utterances inviting union, from the retiring moderators of the Assemblies.

"The whole trouble is today we are standing too far apart," said the moderator of the Southern church. "This will be done," was the prayer with which the Associate Reformed moderator concluded his reference to the possibility of union. "Pray God that the day will come when the whole Presbyterian church in the United States will be united." was the declaration of the moderator of the United Presbyterian assembly. "We are ready for organic union," declared the moderator of the greatest of the assemblies—the U. S. A., not a party to the overtures already being put between the U. S. and the U. P. assemblies.

AN EFFICIENT CHORUS.

A "pick-up" choir that sang like a trained chorus led the singing of the Psalter songs that opened the program. Rev. Ralph Atkinson, of Seattle, Wash., was leader. Inspired it with his enthusiasm. He will continue to direct it each night. Dr. W. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C., spoke the opening prayer. A gavel made from wood of four historic trees associated with the four oldest Presbyterian theological seminaries in America, was presented by Dr. G. A. Beattie, of Atlanta, to the assembly.

At 8:30 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, Atlanta. Save some rows of seats in the upper gallaries, the big interior was crowded.

J. K. Orr, elder in the North Avenue church, and chairman of the executive comittee that prepared for the assemblies, was introduced by Dr. Flinn as the first speaker. Mr. Orr welcomed the visitors.

"Atlanta has had the pleasure of entertaining numerous conventions, but none that aroused the enthusiasm of all her people like this," said he. Fifty years ago the whole population of Atlanta could have sat within the auditorium" said he. "Yet a few days ago two Sunday schools filled it," said he, "and one of them was the biggest Sunday school in the world."

Mr. Orr told of the cordial response that was given to the invitation to Atlanta's householders, not long before the assemblies convened, that they entertain the Presbyterians.

A FORMER VISIT.

"Some of you haven't been here since you came down with General Sherman to reform us. We remember his visit. We mourned his departure in sackcloth and ashes. We scuffled around to find the sackcloth, but he left the ashes. But even then, Georgia did her best to entertain you." (Laughter and applause.)

"We hope that your stay will be pleasant to you as we know it will be to us. And should time allow you to see more of our state we trust that in your future reflections upon the south you will remember Georgia always."

Rev. W. S. Clyce, D. D., of Sherman, Tex., retiring moderator of the Presbyterian assembly of the U. S., spoke the first of the fraternal greetings, acknowledging Atlanta's courtesy on behalf of his assembly and greeting the U. S. A. assembly and the United Presbyterians and Associate Reformed synod.

"We can make the religion we represent a tremendous power in every department of the nation's life," said he. "I believe the Presbyterians of America compose a large per cent of the religious force of the nation—of the culture, the refinement of the nation. We must Christianize the nation. You may *think we are Christian, but we are pa*gan. Oh, the tremendous force in our land that is under the control of Satan! America has today the opportunity of her life to speak a message across the waters and around the world.

TOO FAR APART.

"The whole trouble is today we are standing too far apart. (Applause.) I am not referring to any organic union whatever, but to that shoulder-to-shoulder touch."

Rev. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., retiring moderator of the Associate Reformed church, spoke in behalf of that division of Presbyterianism. "We are here not as idlers," said he. "We are here, twenty-five commissioners, to bring greeting. Our people are watching this meeting in expectant mood. We believe that the pillar of cloud is rising to call Israel to action."

Dr. Pressley's conclusion was a prayer that if the Lord's will is for a united Presbyterian church, it be done.

Dr. Flinn added a word or two of fervent comment upon that prayer. It was evident that a spirit of union prevailed throughout the audience.

Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of San Francisco, retiring moderator of the United Presbyterians, followed with greetings from that church. "This is a great idea, this gathering here," said he. "Perhaps never before in Atlanta's history have there been so many families represented in one audience by commissioners and churches as there are here tonight. Churches of this city as it never has been prayed for. This is one of the greatest epoch-making gatherings in the history of this land. The meeting sets a new pace for Protestantism in America and in the whole world. What in United States history ever has pleased Jesus Christ more than the scene. He looks down upon tonight in this great gathering." Pray God that the day will come when the whole Presbyterian body in the United States will be united!"

THREE PRESBYTERIAN LEADERS.

His reference to three men leading the interest of this country, who doubtless have their family prayers was received with vigorous applause.

Rev. Mark A. Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., retiring moderator of the U. S. A. assembly, largest of the bodies represented, responded in behalf of it.

"I am at home in my native state,' he began, recalling that he was reared in Georgia. "I love Georgia, and always shall love her. I bring you a southern greeting from what you call a northern assembly.

"We always have been ready for closer co-operation," said he.

"We are ready for organic union. The day is not far distant when the Presbyterians of America will make the greatest Protestant church without distinction or division."

J. A. McDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, an elder in the Canadian Presbyterian church, the principal speaker of the evening, had for his topic "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

For thirty-eight years, said he, the Presbyterians of Canada have been united in one church.

"And how you, who call yourselves the Presbyterians of America, have failed in this is not so difficult to observe the example baffles the wisdom of a newspaper man."

It took him two days to get here, said he, from the far north of where he started there is a Presbyterian university. He brought greetings from the land of PEOPLE NOT DIVIDED.

"The dividing line between us is very clearly defined," said he, "but the two peoples are not so divided. Between our two great nations war is forever out of the question. It would be civil war more damnable than your republic knew."

"I would have you Americans in this republic think internationally," said he.

He spoke cordial words of unity as from a Canadian to American brethren.

But, he declared, there is no political unity in the air. He quoted Secretary of State Knox as saying in the presence of President Taft that it is better for Canada to remain outside of the United States republic, because behind her is the power of Britain, making a triumvirate that is the controlling force of the North American continent.

He described the 4,000 miles of frontier, without a fort or a gun or a war vessel, between Canada and the United States.

"Nowhere else in God's world can civilization be seen in such degree as that," said he.

The spirit of internationalism is spreading throughout the world, said he, preparing the way for the church to win all for Christ.

"It is the business of you and your churches to teach all nations the mo*tives and principles of the prince of* the church," said he.

The church has in its hands the power to settle questions of war. "Germany, Britain, the United States—those three Protestant nations—have they been true to their trust for the past fifty years?" he demanded, implying immediately that they have not. "It is the duty of the church to instruct the nations in the sinfulness of war."

ANSWERS HARVARD MAN.

He answered an assertion which he attributed to a lecturer at Harvard, that war is God's agency for the elimination of the weaklings. He demanded that the south and the north answer whether those were their weaklings that they gave up to battle in the Civil war.

"In the name of science, I protest against the impious allegation of the Harvard lecturer!" said he, amid applause. His speech continued in positive and emphatic answer to the arguments of all who favor war. He attacked them from the standpoints of *religion, science and economy. Interna*tional peace was the stirring refrain of his speech. His audience urged him to "go on!" when he offered to abbreviate his speech.

"It is the duty of the church to instruct public opinion as to the sinful*ness of war, its wanton waste of the* people's wealth, its crushing burdens of the poor, its poisoning of the nation's life and its irreparable demoralization of the manhood of the country.

CHURCH IS INTERNATIONAL.

"In this great world-wide movement of internationalism does the Christian church play any worthy part or know any high obligation? The church stands in the forefront. Its very genius is international. Put its ortiohal com*mission, by its program and its pur*poses and by the immeasurable range of its evangel, it is above all other institutions splendidly international. The glad tidings of Bethlehem were not for Jews alone, but for all nations. The marching orders from Olivet, 'Go ye into the world,' take no account of political divisions or local patriotism or national flags. Of necessity the state and its government are confined within the bounds of their own domain, but for the church the field is the world. Into that world field the church goes, not with any national flag or any political program, but with a pregnant idea and with the irrepressible emotion of a new life."

Dr. Hugh H. Bell, retiring moderator of the United Presbyterians, spoke the concluding prayer, and at 10:15 o'clock the meeting adjourned while the "pick-up" chorus on the stge sng well nd lustily.

PENAL SYSTEM SCORED AS CURSE OF NATION

Judge McKenzie Cleland, of Chicago, Makes Sensational Speech to U. P. Assembly

After an address by former Judge McKenzie Cleland, of Chicago, in which he denounced present penal systems as "the nation's greatest curse," the United Presbyterian assembly unanimously adopted resolutions Thursday afternoon to appoint a commission of five to investigate and report to the next assembly "whether the present methods of dealing with offenders is in harmony with the law of Jesus Christ." The commission will make recommendations as to how the church may better fulfill its obligations to the prisoners.

Judge Cleland declared that neither the saloon nor the disorderly house, but the jails of the nation, were responsible for the lawlessness in the country. "From the blue-coated, brass-buttoned policeman to the highest judge on the bench."

"It is just as logical to send a man to jail to improve his moral character," he cried, "as to put him in a garbage can to aid his digestion or improve his appetite."

Judge Cleland some years ago came into national prominence by conducting his court on the principle of "let him that is without sin among you first cast a stone at her."

Judge Cleland asserted that the present penal system of the United States has come to be a great commercial and political asset. Thousands and thousands of unfortunates are thrown into jail every year, he said, simply because these institutions must be kept busy.

He attributed to the jails the fact that there are now nearly a hundred thousand professional criminals in America.

Judge Cleland complimented the work of Governor Hughes, of Arizona, Judge Ben Lindsay and Warden Tynan, who have used the parole system to good effect.

Following Judge Cleland there were addresses at the afternoon session by Dr. Joseph Brown Turner, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Frank Foster, of New York, secretary of the American Tract society.

DR. J. S. LYONS HEADS THE SOUTHERN ASSEMBLY

Distinguished Louisville Pastor Elected Moderator on the Fourth Ballot

By a vote of 109 to 93, Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Louisville, Ky., was named moderator of the southern Presbyterian assembly at the first business session of the assembly held at the North Avenue Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon.

There was no pre-election campaign and before the nominations were closed five names were up before the assembly —names of prominent divines who were as surprised at their nominations as were the rank and file of the church.

Before the voting, which proceeded by roll call, commenced it was announced by the retiring moderator, Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, that on each ballot the lowest nominee would be dropped, unless one of them had scurd a majority of votes over all, bringing the election to a close.

The nominees were:

Dr. A. M. Fraser, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Staunton, Va.

Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Louisville, Ky.

Dr. W. M. McPheeters, professor at the Columbia Theological seminary, Columbia, S. C.

Dr. William McF. Alexander, pastor of the Prytonia Street Presbyterian church, of New Orleans, La.

Dr. R. C. Reed, professor at Columbia Thelogical seminary, Columbia, S. C.

Immediately prior to the balloting, the five nominees withdrew from the church and awaited the result of the election.

VOTE BY BALLOTS.

The balloting resulted as follows:

First ballot: Dr. Lyons, 75; Dr. Reed, 48; Dr. Alexander, 43; Dr. Fraser, 26; Dr. McPheeters, 10. In accordance with the ruling the name of Dr. McPheeters was dropped from the next ballot.

Fourth ballot: Dr. Lyons, 103; Dr. Reed, 93.

A committee of two then made known the result to the five nominees, and Dr. Lyons was escorted to the pulpit, where the gavel wielded for the past year by Dr. Clyce was turned over to him.

So close was the final ballot that no one in the vast assemblage knew the result until it was announced by the stated clerk. As the roll call proceeded, first one name and then the other would break the stillness, and there was no way of arriving at a definite conclusion until the count was completed.

Moderator Lyons, after briefly thanking the assembly for the honor conferred upon him, made announcements of the future sessions of the conference.

HOURS OF MEETING.

The morning sessions will convene at 9 o'clock and adjourn at 12:30 for lunch. The assemblies will reconvene at 2:30 o'clock and adjourn subject to the motion. At 8 o'clock in the evening the southern church will meet in joint assembly with the northern and united churches.

Prior to adjournment Dr. Julian S. Sibly read a report putting the assembly on record as being opposed to stores staying open later than 10 o'clock on Saturday nights. The report charged that late hours kept employes from a proper observation of the Sabbath.

It urged also that southern Presbyterians discourage funerals on Sunday, also games, not only in cities, but in the army and navy.

At 9 o'clock Friday morning the church got down to active work with the new moderator, Dr. Lyons, in the chair. The stated clerk began the reading of ninety communications that are in his hands. Committee reports will be read later in the morning.

DR. MARK MATTHEWS TO PREACH AT FIRST BAPTIST

Dr. M. A. Matthews, the retiring moderator of the Presbyterian assemblies and one of the eminent divines in that church, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

This will be welcome news to the congregation of the First Baptist church, especially those who had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Matthews during the pastorate of Dr. Hawthorne.

JOHN TIMOTHY STONE HEADS U. S. A. ASSEMBLY

Nominated as a "Dark Horse" He Was Swept Into Office on Second Ballot

Rev. John Timothy Stone, D. D., pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, a "dark horse" candidate put forward at the last moment, was elected moderator of the north assembly Thursday afternoon by a large majority.

Dr. Stone was nominated and seconded as a man who had not sought the nomination and whose name had not been mentioned to a single commissioner in the assembly.

Rev. W. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., made the nominating speech. He said no commissioner in the assembly knew the name of the man he was about to present. He said the man himself did not know he was going to be nominated. He said his name had not been mentioned to a single commissioner, that it had not been published in the newspapers, and that no semblance of a campaign had been made in his behalf.

W. T. Ellis, of Swarthmore, Pa., who is writing about the Assemblies for the Journal, seconded Dr. Stone's nomination. His speech was the most remarkable of the session. He said Dr. Stone had in no way sought the moderatorship and that it was time for the assembly to elect such a man. He appealed for Dr. Stone's election as a repudiation of "ecclesiastic politics," declaring it would be a wholesome change from the "old system of putting men forward by means of caucus manipulations on the part of astute leaders."

DR. STONE SURPRISED.

Dr. Stone sat in the second row immediately in front of the rostrum. The expression of surprise on his face was genuine when Mr. King put his name in nomination. He shook his head disapprovingly and started to rise. Commissioners around him held him down. Finally he forced them to let him rise, and in a very earnest manner appealed to the assembly to allow him to withdraw his name.

"It is true that I have not sought this place," said he. "And I speak the truth when I say I would rather for you to elect some other man. I have always believed that the man elected to the moderatorship of this assembly should be a man who has proved himself worthy of the honor. He should be an older and more experienced man than I."

The motion to allow Dr. Stone to withdraw his name was emphatically voted down, viva voce.

THE OTHER NOMINATIONS.

Dr. Stone's nomination was the last to be made, and those who preceded him were as follows:

Dr. Maitland Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Pittsburg, Pa., nominated by Dr. John Willis Baer, president of Occident college, Pasadena, Cal.

Dr. William McKibben, president of Lane Theological seminary, Cincinnatt, nominated by Dr. David R. Moore, of Cincinnati.

Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Stamford, Conn., nominated by Rev. A. F. Bishop, of Austin, Tex.

Dr. S. S. Palmer, pastor of Broad Street Presbyterian church, Columbus, Ohio, nominated by Dr. W. C. Covert, of Chicago.

The nominating speeches followed consecutively, ten minutes each being allowed, and the seconding speeches followed consecutively, five minutes each being allowed.

Thus Dr. Stone was the last to be nominated and the last to be seconded.

That he would run a strong race was evident from the applause which greeted the first mention of his name by Mr. King. As the first ballot progressed, the clerk reading the vote section by section, and he leading the ticket in section after section, his popularity with the assembly became increasingly apparent. On the first ballot there was no election, the vote standing as follows:

Dr. Stone, 84; Dr. Alexander, 277; Dr. Palmer, 126; Dr. Johnston, 66; Dr. McKibben, 47.

Total vote on this ballot, 839. Necessary to elect, 420.

When the vote was announced Dr. Johnston rose and asked those who voted for him to cast their ballots for Dr. Stone on the next round, and this was the signal for another round of applause for Dr. Stone.

Dr. McKibben withdrew his name, but made no request as to whom the commissioners should vote for.

THE ELECTING BALLOT.

Dr. Stone, 552; Dr. Alexander, 245; Dr. Palmer, 31; Dr. McKibben, 3; Dr. Johnston, 1.

Total vote, 832. Necessary to elect, 417.

Dr. Alexander then rose and moved that the election be made unanimous by acclamation. He was seconded by Dr. Palmer and the motion carried with applause.

As Dr. Stone mounted to the rostrum, escorted by Dr. Alexander and Dr. Palmer, he was given an ovation.

"I can only say," said he, after a long pause, 'that I hardly know what to say. I think my strongest feeling is that of humiliation, because I am at this moment so keenly conscious of my unworthiness."

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY IN SESSION HERE

HERE IS BELIEF OF THE SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN POPULAR FORM

Following is a brief popular statement of the belief of the southern Presbyterian church (United States assembly), prepared by a committee appointed by the general assembly at Bristol n May of last year.

The statement merely sets forth in popular form the tenets of that church. It is the report of the committee, which remarked in rendering it to the assembly that it did not understand its function to have included authority for any amendment of or substitution for any of the documents contained the constitution of the church.

I. D.

God is a spirit in e, eternal, and unchangeable; all p rful, holy, wise, good, true, and ju hating all sin. He s merciful and gr ious, long suffering, and abundant in g dness and truth, not willing that an s ould perish, but that all should come to repentance; which is summed up in Bible statement, "God is love." He e ts in three persons, Father, Son, and oly Ghost, who are one God, the same in substance, equal in power and glory.

II. THE BIBLE.

The Word of God, written by men inspirit by the Holy Spirit, is contained in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. It is the revelation of God's will for man and of man's duty to God, and is the only infallible and authoritative rule of ith and life.

III. GOD'S PURPOSE.

The eternal purpose of God includes all even s; it is holy and wise, and does not deprive man of freedom, nor make God the author of sin.

IV. CREATION.

For the manifestation of his own glory, God created the world and all things therein, whether visible or invisible, and all very good. He made man after his own image; male and female created He them, with immortal souls, endowed with knowledge, righteousness and holiness, having the law of God in their hearts, and power to fulfill it; and yet under a possibility of transgression, being left to the freedom of their own will.

V. SIN AND THE FALL.

Sin is the violation of God's law, either by omission or commission. Our first parents, being tempted by Satan, disobeyed God's command, and so, by their own choice, fell from their original state of innocence and communion with God, and came under the power of sin, the penalty of which is eternal death. All men, by reason of their relationship to Adam as their representative head and common ancestor, are born with a sinful nature, from which all actual transgressions proceed; and out of this condition no one is able to deliver himself.

VI. SALVATION.

God, who is rich in mercy, so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to be the Saviour of sinners. The salvation thus provided is freely offered to all men, and is sufficient for all, but becomes fficacious only in those who be in Jesus Christ unto eternal life.

VI. ELECTION.

Before the foundation of the world God, the Father chose unto Himself in Christ a people whom He gave to His Son, that they should be holy and without blame before Him in love. Those who come to years of discretion receive this salvation only through faith in Christ, being regenerated by the Holy Spirit. All who die in infancy, and all others who are incapable of exercising choice are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases. We thus declare that God's electing grace has peopled heaven with a multitude that no man can number, and has never sent one soul to hell.

VIII. CHRIST THE REDEEMER.

The Lord Jesus Christ, being the eternal Son of God, became truly man, yet without sin; so that he is both God and man, and the only perfect mediator between God and man, by whom alone we can come unto the Father. By a life of perfect obedience and by his sacrificial death, he satisfied divine justice, made a perfect atonement for sin, and reconciles us to God. He rose from the dead and ascended into heaven, where he makes continual intercession for us; and he sits at the right hand of God, clothed with honor and power, subduing his people unto himself, ruling and defending them, and restraining and conquerthe Godhead, applies the redemption come again to receive and reward his people, and to judge the world.

IX. THE HOLY SPIRIT.

The Holy Spirit, the third person of the Godhead , applies the redemption purchased by Christ. He persuades and enables men to obey the call of the gospel, and dwells continually in every believer as the Spirit of truth, of holiness, of power and of ocmfort, and is thereby the author of all Christian experience.

X. JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH.

Everyone who humbly relies upon Christ alone for salvation and in penitence confesses and forsakes his sins, is pardoned and accepted as righteous in God's sight, solely on the ground of the perfect obedience and sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Everyone thus pardoned and accepted is adopted into God's family, and becomes an heir of God and a joint heir with Jesus Christ.

XI. THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

The Holy Spirit im ts spiritual life by the direct operation of his power; so that, being born from above, we are the children of God, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which are not the ground but the fruits of salvation. Dwelling in Christ's people, he purifies them more and more from sin, enables them to render a cheerful and loving obedience to God's commandments, and perseveres in his sanctifying work in the presence of Christ in glory. Believers may at times backslide, growing indifferent and cold, and even falling into grievous sins; yet God does not cast them off, but chastens them, and restores them through repentance to fellowship with him.

XII. THE CHURCH.

We acknowledge one universal church, the same in all ages, and of which Christ is the head. The church invisible consists of all the redeemed. The church visible is composed of all those throughout the world who profess in Jesus Christ, together with their children ,and it is the duty of all believers openly to profess their faith by uniting with the church. The church exists to bring to Christ those whom the Father has given him, and to establish the Redeemer's kingdom. The mission of the church is spiritual, and its work is to witness to the truth of God to the ends of the earth, and to preach the gospel to all men in every generation. We believe in the separation of church and state. The scriptural form of church government is by elders or presbyters, chosen by the members of the church; but we do not regard the form of government of a church as essential to its existence. We recognize the validity of the ministry and sacraments of all evangelical churches, and seek the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace. Ministers, elders and deacons, at their ordination, are required to subscribe to the system of doctrine contained in our standards, but the sole condition for membership in the church is a credible confession of Christ as Saviour.

XIII. THE SACRAMENTS.

There are two sacraments, baptism, which sympolizes the work of the Holy Spirit, and the Lord's supper, which symbolizes the sacrificial death of Christ. Sprinkling or pouring is the scriptural mode of baptism, but the mode is not essential to the validity of the sacrament. Children of believers, before reaching the age of personal accountability, are to be baptized on the faith of their parents, who in the sacramental act enter into covenant relations with God. We invite to the Lord's table all who love Him in sincerity and truth and who are in good and regular standing in evangelical churches.

XIV.—DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

The souls of believers are at their death made perfect in holiness; and do immediately pass into glory, and their bodies, being still united to Christ, do rest in the grave til the resurrection At the resurrection, believers being raised up in glory, shall be openly acknowledged and acquitted in the day of judgment, and made perfectly blessed in the full enjoyment of God to all eternity; but the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment.

XV.—THE FINAL STATE.

There are but two states of future existence, heaven, the home of the redeemed, and hell, the abode of th finally impenitent. There is no purgatory, nor is there any probation after death. Man retains his identity after death, and there will be recognition in the future life. We believe in the ultimate and complete triumph of the Saviour's kingdom, and with all His followers in all ages we toil and pray for the speedy coming of the day when our glorious Lord shall see of the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied.

the second he was chosen over Dr. Alexander by a more than two to one vote.

The men who have felt that it was their special duty to manage the affairs of the Presbyterian denomination without consulting the rank and file of the church are as dazed by the assembly's action as the stand-pat Republicans were last November's vote.

If ocular demonstration were needed that Dr. Stone did not remotely anticipate the presentation of his name it was given when he was escorted to the platform, for he wore a decidedly unministerial suit of light gray clothes and a blue necktie. From the sartorial standpoint, such a figure never before stood in the moderator's office. But he made a speech of acceptance that warmed all hearts the deep piety of the man overflowing from every sentence.

WHO DR. STONE IS.

Dr. Stone represents no party. He is a hard-working pastor, whose special identification has been with evangelistic service and with missionary interests. He has had phenomenal success in attracting strong men to the church and he presents the somewhat unusual spectacle of a deeply spiritual man as the successful pastor of a wealthy city church. Before going to Chicago, Dr. Stone was the pastor of Brown Memorial church, Baltimore, as successor to the late Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock.

A sidelight on the character of Dr. Stone was given by some commissioners this morning, who report that yesterday afternoon, just prior to the meeting of the assembly, Dr. Stone gathered half a dozen friends in his room for a prayer meeting, to pray that the assembly might be guided aright in the choice of a moderator.

More sensational than this election was the state of mind which succeeded it on the part of some persons. The gentlemen who fill the cushioned black-leather chairs in the Piedmont hotel are trying to explain to one another how it all happened. They insist that some deep laid plan was successfully worked. Anything else is incredible to them. They openly declare that there must have been politics of a shrewder and subtler sort than their own. They merely look wise over Dr. Stone's protest that he was utterly unaware of what was coming. They flatly refuse to believe the reiterated statement of a minister of the Gospel, Mr. King, that no man was cognizant of his action. The equally unequivocal statement of Mr. Ellis that he never saw or heard of Mr. King until he arose in the assembly, and that he never in anywise communicated with him, is received with skepticism. The suggestion that the whole procedure was the fulfilment of the primary Presbyterian doctrine of government by the spirit through presbyters, is greeted with something like sneers.

Such a state of mind as this is worse than any act of ecclesiastical politics or any doctrinal heresies; it denies the spirit of the gospel and threatens to eat into the life of the church like a gangrene. If the ecclesiastics would but forsake one another's company for a while, and talk with the ordinary, obscure commissioners who are guests in Atlanta homes, they would learn that these men still believe in the ability of the general assembly to perform all its functions without preliminary caucusing, campaigning or wire-pulling. The old Presbyterian idea of the governance of God is really as prevalent among the commonalty of the U. S. A. church as it is in the U. S. and U. P. bodies.

DR. LYONS A LIBERAL.

Quite overshadowed by the U. S. A. assembly election was the procedure in the North Avenue Presbyterian church, where the delegates in the U. S. assembly balloted five times before choosing Rev. Dr. J. S. Lyons, the distinguished pastor of the First church of Louisville. Dr. Lyons was recognized as standing for the liberal wing of the church, and this election shows that the present U. S. body is inclined to liberalism, even as the larger assembly unmistakably faces toward conservatism. This is another significant evidence of the finding of a common meeting ground.

Of the various questions up for consideration today, probably greatest interest centers in the adoption of a brief statement of its creed by the Presbyterian church in the United States. This will be scanned with closest interest by members of all churches.

This afternoon all the assemblies meet in a united communion service, revealing more eloquently than words that, however divided on polity, administration, or doctrinal interpretation, they are one in the great essentials of the Christian faith.

The Salary System Law.

The Supreme Court holds in a unanimous decision that the law placing the officials of Fulton under a salary instead of a fee system is unconstitutional and hence invalid. The measure in question, though passed by a general act, was in effect, says the Court, a special act applying in practice to only one county. "Laws of a general nature shall have uniform operation throughout the State and no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law." This, the Court quotes from the constitution, and adds, "A general law may be repealed or modified by a special or local law."

In these circumstances, it becomes the duty of those who favor the salary as opposed to the fee system, not only in Fulton county but throughout the State, to bestir themselves in behalf of legislation that will stand the test of the constitution and the courts. That there are thousands and tens of thousands who recognize the wisdom and justice of abolishing the fee system, there can be no doubt; and, if they will bring their influence to bear upon their representatives in the General Assembly, a durable and satisfactory law can be secured.

County officials, like all public servants, should be well paid, but they should be paid for the service they render and not according to the fees they can collect. Every dollar above adequate salaries should go into the public treasury and be used for the upbuilding of the common interests. That is good business as well as fair play. The fee system is too crude and antiquated for a progressive State like Georgia. It is too susceptible of abuses to be retained; but it can only be supplanted by united public influence.

Reducing Typhoid

The census bureau reports that the typhoid death rate has been reduced from twenty-three and five-tenths to twenty-one per hundred thousand of the population. This improvement, though appreciable, is far less than that which has been effected in other fields of disease, and leaves America still a long way behind France, Germany and Austria.

Such progress as has been made against typhoid is due largely to perfected and extended methods of sanitation and to the educational campaigns of medical societies and boards of health. To be sure, the disease is treated more effectively than it was years ago, but in this, as in all health interests of today, emphasis is laid on preventive rather than curative measures.

Municipal and county governments should see to it that every possible source of typhoid is removed. Neglect of sewerage facilities or of the water supply or of garbage disposal is nothing short of criminal. Many of the duties and responsibilities of public health, however, must be borne by the individual citizen and household. At the approach of summer it becomes especially important that every home protect itself and its neighborhood against the peril of disease in general and that of typhoid in particular. Clean premises and well screened windows and doors will go far toward putting an end to the fly, which is the bearer of all manner of disease.

Atlanta's climate is naturally healthful at all seasons of the year, and with due vigilance on the part of public authorities, supplemented by watchfulness on the part of individuals, this community's mortality from typhoid should be reduced to a minimum.

A Noteworthy Movement For Drainage Enterprises.

The drainage congress which is to be held at Commerce on May the twenty-third betokens the keen interest which Georgia farmers are coming to feel in the matter of reclaiming swamp and overflow lands. In Gwinnett county, the recent progress of such enterprises has been especially marked. The drainage work now being done in the vicinity of Haynes creek has attracted popular notice throughout the surrounding districts because of its economic methods and because of the great benefits it promises to yield.

It is said that as a result of this one undertaking organizations have been formed in several neighboring communities and that in the counties round about plans are being made to drain a number of farms which are now subject to overflow from rivers or creeks.

Indeed, the interest in this cause is so widespread and pronounced that the farmers have decided to assemble at Commerce and to discuss plans for a permanent and inclusive organization through which they may better serve their common welfare in reclamation endeavors. The convention will be notably educational in its effect, for among those who will be present and make addresses are State Geologist McCallie, Mr. J. V. Phillips, representing the federal government; Mr. L. P. Aiken, president of the Georgia Drainage Congress, and Dr. A. M. Soue, president of the State College of Agriculture.

When it is reflected that one-fourteenth of the entire area of Georgia is in swamp or overflow land and that thus a vast amount of soil which might be turned to productive account is lying useless, the importance of the drainage movement becomes evident. It is to be hoped that the progressive example of the farmers of Gwinnett will stimulate other counties to join in this vitally-needed constructive work.

Conserving the Birds.

President Wilson's executive order setting apart a large tract of government land in Arkansas to be used by the Department of Agriculture as a breeding place for native birds should be of interest not only to Audubon societies and nature clubs but also to the general public. Efforts to protect America's bird life against ruthless destruction long since ceased to be a crusade of sentiment and became a very sober and practical task in behalf of the country's welfare. Common experience as well as science attests the great value of insect-eating birds to the farm and orchard and forest; and there is no field to which the principles of conservation can be applied more seasonably or more profitably than to the due safeguarding and fostering of useful birds.

Many States, Georgia among them, have within recent years enacted better game laws and are seeing to it that these statutes are more thoroughly enforced. The national law providing federal protection for migratory birds is another step in the right direction. It is essential, however, that we have more than merely prohibitive or negative legislation, if our efforts to preserve the birds are successful.

The allotment of a tract of government land for the breeding of birds is especially commendable for the reason that it is a constructive step. It is in line with the far-sighted policy long pursued in Germany and other European countries where insect-destroying birds are not only protected but are also encouraged by means of various devices. It is cheering to know that our own government, through the Department of Agriculture, will henceforth take more interest in such enterprises.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE NEWSPAPERS OF AMERICA

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1912, by Frank Crane.)

During the month of May this year there was held in Berne, Switzerland, an international meeting of journalists. There have been international gatherings of all kinds now and again, of missionaries, of doctors, of diplomats and others, but, perhaps, no class need internationalizing more than newspaper men.

"Public Opinion," said "Toussenel, "is the queen of the world, and the Press is her prime minister."

There is no doubt that the greatest power today in America and Europe is that in the hand of the editor. What is needed in all forms of power is an accompanying sense of responsibility. Irresponsible, greedy, selfish power is a devastating curse, whether of kings, soldiers or newspaper men.

They who control newspapers can preserve law and order, punish crime, expose grafters, chase dishonest officials from office, and stimulate and confirm right ideals among the people. Or, on the contrary, they may direct their energies toward fomenting trouble and encouraging false and vicious tendencies, and thus become the most active of nuisances.

The United States is at a crisis at present with Japan which calls for all our self-restraint, courtesy and common sense.

We don't want war. Under no circumstances should international differences of opinion call for the destruction of human lives and of property in order to arrive at an understanding.

It is safe to say that if the press of this country is conscious of its high responsibilities, and of the tremendous consequences of its utterance, and takes the high plane of justice and humanity there can be no war.

War is caused by ignorance, truculence, and a desire to stir up trouble. Its root causes are the debased passion of race prejudice and the perversion of national pride.

Its direct causes may be the most trivial. A German airship accidentally alights in France, or a company of drunken French bounders attack some German tourists in a cafe at Nancy, and immediately the bloody shirt is waved, Chauvinism explodes with fireworks.

The action of California on alien land laws stirs up the Japanese, a people as proud and sensitive as ourselves. This calls for all the moral quality of our "prime minister," the press.

Those papers which, seeking the most pernicious notoriety, strive to fan public animosity toward a people of alien blood, and publish incendiary scareheads and editorial screams, should be visited with that contempt they merit.

Gentlemen of the press, realize your accountability to this great people and to Almighty God. Think what war means, the horror of it, the medieval ignorance that renders it necessary, the appalling stupidity of resorting to it, and the price we pay in slaughter and waste!

Give us your manliest wisdom, your clearest vision of high justice! Make this nation realize it is not a swaggering bully, but a decent and forbearing gentleman!

Rise up, O prime ministers of public opinion, and play the man! Let not the twentieth century be stained by that hellbroth of unreason—war!

The Magic of the East

There is a saying that those who drink of the waters of the Nile will return. It may be another way of saying that the magic spell of the East is irresistible.

To speak of Cairo and its wonderful surroundings, of Heliopolis, or the age-old pyramids, of the mighty Sphinx, and all the rest of the manifold attractions of the changeless East were to utter banalities. It must be experienced—and once to visit Egypt is to become a slave to its enchantment.

A visit to Egypt today is a far different undertaking than it was some twenty years ago. The changeless East is still unchanged. But the hand of modernity has wrought some very desirable changes in hotel life and in the highly important matter of railway transit. The visitor today finds himself steeped in all the wonderful glamour, the strange calm and mysticism of the East, but he has only to stretch forth a hand to avail himself of the thousand-and-one amenities and comforts and facilities of the twentieth century life.

The American is surprised to find that he can luxuriate in fast, smooth-gliding trains de luxe such as he is accustomed to at home. The Egyptian state railways are essentially modern, if they serve the most ancient places in the world.

A round of charming excursions may be enjoyed on an economical outlay. The tombs of Beni-Hassan —cut out of the living rock some 4,500 years ago; Tel-el-Amara, with its vastly interesting remains of ancient grandeur; Assiout, the largest city of Upper Egypt; Abydos, with the temple of that name, built by Seti I, father of Rameses the Great; Dendera, with the famous temple, displaying the curious mixture of Egyptian and Greek Ptolemaic period—one of the very few Egyptian temples with the roof intact—and wonderful Luxor, with its antiquities and traces of the splendor of Thebes and the Rameses.

Of Cairo itself little need be said. The Eastern city is the center of the tourist's operations. Cairo can gratify every taste in the way of sightseeing and recreation.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Snap Bean Farm

(The Outlook.)

The Outlook recorded with pleasure the fact that the Uncle Remus Memorial association has secured the "Wren's Nest," home of the late Joel Chandler Harris, as a monument to his memory. Few writers have been so deservedly beloved as the spokesman of Br'er Rabbit and Br'er Fox. His death was a loss not only to American letters but to American life as well. The same association is now hoping to add to its present holdings "Snap Bean Farm," a plot of land originally part of the Harris homestead, which received that whimsical title from Uncle Remus himself. Most appropriately, the memorial association intends to use the "farm" as a children's playground, fitting it up with swings, joggling-boards, croquet grounds, and, we hope—though this has not been promised—sand piles for the building of rabbit burrows, fox holes, bear caves, or whatever else happens to appeal to active imaginations and small browned hands. Each spring the "farm" is to be used for the May Day festival, an annual entertainment that brings in some $200 towards the support of the memorial. Maypole dances, a flag drill, ice cream, cakes molded to a speaking likeness of the animals of which—perhaps we should say of whom—Uncle Remus loved to write, are some of the attractive features of this occasion. The fearsome delight of eating up Br'er Fox (preserving his Sunday tail for the final bite) must appeal to all children, young and old. Those who feel that they would enjoy such a meal should send a check to the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, 410 Peachtree street, Atlanta, Ga.

THE INCOME TAX

IX.—CIVIL WAR PERIOD TAXES.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

While Secretary of the Treasury Dallas suggested, during the war of 1812, that the war burdens of the country should be borne in part by a tax upon incomes, the early termination of hostilities relieved the necessities of the moment, and consequently it was not until 1861 that the first income tax law was written upon the statute books of the United States. It became known as the Stevens-Morrill act, from the patrons of the bill in the house and senate.

The Civil war had broken out, and President Lincoln called the thirty-seventh congress into extraordinary session "on account of the opposition to and obstruction made to the execution of the laws of the United States in certain southern states, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings or by the powers vested in marshals by the law." About the first duty that devolved upon the congress was to provide sufficient revenues to meet the large expenditures the war called for. There was much difference of opinion as to just what ought to be done. Thaddeus Stevens, from the ways and means committee, brought in a tariff bill, which he asked the house to vote upon after one hour's consideration, all amendments to be voted upon without further debate.

The next day Clement Vallandigham, afterward the great Ohio copperhead, offered a substitute repealing the tariff law that had been enacted two days before President Buchanan left the White House. It was rejected, but the Stevens bill was so badly crippled by the many amendments that were adopted in committee of the whole, that when it was reported to the house, Stevens offered his original bill as a substitute. When the house voted to pass the measure it contained a number of amendments. When it went to the senate that body did not like it, and amended it by striking out everything but the "Be it enacted" clause, inserting a substitute measure. This was finally amended by the insertion of a clause providing for an income tax of 5 per cent on all incomes in excess of $1,000, with 1 1-2 per cent on income derived from United States securities. The clause made the tax 7 1-2 per cent on the income of Americans residing abroad, with the exception of income from United States securities, and they were to be taxed 3 1-2 per cent on their incomes from these. Upon the statement that this clause followed the rule, practice and law of England for a period of fifty years it was passed even without division.

While the senate was amending the house bill by complete substitution, the house brought out another bill providing for a direct tax and an income tax. As it finally passed that body it provided for a direct tax of twenty mills on the dollar and an income tax of 5 per cent on all incomes of $600 or upward. This bill went to the senate and was pigeon-holed. Meanwhile the other bill had been sent to conference. There the conferees drew a new bill, which was a complete *substitute for the house measure and a modified sub*stitute for the senate measure. It reduced exempted incomes to $800, and the tax from 5 per cent to 3 per cent. This action finally became the law, but it remained on the statute books for only six months. It was repealed by the act of July 1, 1862, which cut down the exempted income to $600, and fixed the tax rate at 3 per cent on incomes below $10,000, and at 5 per cent above that point. The tax on income from government bonds was placed at 1 1-2 per cent.

This second income tax law lasted two years. By that time the man who could suggest new items to tax and new methods of increasing revenues from existing laws was regarded as a patriot and hailed as a statesman. During the summer of 1864 the income tax law was somewhat amended, with a view to increasing the revenues, and the day before the second inauguration of President Lincoln it was still further amended. This amendment increased the tax from 3 per cent to 5 per cent on incomes between $600 and $5,000, and fixed the tax on incomes above $5,000 at 10 per cent. This became effective just about the time the war closed, and brought the receipts up to the highest notch in the history of income taxation in America. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1866, the total collections under the income tax law were upward of $60,000,000, and the next year it was but little less.

In 1867, the revenues of the government from the income tax law having exceeded the needs of the federal treasury, it was decided to amend the law by cutting out all discriminatory taxes against large incomes. With this in mind a uniform tax of 5 per cent was levied against all incomes above $1,000. The amended law also contained a provision that it should expire by limitation at the end of the year 1870.

In 1870 an act was passed extending the operation of the law for another year. The extension was made in July, and in December an effort was made to repeal the law. The act providing for its repeal originated in the senate, where it passed, with only one vote to spare. When this action was communicated to the house, Mr. Hooper, of Massachusetts, arose to a question of privilege, and declared that the senate had no right to originate such a measure. Samuel J. Randall denied that the matter involved a question of privilege. Speaker Blaine overruled Randall's contention, and Hooper's resolution was adopted, sending the act back ot the senate with the polite information that the senate had no right to originate such a measure. The senate as politely informed the house that it did have such a right, and requested a conference upon the subject. While the merry little war was being waged back and forth the income tax law died by its own limitation, and so it never was repealed. This recalls the fact stated in a previous article that the law of 1894 did not need to be repealed after 1900, since it expired by limitation that year.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

May 12.—Lay late, and came to me at my inn Mr. Rothschild the legislator from Springfield and told me many things of politicks and of George Hitch who is also a new legislator, but how that George and I are too full of affection for my Lord Theodore. Thence to W. Moore the pamphleteer's, and we did have a long discourse of the old days and I did wish D. Confey the chyrurgeon might see him now, for four yrs. ago he did see him near to death and did save his life. Thence to Mr. Fra's steamtrain, and read all the afternoon and evening till that I had finished "V. V. Eyes," a truly fine book and made me proud of knowing H. Harrison and glad of his friendship. But if the book had no merit I should say so, natheless. So to my berth early and looked out of my window at Alliance, Ohio, and was glad of not living there.

13.—Up and to breakfast which cost me 3s., which I did not begrudge. Thence from the train to my office, where I read letters all the morning, some pleasant, some querulous. For then be many that do mislike this or that of my scrivenings and do tell me of it, and often it is well, keeping down my vainglorriousness. And most do hold they could do my work far better than I do it, and, God help me, I fear lest it be true. To the tennis-court with A. Guiterman the poet and played maladroitly and was beaten every set-to, which put me in great dejection. But we did have a great steak of beef for dinner, and cooked rare, as my preference is, so my depression did go away and I did labour all the evening with much blitheness. Cometh a letter from Mistress Fannie Hurst, saying, albeit I did mislike her story, "The Sweetest Sweetmeat," yet did not Mr. Pepys the elder himself mislike many of the sayings and plays of the great Shaxpur? Which I did hold to be a witty comment of Mistress Fannie's.

Speaking of the barber shop chord, it is Old Stuff. Focus this, from "The Diary of Samuel Pepys," June 5, 1660: "My Lord called for the lieutenant's cittern, and with two candlesticks, with money in them, for symbols, we made barber's music, with which my Lord was well pleased."

The custom, according to "Notices of Popular Histories," was for the person waiting to be shaved to play on the "ghittern" until his turn arrived. . . . That settled, whence orientated ragtime?

IT NEVER WAS.

(The Hero of "A Tale of Two Cities." By a boy in The third class of a New York City[high school.)

According to the rules that govern, which character shall be the hero of a novel, Darnay is naturally the hero, for he marries the heroin, Lucy Mannett, but far from the point of view of: Who does the most to advance the plot? Or, Who performs the most heroic act or acts? We should answer Carton. Without the aid of Carton, how could Darnay gotten out of prison? Without the aid of Carton, how could the Mannett family and Darnay made their escape from Paris? To illustrate the fact that without aich a man as Carton the main action could not have gone on, there are many more examples than those above mentioned. But it is not absolutely essential to have such a man as Darnay, i. e., he had no particularly rare characteristics, he was only a man with ordinary characteristics whose place most any man could fill. Of course, he was strong, and kind, and all that, but he did not have such a noble character as Carton, as was shown by Carton sacrificing his life for Darnay. Carton's love for Lucy Mannett was that of a real true friend, and the hero of a romance must always bear this love toward the heroin, and must express it by doing some noble deed; and this is where Darnay does not shine so brightly, for though he loves Lucy dearly, he does not perform any heroic act.

ASPHALT COSTS FULTON $5 TOO MUCH PER TON

So Asserts Commissioner Waters of County Board, and It Goes Undenied

The asphalt row, which has been brewing for some weeks in the Fulton county board of commissioners, broke out afresh at a meeting held Thursday afternoon.

Commissioner T. C. Waters made the statement, which was undenied, that Fulton county is paying $5 more per ton for Bermudez asphalt sold by the Barber Asphalt company, than others are paying for exactly the same material.

Mr. Waters exhibited a letter from an official of the Barber company, making his bid to the Eastern Paving company, of Philadelphia, to furnish Bermudez at $17.50 per ton f. o. b. Maurer, N. J. This bid was made for May 1 of this year, and only a few weeks ago the bid of the same company on the same material was accepted by the majority of the county board at $22.50 per ton f. o. b. Maurer.

The public works committee of the board, Commissioners Smith, Turman and Winn, who have voted to purchase a quantity of the Bermudez at $22.50 per ton, made no answer when Mr. Waters made his statement relative to prices.

The matter was brought up in a discussion of a motion by Mr. Waters that the county in the future purchase its asphalt paving materials upon specifications and through competitive bids, and that in bidders be made to give bond to insure that their material will come up to the county's specifications. A set of specifications, to be made the standard for the county, were included in Mr. Waters' motion. It was finally referred to the public works committee for report.

Captain R. M. Clayton, city engineer, recently declared to the public works committee of the board that he would refuse positively to approve any asphalt paving done in the city limits where the cost of laying was more than $21.75 per ton. The greater part of the material which the county board has voted to order for city paving this year costs more than that figure.

While no reference was made to the city official's defiant statement, Commissioner Waters introduced a resolution to modify the former resolution of the board so that the county would not use any material within the city limits not approved by an ordinance by council. Action on this resolution was deferred until a future meeting.

The majority, Commissioners Smith, Turman and Winn, took definite action in both one asphalt matter at Thursday's meeting. This was the appointment of A. E. Cirlsthill, of Baltimore, Md., as binder paving expert at a salary of $3,000 a year.

The minority, Commissioners Waters and Andersen, favored action by the board to encourage Dan A. Smith, municipal engineers, in establishing a laboratory here for the testing of materials but they were voted down, and Mr. Cirlsthill was employed.

URGE INCREASED PHYSICAL CULTURE APPROPRIATIONS

Dr. Toepel Says the Atlanta Schools Are Lagging Behind in This Regard

A recommendation for a large appropriation for physical culture in the Atlanta public schools will be made to the board of education at its meeting on Thursday, May 29, by Dr. Theodore Toepel, the physical director, who has prepared some interesting statistics to demonstrate the need for a more extensive physical training for the school children.

These statistics will show that in 1899 there were 13,637 pupils enrolled in the Atlanta schools; that in 1906 the enrollment was 14,570, an increase of 1,833; that in 1912 the number of pupils was 23,344, an increase of 8,741, or 62 per cent.

Total expenses of the schools for each of the years named are given as follows: In 1899, $145,173; in 1906, $227,966; in 1912, $373,527. The increase from 1899 to 1906 was $82,827, or 6 per cent, and the increase between 1906 and 1912 amounted to $145,561, or 30 per cent.

Dr. Toepel gives the cost of physical culture for these years as follows: In 1899, $1,300; 1906, $2,200; 1912, $2,565. The increase between 1899 and 1906 being but $900, or 6 per cent, and the increase between 1906 and 1912 being $365, also 6 per cent.

It will be pointed out that the cost per child for physical culture was 8 cents in 1899, 15 cents in 1912, and 9.6 cents in 1912, while the expenses for teaching and training children were as follows: In 1899, $9.56; in 1906, $16.20; in 1912, $33.

Dr. Toepel declares that Atlanta is far behind in its appropriation for physical culture and he will submit statistics to show what other cities are doing in this regard.

WILL GATHER ADDRESSES OF ALL "GEORGIA" BOYS

A campaign has been started by Harrison Jones to raise a fund among the University of Georgia graduates to further the organization of the alumni bureau. Mr. Jones recently having been appointed chairman of the Varsity Alumni society.

He estimates that $2,500 will be needed to start the work. Mr. Jones is a member of the class of 1907, and $200 has been pledged by that class. Voluntary subscriptions to the amount of $400 has been added to help swell the fund. The committee asks each of the 125 members of the alumni to subscribe $20.

To trace the addresses of the 4,000 living alumni of the University of Georgia is the main object of the bureau. There is a great demand for such a list of addresses, which will include both the graduates and matriculates.

The committee on this work is composed of Harrison Jones, Atlanta, chairman; Charles M. Strahan, Athens; A. Pratt Adams, Savannah; George T. Jackson, Augusta, and Thomas W. Connally, Atlanta.

ATLANTA SHRINERS WILL ARRIVE HOME SUNDAY

Large Delegation Is Urged to Meet Them at the Terminal Station

Instead of arriving Saturday night, as was at first reported, Atlanta's delegation of Shriners to the Dallas convention, who have just landed the 1914 conclave for the Gate City, will arrive here Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on the "Yaarab" special.

Every Shriner in Atlanta should be at the Terminal station at that hour to meet the delegates. Each Shriner is requested to wear his fez and to be at the station promptly on time to half those who have done such good work for their city and their state.

Forrest Adair left earlier than the other delegates for home, and will reach Atlanta at 12:40 p. m. Saturday. It is largely through his efforts that Atlanta owes the winning of the 1914 convention.

The drum corps and the Yaarab patrol from the delegation which reaches here Sunday morning. They should receive such an ovation as Atlanta and Atlanta's people know how to accord.

NEGROES MUST HANG GOV. BROWN DECIDES

Governor Brown has declined executive clemency to two negroes confined in the Putnam county jail at Eatonton under sentence to be hanged on Friday, May 23. They are Jake Crawford and Carter Tompkins. Both killed negroes.

Tompkins is to be hanged for having killed Jerry Price, Wesley Davis, another negro, and Price's wife were convicted of being accessories to the murder and given life sentences in the penitentiary.

According to the evidence at the trial and Tompkins' own confession he chopped Price to death with an axe. There was an agreement between Tompkins and Davis, whereby the former was to get Price's wife and the latter was to be allowed the milk from Price's cow if he would assist in the killing.

Judge Fred Foster, of Madison, who represented Tompkins at his trial, made a unique plea for life imprisonment. He admitted that the case was a heinous one and that there were no extenuating circumstances, but told the jury that in all his long years of practice as a lawyer he had never had one of his clients to be hanged. He pleaded that the verdict be guilty with a recommendation to mercy so that his exceptional record might not be broken. Judge Foster also called the jury's attention to the fact that the other defendants had been given life sentences, and it was this latter argument that he used when he sought a commutation from Governor Brown.

HOORAY! CENSORS GO ON JOB TO CUT OUT "SMUT"

Atlanta Ordinance Puts Clean-Up Work on Carnegie Board June 1

After June 1 New York will have nothing on Atlanta in the matter of motion picture show censors, and, incidentally, the duties of the board of trustees of the Carnegie library will be greatly increased.

The ordinance naming the board of trustees of the library as a board of censors and providing its duties has been passed by the city council, approved by the mayor and now is in the hands of the chief of police, who is arranging for its enforcement.

The measure provides that the board shall have jurisdiction over all films exhibited in motion or electrical theaters in Atlanta, and over all vaudeville performances given in these theaters.

The motion picture exhibitors are required to show their films to the board of censors before they are exhibited to the public, and if, in the opinion of the censors, any of the films is harmful to the public morals, decency or welfare, the show proprietor is to be ordered not to put the objectionable film on exhibition. Should the exhibitor violate the order of the board of censors, he will forfeit his license.

In the same way the board is to have jurisdiction over vaudeville performances in the little theaters, and any act or part of an act can be banned by the board.

NO CHORUS SATURDAY; NO ORGAN ON SUNDAY

It has been found necessary to abandon the idea of having a music festival chorus concert Saturday evening for the Presbyterian delegates. It was originally expected by the Music Festival association to hold the concert at the customary hour, from 8 or 8:30 to 10 o'clock. It was found that the only time left open was from about 7:30 to 8, and it was impossible to get the chorus together for that time.

There will not be any free organ concert Sunday afternoon.

From a Man's Point of View

It used to be said that newspaper advertising held very little interest for men. They were too busy, and were quite willing that their wives and mothers and sisters should read advertisements and attend to the household shopping.

That is all different now. At the clubs, in the hotels—wherever men meet—you hear them chatting about the new hats at So-and-So's, or the smart boots at a popular shop, or the splendid and satisfactory service received at a well-known haberdashery.

Many stores make a special effort to plan their merchandising so that men, busy, particular men, may shop conveniently, quickly, and be sure not only of correct and individual apparel, but of painstaking, intelligent and efficient store service. That is what appeals to a man.

Up-and-doing men find much valuable information in the advertising pages of THE JOURNAL every day.

Avoid Grippe, Sore Throat and Similar Troubles by Using S. S. S.

If you have a persistent, nagging bronchial cough beware of cough remedies. They are merely local in action, and if they do relieve it is by the narcotics that do it. What you require is a blood purifier, a searching antidote that removes from the circulation the acid poisons that by their reflexes attack all weakened, susceptible spots and thus create local symptoms. The very best remedy known is Swift's Sure Specific. You will find it on sale in any drug store at $1.00 per bottle. It goes straight into the blood, becomes an internal blood bath, wonderfully stimulates the increase of red corpuscles, cures all the local fever spots and irritations, increases appetite, you take on flesh and feel a wonderful sense of renewed strength. Hundreds of people worried beyond control by cough, pains in the chest, sore throat and constant expectoration of thick mucus have experienced the most wonderful change after using S. S. S. All doubt and apprehension is gone, those peculiar pains and aches vanish, there follows a period of most intense rejoicing to find that worst fears were based entirely upon a mistaken notion that cough and chest pains come from the lungs. These are rheumatic conditions, and you will quickly realize it after using S. S. S. for a few days. Get a bottle of S. S. SHORT COVERING CAUSED THE ADVANCE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed Unchanged to 6 Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 2 points on May, but generally unchanged to 2 points lower, owing to reports of good rains in the western and central belts, and showers in eastern belt sections. Realizing by recent sellers for over the week-end, furnished the market considerable support, but with the official forecasts pointing to further showers or rain, the market gradually easede off to a net loss of 5 or 6 points during the early trading.

Covering was active enough just below 10.90 for October contracts, to steady the market, and prices rallied to within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing. Business became less active and the market was dull at noon with traders waiting for the official weather details for a better view of the situation in the eastern belt.

The market worked three or four points above yesterday's close on July contracts while the new crop recovered all of the early loss owing to the failure to show any general rain, and scattered covering.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 5 to 7 points on good rains in the cotton belt, which were generally regarded as sufficient to do away with all talk of drouth. The weather map also showed seasonable temperatures over the larger part of the cotton region. Bear traders were good sellers on the call and immediately after. Bulls offered little support and buying was chiefly by scalpers on the short side who wanted their profits. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 7 to 8 points down.

During the morning many favorable telegrams were received from widely scattered points in the belt. Southwest Texas reported cotton blooming. Telegrams from Mississippi claimed clean fields and good stands and Georgia and South Carolina sent in accounts which did not confirm recent bullish statements concerning the backwardness of crops. With Liverpool closed all this talk did little to stimulate trade and shorts showed more decire to realize profits than to increase their commitments. At noon prices were 2 to 3 points under yesterday's close.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, May 16.—Local traders and Wall street were sellers early on the map, which showed good rains over central and western belts and showers in the eastern section. But on the decline there was a demand said to be partly from spinners and partly from short covering. The strength in July contributed to the slight rally in the later options. The forecast is for further rains over the belt, but those who are bullishly inclined now are beginning to talk the probability of too much rain in May, which would be unfavorable. At this writing there is a fair demand from the early sellers, but the market is very narrow and does not look as if it would do much either way at present. However, in the next ten days we may expect more activity, due to private forecast of condition figures which will come out on June 2.—Anderson.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: On the eve of more holidays at Liverpool, and harassed by widely varying views as to the character of progress the crop in the aggregate is now making, the American markets reflected a do-nothing disposition. The talent is largely dependent on technical developments for a daily inspiration, and technical developments are now few and far between. The constitutional bear is increasingly inclined to believe that the mental attitude of the actual cotton trade is still being influenced by the very small yields of several years ago. Such a belief in bearish circles is not unnatural at a time when high price people are in position to exhibit adverse reports from the fields every day. Be that as it may the bear now figures that the period of greater consumption than production, which reduced stocks of raw cotton and stocks of manufactured goods to very small figures, generated the belief among manufacturers the world over that sixpence for middling at Liverpool is a low enough price to warrant buying supplies freely. Last season it is argued all the holes made during the period of lean supply were filled and normal relationship between supply and need was re-established. This year production and consumption are not far apart. Thus the legitimate influences that should be created by the relationship between another year's crop and another year's need, should apply. Carrying this argument further, the bear claims that under the influence of adequate supply the fear of raw cotton scarcity will gradually disappear and in the eyes of European millmen, sixpence will begin to seem high. On this belief, of which they make a foundation, the bears are now building the hope that new crop values will decline one or two hundred American points some time during the summer or fall.

Visible supply figures expected to be bearish owing partly to holidays abroad.

Commissioner of agriculture of Georgia denies the report published yesterday that he predicted a bumper crop for Georgia this year; he says his reports indicate poorest prospect for last ten years. There is not fifty per cent of a stand of cotton in the state, and soil too dry all over the state to germinate cotton seed.

Forecast:

Louisiana: Unsettled; showers tonight or Saturday; light southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Unsettled showers tonight or Saturday.

Oklahoma: Tonight and Saturday generally cloudy.

East Texas: Tonight and Saturday unsettled; showers in eastern portion tonight or Saturday; light southerly winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Saturday generally fair.

Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina: Local showers tonight and Saturday.

Kentucky: Generally fair tonight and Saturday.

Tennessee: Local showers tonight or Saturday.

Mississippi: Local showers tonight and Saturday.

Ingeroll, Rait, Wilson, Clearman, Burnett, McGhee and Hess were leading buyers. Flinn, Rothschild, Mitchell, Young, Hicks, Norden, Orvis and Hannman leading sellers. General selling on and after call on scattered rains; prediction for more rain is causing more bearish sentiment.

Market shows considerable resistance in face of favorable map with predictions for further rains. Spot people been buyers of old crop and this may prevent any decline of consequence.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow Jones' summary: New Haven reduces dividend from 2 per cent to 1½ per cent quarterly. Harriman dissolution plan still unsettled following long conference yesterday. Further engagement of $2,000,000 gold for Paris makes total of $33,000,000 taken for that city since January 7. Senate to vote on tariff hearing today. Roosevelt, Sulzer and Hearst to stump together in interest of direct primaries bill. Governor Johnson may sign alien land bill today. Twelve industrials declined .61. Twenty active rails declined .23.

The market failed to respond to declaration of regular dividend on Chesapeake and Ohio and the short interest seemed inclined to increase their commitments rather than cover their contracts. Believe Union Pacific and Southern Pacific plan will be announced next week. If this proves to be correct it will help the speculative situation. The public are doing little and trading is mostly professional. Am inclined to look for a moderate rally.—Potter.

Strength in Union Pacific and Southern Pacific was accounted for by the belief that progress has been made with dissolution plan and whole matter will be cleared up. Canadian Pacific recovered fairly well, but the street was at a loss for explanation of recent activity; one thing is reasonably certain, there is now a large short interest in the stock.

It is expected that Brooklyn Rapid Transit dividend will be increased, traders say A. N. Brady has been a buyer of the stock for past few days.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: A tight situation is developing in all grains for May delivery especially in wheat and oats. There is said to be a fairl ylarge scattered short interest in the former, which may be forced to cover, particularly in view of the good cash demand. A more friendly feeling toward wheat, however, was apparent in the gossip after the close, and while few could give good reasons for a sustained advance, a number believed that purchase made on break to around yesterday's low point would be regarded with moderate profits. Corn specialists continue to look for a narrow range for the deferred futures, but refuse to commit themselves regarding the action of May. July and September are regarded as a safe sale on bulges or an equally safe purchase on breaks. Oats traders figure that if prices can advance 9c despite such bearish influences there is little danger in buying September around 35c with reports already coming in of unfavorable conditions and very little prospects of a bumper crop.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: We are likely to have some new buying and improvement today. Corn—Country does not sem disposed to sell on any decline and receipts continued moderate. Oats—We feel very friendly to the deferred futures on dips. Provisions—Better investment buying of lard and cash trade continues fair; market has a firm undertone.

Fair buying by commission house at opening with Wagner leading buyer of July wheat. Noyes and Jackson and Barertt sold July corn, buying scattered. The May report of the Canadian census and statitsics office says that in Ontario 18 per cent and in Alberta 43.5 per cent of area sown to winter wheat last fall was winter killed. The loss is 261,000 acres, leaving standing for arvest in Canada this year 828,000 acres. The condition of the remaining crop is 82, against 72.6 last year and an average of 87 for the three previous years.

FINANCIAL BUREAU ON STOCKS

NEW YORK May 16.—Financial Bureau says: Advices from Paris indicate that market prospects are better. Wilson will make no compromise on wool and sugar and may veto the bill if the senate ignores his wishes. New York Central will do no financing until fall. We would take the trading position with preference given to purchases on fair recessions in better grade of stocks.

Saving and Investing

HOW IT AFFECTS THE EMPLOYER.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

In Massachusetts the building and loan association is called a co-operative bank, and is under the supervision of the state's banking department. A Boston financial paper has recently started to print a series of articles about these banks, and they are directed especially to the employers of labor.

It is a good idea. If every man who pays wages to another let it be known that he preferred workers who would keep out of debt, and who would make an effort to acquire a home, and then let every one who worked for him know that he would back such an employe to the limit, the quality of workmanship would improve, and both the workers and the employers would make more money.

This isn't theory. It is fact. Here is a case: Jones, a Boston manufacturer, employed Hobbs as a salesman. Hobbs was a hustler, who brought business when he worked, but who had a habit of sacrificing two or three days a month getting drunk and sobering up directly after getting his pay. He was always in debt.

One day Jones called Hobbs in and said that he would keep him in his employ only on one condition.

"What's that?" asked Hobbs.

"It's this," said Jones. "Every week. I shall take $5 of your pay and put it aside. Every month, I shall deposit the money in a co-operative bank. You are not to touch that money as long as you remain unmarried and work for me."

"But, my debts—how can I spare—"

"Pay 'em somehow—and let me see that bankbook every month."

That was all—no lecture on the evils of drinking, no aphorisms. The other day Hobbs brought the bank book to Jones and showed $800 on deposit. And his only comment was:

"And I don't even get thirsty when I look at it."

THE WEATHER.

Forecast till 7 p. m. Saturday:

Atlanta and vicinity: Showers tonight and Saturday.

Georgia and Alabama: Local showers tonight and Saturday.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The northern storm is central over the upper St. Lawrence valley and another disturbance has advanced from the Canadian northwest to North Dakota. Generally cloudy weather, with rain, is reported in the cotton belt. Copious rains fell at a great many places in Texas and lighter precipitation as far east as the south Atlantic coast. In Georgia light showers fell at Macon, Augusta and Savannah, but none at Atlanta. The heaviest rains during the past 24 hours were Meridian, Miss., 1.52 inches, Palestine, 1.06, Galveston 1.12, San Antonio 1.90, Taylor, Tex., 2.82, and Shreveport, La., 1.02.

Conditions are still favorable for showers in Georgia tonight or Saturday.

Generally fair weather prevails over the Rocky Mountain and Plateua regions except the extreme northern portion.

Temperatures are high in the south and east and near or slightly below 40 degrees along the northern border of the country.

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Beet Sugar, Copper and Erie Led Advance

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—The reduction in the New Haven dividend rate from 8 per cent to 6, announced after the close yesterday, having been fully discounted, there was a better market for the stock at the opening today and on the first transaction it rose a point, to 106. Trading was more active and though changes were irregular, a majority of the active issues were higher. Union Pacific and Amalgamated were in good demand and gained large fractions.

Support to influential stocks caused the market to turn decidedly upward, despite a reaction of 1½ in New Haven. Canadian Pacific, Amalgamated and the Harriman shares improved a point.

After two days of moderate bear selling and declining prices, traders on the short side were fearful of over-extending the movement and bought back stocks they sold yesterday. The improvement was assisted by rise of Americans in London. Suspension of recent forced liquidation of minor stocks helped create better sentiment. Bonds irregular. St. Louis and San Francisco refunding 4's made a new low record of 72.

Speculative favorites, such as Reading and Union Pacific worked still higher after midday, but the great mass of stocks were neglected. Selling of stocks and bonds of some southern and middle western railroads apparently indicated resumption of liquidation.

Purchases by the shorts seemed to have been satisfied by the time the active features had risen about a point beyond yesterday's closin. The tone continued stron despite meagerness of the demand.

Rising prices marked the limited business of tf the lsst hour. Pressure was evident against half a dozen low priced stocks which recently had been liquidated quite freely. Standard stocks ended the day with advices ranging from ½ to 2 points.

Closed firm.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 16.—Weather developments over night were very favorable. The map shows splendid general rains over the western two-thirds of the belt and rather general showers in the eastern states. The rainfall was copious in central and south Texas, where it will prove particularly beneficial. Indications are for clearing weather in the west, continued cloudy and more showers in the central and eastern states.

Liverpool is closed today and will also be closed tomorrow. In the way of politics, the speech of the president of France, that the retention in the army of the soldiers whose term expired this year was urgent and inevitable in consequence of the European situation, and statements in financial organs that continental powers are hoarding gold for war reserves attracted attention. The market opened a few points easier and weakened to within a few points of 11 cents for new crops. The selling pressure, however, was not great. The opinion that 11 cents is the point of resistance seems widely held. However, the present rainfall, coming so much before May 25, should raise the condition average of the bureau report, which will be published June 2. Trading settled around 11.04 for October. A bearish visible statement is expected for the afternoon.

NEW YORK STOCK LETTER

NEW YORK, May 16.—While dullness continues stocks have firmer undertone on belief that the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific dissolution plan will shortly be announced in a tangible form that will be satisfactory to all of the corporations concerned and will meet the requirements of the courts. This should produce a change in sentiment.—Potter.

$60,000,000 "Melon"

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—Prospects of a $60,000,000 "melon" caused a rise today of 23 points in the shares of the Standard Oil company. A special meeting of shareholders was called for June 5 to vote on a proposed increase in capital stock from $15,000,000 to $75,000,000, the new stock to be divided among present holders by a 400 per cent stock dividend.

WHEAT IN CHICAGO WAS FIRM ALL THE SESSION

Wheat Closed 3-8 to 1c Up, Corn and Oats Higher, Provisions Lower

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, May 16.—Prospect of small Russian shipments this week had a bullish effect on wheat. Opened same as last night to ⅛c up. July started at 88c to 88⅛@88¼c, unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher, and rose to 88⅜@88½c.

Assertions that the sight draft controversy which has hindered exports would be settled in twenty-four hours helped wheat. Closed steady, with July ⅝c net higher at 88⅝c.

Corn advanced on decrease of stock on hand here. July, which opened a shade to ⅛c up, at 55⅝@55¾c to 55⅞c, climbed to 56⅛@56¼c.

Corn cloesd steady at 56c for July, ⅜c above last night.

Scantiness of rains made oats shorts rush to cover. July started 1-16c to ⅛@¼c higher, at 35⅝c to 36c, and ascended to 36⅛c.

Provisions eased off on scattered demand. First transactions varied from last night's level to 2½c down, with July as follows: Pork, $19.35; lard, $10.90; ribs, $11.12½.

MODERN MILLER - NGRAIN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 16.—There are complaints from some sections of the winter wheat belt of lack of moisture, but reports do not indicate that the crop has suffered to any extent. In some of the drouth-stricken localities timely rains have fallen and relieved danger of damage almost to harvest time. As a rule, crop continues to make healthy and rapid progress to maturity. Indications are for an early harvest as the plant is heading in the southern part of the wheat country and crop should be ready for harvesting by June 15 to July 1.

A reading from Uncle Remus is one of the new features which will please. Of course, the lemonade from Thimble Finger Well, the goodies from Tar Baby Booth, and Brer Rabbit in gingerbread are sure to give delight.

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

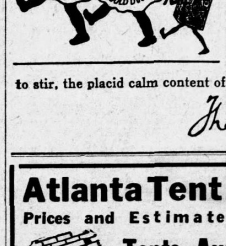

ONE day, when Mr. Jones returned with what his weekly toil had earned, he found his little wife in tears and mood not suited to her years. It seemed the cook had bade "adieu," likewise the washerwoman, too.

Gold Dust as Strike Breaker

At first within the House of Jones there followed sad despondent moans. No hopeful word could reconcile, no honied kiss inspire a smile. "I never knew before" said she, "how horrid household cares could be."

"Upon my word I'm up at six and working still as midnight ticks. I scrub and run and wash and shine to keep the little things in line, and yet around me here and there I see undone another share. I almost feel as if I'd like to join the other ones on Strike. Some morning try it—get a mop; go through from cellar to the top, and I will venture you must see, the greater burdens fall on me."

Another "Reform Movement"

Now Mr. Jones was passing wise and later, sprang a glad surprise. Through friends who praised the "GOLD DUST WAY," he brought a package home one day.

From tears to sunshine, Wifey now has found the good of "Knowing How" and striking servants fail to stir, the placid calm content of her.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

"WHAT would you suggest as the best evening gown for summer for a woman with a moderate income?" was the question put to a well known dressmaker.

"White lace," was the prompt answer.

She went on to explain that lace was immensely in fashion; that it had a distinction and therefore gave an air of good judgment and quiet elegance; it was not like a color, which could easily be remembered by one's public; it was cool in summer and yet available for winter.

And this is true of a white lace gown. It takes the place in summer that an all black gown takes for the rest of the year. Every woman wants to wear white when the hot twilight falls and yet she does not wish to go to the extravagance of white chiffon or satin or tulle and spangles for a social affair; neither does she wish to indulge in that common economy of wearing ragged winter finery through the less socially important summer nights.

Far better a home made white batiste or net gown with a colored girdle and a loose lace collar than a soiled gray satin covered with yards of torn tulle from which innumerable gilt spangles have been dropped on the highway of pleasure.

This is a piece of wisdom in good dressing that should be written in red ink and hung on a woman's wardrobe so that she would be reminded of its truth whenever she attempted to wear the bedraggled glory of a past season.

While it is true that white net gowns are at the top of fashion, they are not as formal as white lace ones, and women haye found out that social gaiety does not die in this country with the passing of frost.

The comfort of a lace frock is that it does not easily soil and wrinkle, and therefore arrives at its journey's end in a condition to be worn. It packs easily and cleans easily, and if one becomes weary of its lack of color there is no lack of variety in the ways in which it can be enlivened.

A brilliant girdle, a single splendid flower, one of those new Callot draperies of colored tulle or chiffon caught at the shoulders with an ornament and hanging down the back with tassels as weights are among the several methods of giving diversity to a colorless gown.

What to Line It With.

NATURALLY white lace must have a lining and the choice of it is a bit of a puzzle. If it is of thick satin, durable for long wear as well as much cleaning, then one instantly makes the gown uncomfortably warm for hot evenings. Again, one debates whether to mount the lace over white or a color, and some women rather like the idea advanced at the French races two years ago of using a black chiffon lining.

These things must be decided by the individual, but there is something exceedingly satisfying about an all-white lining. It gives one the chance to use it as a background if necessary to other colors, but when one uses a lining in color then the gown is necessarily doomed to remain true to it throughout its life.

If white, and if not satin, then what? Messaline is the first choice of the dressmakers, who sometimes call it by other names. True, it is very thin, but it wears far better than any one thinks who has not handled it. Even the conservative woman would not object to its translucency, because with the lace over it and a fancy petticoat of net under it the effect achieved is opaque enough.

The lace gowns are made with simple drapery, and the empire waist, which is more apparent in evening gowns this season than it has been for three years, is accentuated by a folded girdle of tulle or chiffon in white or color with an ornament high up on the left side. In this ornament is shown much of the skill of the designer. It may be a single satin rose or one o' stuff tulle edged with satin or a buckle of tiny blossoms sewed to soft silk or an empire wreath of gold or silver flowers.

From any one of these ornaments may hang long streamers weighted by tassels, if one likes dangling ornaments in front. The girdle may end at the back instead of at the left front, although the effect is much more unfashionable and the accentuation of the high large waist demanded today is not so marked. It is difficult to reason out why this directoire and empire waist came in with so much favor for evening gowns at a time when the lowered waist was exaggerated on street suits and one-piece frocks; but whatever the cause behind the effect the latter is exceedingly good.

The lifted waist line without fullness is becoming to the majority of women, and especially so now that the fashionable silhouette emphasizes the square dimensions of the front of the waist, which appears to be padded. In truth, the dressmakers say that it is padded in many cases in order to supply any deficiency in nature.

The Chiffon Lining

IF a woman does not wish to have the dead white effect from shoulder to heel she can use a faint-colored chiffon lining to give color. Turquoise blue, rose pink and canary yellow, also Nile green, are among the tones which are most satisfactory in summer weather. She can place a ruffle of these on the white satin foundation to break the figure or she can use a drapery of it beneath the lace to come out at the edges and swirl around the figure.

PAULINE FREDERICKS.

Miss Fredericks is the star of "Joseph and His Brethren," the great Biblical pageant which is being shown at the Century theater, New York. In it she portrays the character of the lovely temptress Zuleika.

Miss Fredericks, who is a Boston girl, made her first hit in "The Fourth Estate." She withdrew from that cast in the midst of the season to wed Frank Andrews, millionaire builder of the great McAlpin hotel, Gotham's biggest hostelry.

That was two years ago. Now married life palls on her, she says. So she has come back to the stage "forever," as she declares.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit had quite lost his appetite. When Peter forgets to eat you may be sure Peter has something very important to think about. At least he has something on his mind that he thinks is important. The fact is Peter had fully made up his mind to change his name. Yes, sir, that is just what Peter Rabbit was planning to do. He thought Peter Rabbit too common a name, but when he tried to think of a better one he found that no name that he could think of really pleased him any more. So he thought and he thought and he thought and he thought. And the more he thought the less appetite he had.

Once Peter thought of going up to Johnny Chuck's house in the far corner of Farmer Brown's old orchard and asking Johnny to help him decide on a new name. He even started, but somehow he had a feeling that Johnny Chuck would just laugh at him and call him foolish, and so he once more settled own in the old briar-patch to think.

Now Jimmy Skunk was the only one to whom Peter had told how discontented he was with his name, and it was Jimmy who had suggested to Peter that he change it. Jimmy thought it a great joke and he straightway passed the word along among all the little meadow and forest people that Peter Rabbit was going to change his name. Everybody laughed and chuckled over the thought of Peter Rabbit's foolishness and they planned to have a great deal of fun with Peter as soon as he should tell them his new name.

Peter was sitting on the edge of his old briar-patch one morning when Ol' Mistah Buzzard passed, flying low. "Good mo'ning, Br'er Cottontail," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard with a twinkle in his eye.

At first Peter din't understand that Ol' Mistah Buzzard was speaking to him, and by the time he did it was too late to reply, for Ol' Mistah Buzzard was way, way up in the blue, blue sky. "Cottontail, Cottontail," said Peter over and over to himself, and began to smile. Every time he said it he liked it better.

"Cottontail, Peter Cottontail! How much better sounding that is than Peter Rabbit. That sounds as if I really was somebody. Yes, sir, that's the very name I want. Now I must send word to all my friends that hereafter I am no longer Peter Rabbit, but Peter Cottontail."

Peter kicked up his heels in just the funny way he always di when he was pleased. Suddenly he remembeerd that such a fine long high-sounding name as Peter Cottontail demanded dignity. So he stopped kicking up his heels and began to practice putting on airs. But first he called to the Merry Little Breezes and told them about his change of name and asked them to tell all his friends that in the future he would not answer to the name of Peter Rabbit, but only to the name of Peter Cottontail. He was very grave and earnest and important as he explained it to the Merry Little Breezes. The Merry Little Breezes kept their faces straight while he was talking, but as soon as they had left him to carry his message they burst out laughing. It was such a joke!

"Peter Rabbit's changed his name.
In the future without fail
You must call him, if you please,
Mr. Peter Cottontail."

While they were doing this Peter was back in the old briar-patch practicing new airs and trying to look very high and mighty and important as became one with such a fine sounding name as Peter Cottontail.

SUMMER USES FOR CRETONNE

With the increased liking for French schemes of interior decorating has come an increased use of chintz and cretonne, for these are fabrics which can be used to good advantage in developing French ideas. The bodroom furniture of enameled wood and bamboo caning almost demands a background of chintz hung windows and walls, and the gray enameled furniture of French design is best shown off when it is lightened by bright colored cretonne.

Cottage furniture of wicker or willow also calls for a liberal use of cretonne in the form of cushions for seats and backs. One attractive living room set of gray enameled wicker furniture is finished with cretonne cushions of an imported material with a gray linen background, figured in deep blue and touched up with an occasional spot of bright red and yellow.

For the cretonne decorated bedroom there is hardly a single article of furniture which is not fitted with cretonne in some form or other. A door bag for shoes, a wide mouthed laundry bag, a mending bag, a workbox, covers for table, bureau and dressing table, pincushions and curtains and bedspreads, or at least strips on swiss covers and spreads, all find a place in such a room. The ideal wall covering for a room elaborately furnished in figured cretonne or chintz is a plain one. A single toned, rough or smooth plaster, an invisible stripe or two toned stripe or a plain cartridge paper are all good backgrounds for the figures of the chintz.

Wide, heavy Cluny lace is used to edge round table covers of cretonne. The edge of the cretonne is turned under with a raw edge and the lace is whipped on by hand with heavy linen thread. The cretonne of course could be rolled, but this finish is somewhat bulky and ifficult to handle. Table covers made in this way in different sizes can be used throughout the different rooms and so help keep the whole house in harmony.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Frivolous Mrs. Fairlee

After the farewell reception tendered the Ridgeleys in the church parlors and their departure from Thorold the attention of the members of the congregation of All Saints' naturally turned to the arrival of the new rector and his wife. They had met the Rev. Warren Fairlee when he delivered his trial sermon several weeks before, and that he had at once received a call to Thorold spoke eloquently of the impression then created.

It now remained to be seen if Mrs. Fairlee was eligible for the pedestal upon which they had always kept Mrs. Ridgeley, who had been an indefatigable worker and diplomatic to a high degree, and, therefore, extremely popular. Never could it be said that Mrs. Ridgeley was "altogether too dressy for a minister's wife," or so shabby genteel as to lead one to believe All Saints' behind in its rector's salary."

It was with this model in view that the eyes of the congregation turned to the rector's pew on the Sunday after Mrs. Fairlee's arrival. Mr. Fairlee was a man in the forties. The Mrs. Fairlee they saw was a mere girl with a happy, childish face, and looked as if she had just stepped out of the latest fashion book. Of course, it was decided at once that she must be frivolous.

No one noticed the rapt attention on the small face as she listened to her husband's first sermon, even when he asked "his people" to bear with the many mistakes he was bound to make while their rector.

Frivolous the members of the congation styled her that first Sunday, and added to it sadly woeful after the first meeting of the ladies' aid, when a matter of importance was being discussed.

For many months the young people who worked in the factories and lived in the factory district had been a problem to the church societies of Thorold. Thorold prided itself on being a particularly moral town. No vicious summer gardens or dance halls had ever crept within its gates. But separated from it by a narrow river was the "wide open" town of Darleigh, an absolute nightmare to the inhabitants of Thorold. Here the young people from the factories spent their evenings, and in many cases their Sundays. The ladies' aid of All Saints' had taken up the matter and were discussing ways and means to offset the evil upon the occasion of Mrs. Fairlee's initial visit.

She sat, a quiet little figure, sewing industriously on work given her, to all of them apparently an indifferent listener, though, had they but known it, the eyes, bent upon the flying needle, were bright and eager, and when at last the president, having talked for some minutes upon a plan to set aside two evenings in the week to have the girls from the factories at the church parlors to listen to Bible readings and lectures, as in duty bound, asked the opinion of her rector's wife, Mrs. Fairlee's head was lifted swiftly, and there was a glow on her cheeks as she answered quickly:

"I think your plan to invite them to the church parlors is just fine, Mme. President, but I don't believe your program would be very alluring." In the pause which followed shocked eyes were turned upon her, and she continued hurriedly: "Perhaps you don't realize the drudgery in the lives of the factory girls, the awful sameness. Perhaps you've never seen it, but I have. I've been there with Mr. Fairlee. I know the girls want and must have amusement in the evenings. They don't want lectures. Most of them would go to sleep. If we want to win them away from the environment across the river, let them dance in our church parlors, if they want to; let them bring their young men; let us provide amusement. The lectures will take care of themselves when we have won their confidence."

Mrs. Fairlee seemed unconcerned.

Quite audible objections cut in on her, but she added, with a short touch that had pathos in it, before the president spoke, "I'm sorry you think my way so dreadful, but I can't look at it in any other light. Young lives are not long young, at the best, and the girls down there seem like little old women. I don't blame them for going where they can get little gleams of pleasure. I'd go myself if I were in their shoes, and—and—so would all of you."

There was a tense silence for a moment as Mrs. Fairlee, looking more girlish than ever in her flushed emotion, hurled her challenge at them, then the older members of the society, sad disapproval in their glances, decided to let the matter stand until the next meeting.

Before night closed in on Thorold every one in the parish knew of Mrs. Fairlee's "worldly" views on the rescuing of the factory girls, and, with few exceptions, every one set the stamp of disapproval on the childish wife of their rector. The few exceptions, the younger, more progressive men of the church, informed their irate wives that Mrs. Fairlee showed "good common sense," and that it was about time the rest of them woke up and tried to live up to the times.

However, the turmoil aroused in the bosoms of various families over Mrs. Fairlee's radical views was pushed into the background when Thorold learned one day that in the factory district there was a terrible bother of scarlet fever. The controversy as to the spiritual welfare of the young people down there turned at once to the material. And in this the Rev. Warren Fairlee was the most tireless worker.

All Saints' was proud of him; but many a bitter glance went his wife's way as she made her afternoon trips to the post-office garbed in the most fetching of spring costumes, smiling her pretty, slow smile, just as though her husband was not in the midst of danger, sickness and death. And every morning when she bade him good-by on their veranda, the neighbors, watching, reported that Mrs. Fairlee seemed as unconcerned as if he were going to a morning service.

Even when it was known that the fever showed no spreading beyond the stopping point, and at the ladies' aid there was not another subject touched on, Mrs. Fairlee made little comment. And when a member tartly asked her if she had nothing to say about it, if she was not "scared to eath" to have her husband in the midst of it, the gray eyes were raised very calmly.

"Do you think it would help my husband any to become scared to death?" she asked simply. "Does it help any one to keep the subject constantly in our minds, to talk of nothing else?"

The next day Thorold learned that the town's one visiting nurse, who had gone to the scene of the epidemic, had broken down. Sympathy not only for her was expressed, but for Mr. Fairlee in losing his "right hand man," as he styled her, and many a question was put to Mrs. Fairlie as she did her marketing that morning. Her answers were very brief. It was all very sad; yes, she had not seen Mr. Fairlee since the collapse of the nurse. Really, she did not know just what would be done. She moved serenely away under black looks, seemingly little concerned; yet, that evening at sundown, there was no indifference in the brisk figure in the long black cloak that turned into the factory district.

A few hours later Thorold heard with unbelieving ears that frivolous Mrs. Fairlee had taken the place of the wornout nurse—a place she never gave up until the factory district was well on the way to be handed a clean bill of health.

Then, when she was round among them again, the girlish color slightly faded, the gray eyes rather tired, the congregation in twos and three came to her, almost timidly, and told her frankly what they had at first thought of her in her girlishness and fondness for frills and furbelows, but of how in the last few weeks, they had come to adore her. She only laughed softly at first much as she had when the factory girls were under discussion, completely ignoring flattering tributes as she said, quietly:

"But I'm afraid I'll be shocking you all the time, because I'm going to keep as young as I can all my life. It's right that I should do my duty. And I know I shall always like pretty things. I think, though," her face became suddenly grave, "even so, it will be given me to try to do good always."

There was no question of that in the minds of the townspeople, as the summer evenings found the factory girls, different groups of them each evening, sitting on the Fairlees' veranda talking with Mrs. Fairlee, who had done such a "wonderful thing" for them, watching her with worshipping eyes or walking about her garden with her while she examined her flowers. They were seeing life that summer, as girlish Mrs. Fairlee talked to them, in a new, beautiful light, and it came to be that an hour with her there in her garden was more to them than many hours spent in the glitter across the river.

And when fall came, with its nights closing in swiftly and there was no more sitting on the veranda or strolling in the garden, it was the president of the ladies' aid who announced that Mrs. Fairlee's "splendid plan" of making the church parlors a social center during the winter for the young people of the factory district had been unanimously adopted.

ATLANTA TO BE SHOWN IN MOTION PICTURES

Edison Company Here to Make Films of City and Nearby Territory

Atlanta and the surrounding territory will in a short time be shown to the rest of the world in moving pictures, Charles M. Seay, former Georgian and now state director of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and his company are in Atlanta for that purpose.

In the company are such motion picture celebrities as Miss Maybelle Truncle, Miss Bliss Milford, Herbert Prior, Harry Beaumont, William West, Arthur Housman and Charles Gilson.

While here the company will make four "story" pictures and three "scenics." The former will be pictorial dramas with Georgia backgrounds and the latter will be scenes of Atlanta, of the historic battlefields around it, and the mountains and their strange mountaineer population.

It is Mr. Seay's purpose to take his actors among these scenes and people so that the final presentation shall be lifelike.

Mr. Seay says that Atlanta and its territory offer as picturesque and interesting possibilities as any other, and he believes they will afford an altogether new presentation of the south.

Use Cottolene for cooking

When you shorten or fry your food with butter it is needless extravagance. Butter is too expensive for use anywhere but on your table. If butter were really better, would produce better results in cooking, you would be justified in using it, but it won't. Cottolene is fully the equal of butter for shortening; it is better for frying. It makes food rich, but not greasy, because it heats to a higher temperature than lard or butter, and cooks so quickly that the fat has no chance to "soak in." Cottolene is more healthful than lard, and you only need to use two-thirds as much as you would of either butter or lard.

When you stop to consider that the price of Cottolene is no more than the price of lard you can readily figure out what a saving its use in your kitchen means.

Georgia Announces Ready and Tech Jackets Are in Shape

EUBANKS AND CORLEY WORK FRIDAY'S BATTLE

Georgia Here to Win Both Games While Tech Will Be Satisfied With One Victory as It Wins Series

GAME TO BE STARTED PROMPTLY AT 3:30

Tech may manage to nose out a very close win from the Georgia baseball nine in the big game at Grant field Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and then again the Red and Black bunch from Athens might jump on the Tech hurlers and pound out a very large score. You know it is the way of these Jacket-Georgia battles to come out unexpectedly and there is no dopester in the wide, wide world able to form any fair conclusion as to how the two battles here will terminate.

In the two games in Athens last week the Jackets got away with a double victory and Coach Cunningham has his Geeorgia bunch here to get revenge. He wants both games or nothing for it will take that for his bunch to make a good showing in the series. One game lost and Tech wins the series, something which no other S. I. A. A. outfit has been able to do all year.

For Tech "Smooey" Eubanks will do the flinging with Corley working for the bunch from Athens. These two boys fought out the first game in Athens last week and Eubanks was the winner. Both the good hurlers for youngsters and there is bound to be a mighty good game here this week when the two get together.

Tech will use the same line-up which worked so well in the games in Athens while the Georgia outfit will present a greatly changed batting order. Timon Bowden, the hard hitting catcher of last season, will also be seen in action, taking the right field position. A big shake up has also been made n the battng order of the Georga nine, Harrison having been shoved far down the batting list, with Henderson and Hutchens in the clean-up places near the top.

CONCERT AS STARTER.

he crowd will certainly be on hand long before time for the game to get under way. Improvised seats have been placed around the field and a big crowd can be accommodated. he eld is in great shape and fast ball can bfie expected.

Half an hour before time for the game to get under way the Tech band will give a concert. This music rendering bunch has worked hard all season and is now able to turn out good music. This concert gets under way at 3 o'clock.

Harris Cope, coach of the Sewanee football teams, has been selected as umpire. He has had much experience in such hot college games and is expected to make good.

No More Games For Georgians

ATHENS, Ga., May 16.—Although the Red and Black have received a challenge from the Texas Longhorns, as champions of the southwest, and a series on the proposed dates, June 7, 9 and 10, would be of great interest to fandom, there seems little probability that it will come about.

Cunningham states "no post-season games." In the past month there has been some talk about a series with Yale by those who wish to see the south compared with the rest of the country, but the Georgia coach quelled this rumor. He has put his team through a regular big league schedule, playing all the teams of consequence in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association and defeating Washington and Lee, the champions of the South Atlantic region, invading the west and defeating Michigan Agricultural and Mechanical, and losing to Ohio Wesleyan and Michigan.

He says his difficulty has been too great to keep the men on edge for such a season, and that a post-season series, from the point of view of the boys, would be injurious.

The south turns out some of the best college baseball teams in the country, and if more games were played between teams in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association, and teams in other college circles, the south would probably have more recognition in athletics than she gets.

Lanett Club Wins

WEST POINT, Ga., May 16.—The Lanett cotton mills defeated the strong Langdale club by the score of 12 to 0, in a very one-sided game featured by the hitting and fielding of the Lanett club. Holiday, for Lanett, struck out seventeen and allowed two nits Batteries: Ianett, Holiday and Snell; Langdale, James and Wilson.

The Lanett club issues a challenge to any club in Alabama or Georgia. For games write V. S. Rutland, Box 38, West Point, Ga.

COBB HITS LIKE FIEND

The major league dopesters are inclined to say that Tyrus Cobb hurt his chances of being the leading batter of the country when he held out so long, but a glance at his work tends to disprove this argument. In the past three games he has made 8 hits in 11 times to the bat, his work being largely responsible for many Detroit wins.

RIVAL CAPTAINS IN BIG GAME

DAN M'GUGIN RESPONSIBLE FOR PAUL DICKEY'S PLAY

"Football of the present day is more scientific than some eight to ten years ago and at the same time it is far more fluky which serves to make it more interesting to the spectators," says Paul Dickey, the ex-Michigan athlete who is now starring at the Forsyth in a most unique vaudeville stunt. Dickey played football back at the college made famous by Hurry-Up Yost in 1903-4-5 when the rules allowed the tandem and flying wedge without any forward passing.

"Back in my days at school while speed counted for a great deal it was the old strength and staying qualities which won the games," says Dickey. "If you had a few men who could tear a hole in the line most any backfield man could easily gain ground but now it is different. The scattered defense is used while on the offense you find all sorts of forward passes and other tricks calculated to gain many yards or lose some few.

"I happened to play on the same eleven with the famous Billy Heston and Daniel McGugin, who is now coach at Vanderbilt. Both of these boys were great players and at inspiring confidence into a team McGugin had the world beaten to a frazzle. And in that lies his remarkable success as a coach. While Heston made a grand name for himself he was not the best team man in the world, his greatest plays being more of the individual kind.

"It was Dan McGugin who took me on my first visit to the mysterious widow at Ann Arbor and from this my present play is written. It was Dan who pretended to have been shot and as it was my Freshman year you can imagine how I felt. I remembered it until leaving school and then wrote a play, which is certainly true to college life."

HOW GAMES WERE WON

In the game yesterday between St. Louis and Brooklyn ex-Southern leaguers were the brilliant stars. Out of the fifteen hits that Brooklyn got these men got ten of them. Out of four times up Red Smith got four hits. Daubert and Wheat got three apiece out of four times at the plate. Brooklyn finally got the game by the score of 8 to 6.

The pitching of Falkenberg was the feature of the game yesterday between Cleveland and Philadelphia. Falkenberg let down the all-star team with three hits and no runs. This is his seventh straight victory. He was in great shape and pitched one of the prettiest games of the season.

Frank Chance and his team of Highlanders lost their first game played in the peerless leader's home town, Chicago. Chance and his team were cheered as they went on the field and the work of the Highlanders was given a warm reception by Chicago friends of Chance. The game was a pitchers' battle between Scott and Schulz, the final score being 3 to 2 in favor of Chicago.

It took the Phillies an extra inning yesterday to finally cop the big end of the score in their game with the Cubs. Zimmerman was the batting star of the fray, getting three long hits out of five times up. Philadelphia got thirteen hits, while the Chicago boys got only ten, the final score being 6 to 5.

The fielding and batting of old reliable Hans Wagner was the feature of the game between Pittsburg and New York. He made two singles and a home run out of five times up. His fielding was superb and the final score was 7 to 2 in favor of the Pirates. There seems to be no chance of the mighty shortstop weakening.

It took the Scouts sixteen innings to down the Indians yesterday in Savannah. The game ended 2 to 1 in favor of Jacksonville after the battle had gone for seven extra boxes. Savannah got fourteen hits and made seven errors, while the Jacksonville boys got only eight hits, but made only one error.

The home run of Callahan was the feature of the game yesterday which the Vols took from the Gulls by the score of 8 to 2. This is the third home run that Callahan has gotten during the present series. He knocked the ball over the fence with two men on. Daley also made a beautiful feature of a long drive while he was backed against the fence.

Boys From Tuscaloosa Have Put Up Good Game All Year With Few Defeats

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., May 16.—Alabama wishes to protest against Georgia or any S. I. A. A. college claiming the southern baseball championship at this early date. From the records we find that Alabama and Georgia undoubtedly stand at the head, both teams having played just about the same number of S. I. A. A. games to date. Georgia has two more to play with Georgia Tech and Alabama has three more to play with Vanderbilt, on the 26th and 27th.

Now Alabama has only lost two S. I. A. A. games the whole season, while Georgia has already lost four. Alabama easily defeated Georgia Tech and Mercer, while Tech may defeat Georgia, and Mercer defeated Tech, therefore if Tech defeats Georgia this should surely offset Alabama's defeat at the hands of Georgia. Should Tech defeat Georgia in their series and Alabama defeat Vanderbilt, surely there will be no question of Alabama ranking first in the S. I. A. A. If Georgia Tech and Alabama defeats Vanderbilt then Alabama will have won more games than Georgia from S. I. A. A. colleges and should still have the S. I. A. A. championship.

TODAY

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—Price or Chappelle will be Manager Smith's choice for the opening game today. He has not yet decided as to which of the two will go in, but the chances are that Price will pitch the opening battle for the Crackers. Of late Price has been going good and the Cracker manager is looking to him to get the jump on the Pelican batsmen and make a getaway with the series. Luck is about due to change for the Crackers and as they have been outplaying the other teams so far on the road, it seems highly probable that with an even break of the stuff called luck, they should get by with an even break if not the series.

Either McIntyre or Wilson will be on the mound for the locals.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—The Nashville baseball club reached Montgomery this morning on a delayed train from Mobile to play a series of three games with the local team. Manager Schwartz will use McManus or Fleharty in the box with Noyes to receive in today's game.

For Montgomery, Case or E. Brown will pitch and Gribbens catch. The weather is clear and warm.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—Chattanooga and Memphis begin here today a series of four games. Manager Bernhardt is undecided whether he will use Harrell, Persons or Newton in today's contest. All three are ready for work and the one showing the best form in the warming-up will be selected. Seabough wil catch for the locals. Chattanooga will send in More and Street as their battery.

MOBILE, Ala., May 16.—Heinie Berger, with Brown behind the bat, will work for Mobile in the first game with Birmingham today, in event Cavet has not recovered sufficiently from his recent indisposition. Hardgrove wilp itcn for Birmingham with Mayer at the receiving end. It is raining during the early morning hours.

PITCHER DENT BOUGHT; ATLANTA MEETS PELS

Crackers Moved From Memphis Down to New Orleans for Three Games

The Atlanta club has just one more series to go through with before finishing the hardest road trip of the present season. The last three games will be played in New Orleans, the club getting home Monday to open with the Memphis Turtles.

The first long road trip is always the hardest of the year and the local outfit is to be congratulated at doing as well as it has. Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery and Memphis have been played and the result has been 5 wins and 11 defeats. This sounds decidedly bad, yet it is not half bad when you stop to consider that the first road trip is the bugaboo of all ball clubs and despite the poor percentage the club has played fair ball all the way.

All that is now needed to make the trip a fairly successful one is two wins out of the three games in New Orleans. This will bring the Crackers home with 7 wins and 12 defeats, with the bunch just about in second place. Should the outfit finish with a percentage better than the half way mark things will be all right.

Elliott Dent, Last Season in International, Joins Local Club

Manager Billy Smith has already begun to strengthen his team in the pitching department. He has purchased Righthander Dent from the Washington Senators and Dent will report to the team in New Orleans. This man was not released outright by Manager Griffith, but was only sold conditionally. He is a good pitcher and had a good record in the International league where he was a star lost year with the Newark, New Jersey team.

Manager Smith has confirmed the rumor that he was bought and that he will report in New Orleans. Dent left Detroit last night. Catcher DeVoght has refused to come south to play ball and Manager Smith states that the deal is now off. This means that the local magnate will have to be on the outlook for another receiver in other parts. The local management are making every effort to get the team in tip top shape by the time that it reaches local grounds and have the pitching staff so renovated that there will not always be a big blow in the seventh after the game is practically won. Every effort is being made and when the team arrives at Ponce de Leon there will be several changes that will greatly aid the winning streak that is expected to begin in New Orleans today.

Finally Took Memphis Game

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—In the longest drawn out game of the season, Atlanta yesterday took the game from the Turtles by the score of 6 to 4. Although the game was interesting and exciting, the play all the way through was especially slow. Wallie Smith was the brilliant star of the game and really saved the day for Atlanta when in the ninth he made a sensational stab of a line drive with two men on bases.

Musser was on the mound for the Crackers and pitched good ball. Memphis did not have a look in until he slightly weakened in the latter part of the fifth when the Turtles got three hits and it looked for a while as if the Crackers would again be swamped, but the old boy pulled himself together and let in only one run. The team backed Musser up in superb style, only two errors being made. The team left last night for New Orleans, where they will play a three-game series with the Pelicans.

Motor Track Not Finished

The motordrome floor was not finished Thursday afternoon as was expected, but it will be done by Saturday afternoon and the local riders will have the chance of seeing some real classy riding when the professionals start in to practice on the track Sunday afternoon. Harry Glenn will be the first man to ride the track and then the professionals will be turned aloose on the bowl.

The track's opening to the public will also be delayed and will not open on May 23 as was expected. Several local and professional riders will compete in the hill climb today. The exact opening of the track will be announced some time the early part of next wek.

Gordon Wins Close Battle

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 16.—Gordon won over Stone Mountain here Thursday by the score of 4 to 2. McCord pitched the best game seen on Summers field this season, allowing only three hits and fanning nine. Vonderoe also pitched a great game, fanning nine and allowing six hits, but Gordon's hits came at opportune moments.

The features of the game were Adams' home run and the all round work of Bankston for Gordon, and the fielding of Norton and Monahan for Stone Mountain.

Score: R. H. E.

CHANCE DAY BIG EVENT

CHICAGO, May 16.—President Charles A. Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox, and a party of friends went on a still hunt last night for ticket brokers, said to be selling tickets to Saturday's game between the Chicago and New York American League clubs. The day is to be celebrated as Frank Chance day, and friends of the former Chicago National league leader had planned to welcome him to the American league park.

At the request of Comiskey, a newspaper man telephoned a ticket broker i na downtown hotel and learned he could get as many as fifty $7 seats before the game. Other prices were quoted down to $3.

Senoia Is Downed

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 16.—The Sixth district A. & M. school defeated Senoia here in a fast game by the score of 7 to 5. The features of the game were the pitching of Heard and Bryant for the A. & M. school. The same teams tie up tomorrow in a double-header on Summers field

THE BUSH-LEAGUE ANSWERS.

I give them up and I watch them go,
But never a tear I shed for them;
I give them up to the Rolling Show

My stalwart sons—my greatest ones—
Rip, waiting, I watch the track again;
Until one day they look my way
And then—I gather them back again.

The Pirates," according to a Pittsburg exchange, "will soon get started again." Quite true. Prof. Newton discovered some time ago that the law of gravity prevents one from toppling off into unbounded space.

Colonel C. Webb Murphy has been badly yanked of late by "conflicting emotions." He has been undecided whether he should stick with the Cubs or hustle back to Chicago to help welcome Frank Chance back among his people. When the recent Yank spurt began Mr. Murphy developed such a frenzy of joy that he came near choking to death on four separate and distinct occasions. It must be a buoyant feeling, at that, to see an old side-kick emerge from the rut and start going again.

O TEMPORA AND SUCH.

The spectacle of the Dodgers up around the top with the Pirates down around the foot—of the Champion Red Sox struggling deep in the second division as the Braves continue to emit noises like a regular ball club—has long since steered us off this season's dope.

Later on we may kick in with a faint, half-hearted prophecy, but now we can only wail with the ancient bard—

'Twas ever thus since a beginner
I've seen my fondest dope decay;
I never tried to pick a winner
But that it hit the chutes next day.

Us experts trail a ragged banner
Outlined against a brooding sky;
We start in with a lordly manner—
And wind up with an alibi.

As to how one can account for these startling reversals we haven't the slightest inkling.

If any one can explain for us how the White Sox started back in 1906 from seventh place and finished with a world's championship—

How the Senators emerged last season from seventh place and headed off the Athletics—two-times conquerers of the universe—

How, in fact, three or fifteen hundred other bizarre events in this national hurly-burly took place upon short notice—

Yielding us this information, we may be coaxed into explaining just what assails the Pirates and Red Sox, and just why Brooklyn is now one, two with about the same ball club which finished seventh last year.

As we remarked up above, we may be coaxed into some sort of an explanation—and then again we may not.

There is evidently a decided change brooding all along the line. The old days are passing. In addition to the present Standing of the clubs it has been a week now since we have lamped "crucial series" or "couldn't hit him when hits meant runs." The ancient reverence for tradition about to fade out and leave us flat?

Pittsburg had the greatest pitching staff ever mobilized up to April 10. Clarke had seven then poised and ready to stand the league upon its beam's end. By May 10 he was out looking for one able to win once a week. Outside of that, etc.

J. Evers has been in the big show for ten years. The same J. Evers is a smart, brainy athlete. Which leads us to this query: How long does it take a smart, brainy athlete to discover what an average boob can pick up in fifteen minutes—viz. that an umpire has yet to lose his first decision after some forty years of oratory and discussion?

It took Frank Chance some few afternoons to discover his surroundings. At the end of which period opposing teams no longer began to hail the arrival of his ball club with huzzas of delight, to say nothing of three cheers.

AD MEN HAVE BALL PARK

Wednesday is Ad Men's day at the Ponce de Leon ball yard and the Atlanta and Memphis clubs are the contenders for the game. The ball park will be turned over to the local advertising bunch and you can depend upon them having a big affair.

On the opening day of the 1912 season the Ad club did more than its share in enabling Atlanta to win the attendance trophy and in appreciation of their work on this date the directors of the Atlanta club have turned over the park to them in the game on Wednesday. All know they are entitled to something for their great work in the opening game and every loyal fan should turn out and make May 21 a big day.

The proceeds from the game will go towards sending the local club to the national convention in Baltimore next month. In keeping with past conventions the local club wants to have a big attendance on hand and every true Atlantan will surely turn out and help in the good cause. Remember the date and the cause is a good one.

English Team Here

NEW YORK, May 16.—The English polo team that is to meet the American players for the international trophy at Meadow Brook, Long Island, in June, arrived Wednesday evening on the steamer Oceanic. Its members are Captain R. C. Ritson, Leslie St. George Cheape, A. Noel Edwards and Vivian Lockett. They were met at Quarantine by friends.

LOOKOUT HURLERS GOOD; BETTER BATTERS NEEDED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 16.—The Lookouts in spite of the inauspicious way in which they began the season must nevertheless be given credit for shattering three perfect pitching records besides breaking the winning streak of the Gulls of eleven straight victories after three other clubs which lead her in the percentage column had failed. The three hurlers from whose lost column the gladsome zero was forced by the locals were Beck, of the Vols; E. Brown, of the Dobbers, and Hogg, of the Gulls.

Beck went down before Sommes, 3 and 2, on Saturday, May 3, after the youngster had taken five straight. On Sunday, May 4, E. Brown was defeated by Forrest More, 5 and 4, after five straight. Hogg was defeated by Sommers, 1 to 0, last Sunday, after six straight wins.

This Sommers, it will be seen, is proving a regular iconoclast so far as fans idols are concerned and has, by the way, annexed five and lost but one himself.

In the opinion of Elberfeld "Rudy" will be the leading hurler of the league this season. He is showing grand form, having plenty of stuff with perfect control, and furthermore is proving a perfect glutton for work. No less an authority than "Gabby" Street goes on record as stating that he is unable to discover why Sommers did not remain in the big show.

With Covaleskie going in his real 1910 form Elberfeld is supplied with two southpaws that are the equal of any duo in the league and this is an advantage this year that can hardly be appraised in figures. Elberfeld considers portsiders more valuable this year than they have been in the past three. The nucleus of the offensive strength of the majority of the clubs lies in portside hitters.

According to present plans, Jimmy Dygert is to be used mainly as a relief pitcher for the present. The Kid has great respect for the veteran's noodle. Jimmy is expected to hold his own over the entire route as soon as the real hot weather arrives.

Joe Evers Is Unconditionally Released

NEW YORK, May 16.—Manager McGraw, of the New York National league team, today unconditionally released Joe Evers, brother of Manager Evers, of the Chicago National league club. Joe Evers was taken south on the Giants' spring training trip at his brother's recommendation. He got into one league game as a pinch runner after returning to New York.

HIT HURLERS FROM MOUND

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 16.—Valdosta took the first game of the series from Brunswick Thursday afternoon. Score, 12 to 7.

In the first inning Brunswick knocked Wood out of the box. Tillman succeeded him and pitched a fine game, giving up five hits in eight innings. Valdosta retaliated in the same inning by driving Slocum from the box.

Joerg Makes Mark At Gun Tourney

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—In a grimly contested match with a high wind sweeping the gun club grounds, F. T. Joerg, of Columbus, Ga., captured the southern handicap of the Interstate association shoot Thursday afternoon by a score of 93 targets. He missed five of his last traps. Other good scores were made: Vassa Cate, of Brunswick, Ga., and W. T. Lasile, of Tuskegee, winners of former handicaps, each scored 90 targets, while J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, winner of the preliminary handicap yesterday scored 91.

Of the professionals, R. L. Burns, of Indiana, gathered a clean score, but several marks of 98 and 99 were made. Two Montgomery professionals broke 95 targets each. After the ending of the shoot, the Capital City Gun club presented the officials of the tournament, Messrs. Squires, Shaner and Tinance, with handsome gold-headed umbrellas.

Jasper Team Wins Over Ball Ground

JASPER, Ga. May 16.—In the most exciting game of the season, the Jasper team won from Ball Ground by a score of 7 to 5. This was especially pleasing to the Jasper fans, as Ball Ground had not lost a game this year, and it is conceded by all that she has the best club on the L. & N. Hill Little, who pitched for Jasper, pitched the best game seen by local fans in many a day, holding the hard hitters of Ball Ground safe, especially in the pinches. The hitting of Wood and D. Little for Jasper, and the lightning fielding of Simmons and Tarpeley, for Jasper, were the features.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Importance of Green Food in the Successful Keeping of Poultry

POSSIBLY there is no one feature connected with the profitable keeping of poultry that is of so much importance as an unlimited supply of green food. Not only does this apply to the old fowls and the results obtained from them, but it is of far more importance in the rearing and future usefulness of young chicks. There is no doubt in my mind but that the future usefulness of a young bird or a young animal depends largely on the way that it has been fed and raised just as much as does the breeding behind it. Regardless of what kind of parents they are from and the wonderful records their parents have made it is utterly imposible to get results from a young animal or fowl after they are grown unless they have been properly raised and properly fed while they are maturing a frame and constitution to be used in after years to convert food into marketable products. In other words, chickens that have been raised on a free grass range where they have had an abundance of tender, bulky, green roughage such as can be had on a grass range of alfalfa, clover, blue grass or even Bermuda grass. Chickens that have a range where these materials are supplied in abundance and can be had at all times will convert this feed into a splendid frame and have a constitution and system that will enable them to be useful in their future.

A chicken that has been raised in this way has a natural constitution developed according to nature. They will live much longer and will be capable of profitably converting food up until four or five years old much better than one that has been raised in confinement and fed only rich, highly concentrated food. I have seen this tried out thoroughly. Several years ago I knew of a bunch of Plymouth Rock hens that had been raised exclusively on an alfalfa patch. Of course they had grain food in addition to this free range on the alfalfa. After this flock of hens wer grown they were useful, and even in their third year two of these hens produced over two hundred eggs each, and through the first two years of their lives I am confident neither of these hens produced much less than two hundred and twenty-five eggs each for the entire flock of nine. They were not only large and splendid frame birds, but had developed a constitution that made them capable of consuming a large amount of food. They were great eaters and they had a constitution to convert this food into eggs. A large number of other chickens were raised from the same parents that these birds were raised from, but under different management while growing, and I am confident the nine that had been raised on the free range laid fully twice as many eggs at the end of three years as any of the best of the others.

This convinced me thoroughly that this is the proper way to raise young chickens if you expect future results from them. No man can dispute that when he has a hen that will lay two hundred eggs per year that there is anything he can invest in that will pay him a handsomer per cent of profit than hens of this class, even though he sold his eggs all for commercial purposes. And, when we know these things are facts it is far better for any one buying poultry, either to breed from or for eggs, to know something about the way they have been raised and their ability to convert food into eggs after their have been matured.

I am confident that the wonderful results now being obtained by the pen of English Leghorns in the National Egg Laying Contest can be traced fully as much to the way these chickens have been raised as the breeding behind them, and when their history is given I am confident they were raised in a free green grass range or had plenty green food feed in unlimited quantities.

Yours very truly,

Lorring Brown

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Troy, Ala.—I have been reading your interesting messages to the poultry keepers through The Journal for some time and each and every one of your talks are valuable to any one connected with poultry farms.

For some time I have been expecting you to answer for somebody a question as to what would be the best crop to plant for chickens, and inasmuch as no one has asked I would be very glad to have you advise me. I have several hundred chickens and intend raising every particle of their feed another year.

Thanking you in advance for your kindness in answering my question, I am E. T.

ANSWER.

The most profitable and best crop that you can possibly raise to feed your chickens with is alfalfa. More tons per acre of this can be grown than anything else and it is the best feed that you can possibly grow. Next to this corn, sorghum seed, oat and wheat are the easiest and most suited crops to our section. By grinding 60 per cent alfalfa, 15 per cent corn, 15 per cent oats, 5 per cent scaps and 5 per cent shorts, this will give you the best chicken feed that you can possibly get. It can be grown cheaply and when people who raise chickens learn to grow this feed for them they can produce chickens and eggs both at a profit.

QUESTION.

Taylorville, Ga. Will you please give me a remedy for my turkey gobbler? He is two years old, has fallen off until he is poor as can be and doesn't seem to have any craw at all. I can't find it after feeding him a handful of corn. My mother lost one last year this same way. He had the disease three months or more before he died. This one of mine eats hearty, but sits around on the ground and never gobbles. Please give me some remedy if you can. He is of the bronze stock and did weigh thirty-five pounds. Write me or either answer in the Daily Journal.

MRS. J. D.

ANSWER.

A large lump of vaseline given twice a day to your turkey and fed corn meal dough which should have some lard mixed with it, and give in the drinking water some copperas. If anything will cure him this will. If there are any lice on him dust him good with insect powder and get them off.

QUESTION.

Princeton, Fla.—Will you please tell me what to do for my chickens? They are completely covered with an insect which acts like a chigger flea. It burrows into the skin and makes sores. Can you tell me what it is?

Where can I get the Bee Dee Dip? I have been greatly benefited by your writings. Do you publish a book on the diseases and care of youltry?

Thanking you for information, I am MRS. D. E. S.

ANSWER.

The fleas that you refer to are what is known as Texas fleas or chiggers. Salty grease of any kind will kill them. Salty water will also kill them.

You can get the Bee Dee Dip of any drug store. If not you can get it of the Bee Dee Stock Medicine company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

I do not publish book on the disease and care of poultry, but you can get Roberson's work on poultry for $2.50 of the Southern Fancier-Farmer, Atlanta, Ga.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

TERMINAL DISTRICT

ONE of the best opportunities in Atlanta real estate today is in the large section lying in between the Southern and A., B. & A. railroad. This section is about four blocks wide and it extends from Magnolia street out as far as Bellwood avenue.

IN THIS QUARTER you can buy good sized pieces of land, improved with renting houses, property that yields a fair income and has speculative possibilities.

AS AN ILLUSTRATION, we can sell the southeast corner of Magnolia and Mangum streets, fronting 198 feet on Mangum street, for $7,500. This lot contains six buildings, five residences, and a store, bringing in $60 a month. It is one of those good corners that in time will be necessary in assembling a block of land, and will bring a fancy price.

ON SIMPSON STREET we can sell an entire block of frontage for $5,000. It lies in between Davis and Edwards streets, fronting 214 feet on Simpson street and extending back 130 feet. All three streets are paved and have all improvements down. This is the block with the old stone house on it.

HERE is a choice little factory site bordering directly on A., B. & A. railroad; the southwest corner of Fox and Wilson streets. It fronts 220 feet on the railroad and has three renting homes. Price $2,500.

WEST SIDE values are low in comparison with other sections, and they are sure to go up in the process of equalization. All forward-looking men should lay in a few west side investments for future use.

SUTHERLAND TERRACE

Found Its Inspiration in The Quaint Country Districts of Our Southland.

THE VICINITY is admirably suited to any architecture, whether it be for the large and rambling country house or smaller bungalow. The rolling ground, under a canopy of splendid old trees, provides a variety of interesting sites. If we have nothing that suits you, our architects will draw plans subject to your approval.

SUTHERLAND schools have the same curriculum as the schools in Atlanta and a transfer need not affect the student in any way.

ON HOWARD street we have the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, with the Baptist church across the way—while the ivy covered Episcopal church nestles in its dress of green at the head of the street.

$5,250

WE HAVE an exceptionally well built house on lot 60 feet front by 150 feet deep, on Gordon avenue, modern in every respect, which we can recommend as a real bargain. If you are in the market for a home it should pay you to look this over before buying.

$1,500

ON SUTHERLAND DRIVE, which is the choicest part of Sutherland Terrace, we have a lot 90x154 feet on one side and 188 feet on the other, which we can offer for $1,500. This is a low figure, and if you want a bargain it should interest you.

INJUNCTION FILED ON PASSENGER RATE ORDER

L. & N. Railroad Would Restrain Commission From Enforcing 2 1-2 Cent Rate

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—Application for a temporary injunction restraining the state railroad commission from enforcing its two and one-half-cent passenger rate order was filed with Federal Judge W. I. Grubb at Huntsville Thursday by the attorneys for the Louisville and Nashville railroad, according to word received by Attorney General Robert C. Brickell.

This step on the part of the railroad company came in the shape of a supplemental bill filed in which the federal judge is asked to enjoin the railroad commission from putting into effect on May 26, which it has ordered, the Louisville and Nashville to establish a two and one-half-cent passenger rate on its lines in Alabama.

Attorney General Brickell left last night for Huntsville, and will be present today at the hearing. The attorneys for the Louisville and Nashville are already in Huntsville. Judge Grubb is holding his usual term of court at Huntsville and will remain there the remainder of this week.

It was the plan of the railroad company to file its petition for an injunction with Federal Judge Thomas G. Jones, of this city, according to announcements made in Birmingham, but because of the illness of Judge Jones the matter was carried before Judge Grubb.

If the temporary restraining order is granted by Judge Grubb, it will be necessary for him to call into conference two other federal judges before the injunction is made permanent. The other two judges who will be called for counsel may be Judge Shelby, of Tennessee, and Judge Newman, of Georgia. Judge Pardee has also been mentioned in this connection. Judge Shelby is a member of the federal court of appeals, while the other judges preside over district federal courts of Georgia.

The general opinion prevailed at the capitol Thursday that Federal Judge Grubb will refuse to grant the temporary order. In this event it is probable that the railroad will carry the matter to the federal court of appeals or the United States supreme court.

Murderer of McGill Must Serve Life Term

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—Sentence of life imprisonment imposed upon Napoleon Jones, a negro, by the Tuscaloosa county court for the murder of A. McGill, was affirmed by the supreme court Thursday in a decision handed down Thursday. McGill was a special agent of the Mobile and Ohio railroad and was former chief of police of Tuscaloosa. He was struck on the head with a bottle while in the yards of the Mobile and Ohio train in January.

Jones was arrested and later made a confession in which he implicated Captain Jack Smith, of Montgomery, a conductor on the Mobile and Ohio railroad. Jones was tried in the Tuscaloosa court and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Captain Smith was then arrested and carried to Tuscaloosa and was later released. He was rearrested last week and taken to Carrollton, Pickens county. He is now at liberty under $5,000 bond.

Captain Smith was in charge of the train the night Mr. McGill was killed. Jones was a porter on the train.

Life Sentence Affirmed

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 16.—The supreme court Tuesday affirmed the life sentence imposed by the Elmore circuit court on Freeman Long, convicted of killing John Berry. A twenty-five-year sentence placed on Dock Bigham by the Tuscaloosa county court was also affirmed by the supreme body. Bigham was convicted of killing Soonie Pruitt.

TILLMAN FAVORS SEGREGATION OF RACES UNDER THE CIVIL SERVICE

South Carolina Senator Deplores Fact That White Women and Men Are in Some Instances Superintended Over by Negroes

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—"Why are there so many more negroes in the civil service than whites from the south?"

The question was asked Senator Tillman. The venerable South Carolinian answered with characteristic frankness:

"I think it is due to the unwillingness of the white men and women of the south to go to school, as it were, alongside of negroes. They are not in love much with the equality implied, and not only that, but with the process of the coming officials than ever. In other words, they do not wish to be, even in appearance, on a level with negroes. They, therefore, neglect to take the examinations and get on the eligible list."

The interview with Senator Tillman was inspired by the recent disclosure that there are 12,000 negroes in the government service, protected by the civil service regulations. As shown in these dispatches, these negroes draw over $12,000,000 a year in salaries.

VIEWS ELABORATED.

Senator Tillman elaborated his views on the civil service regulation, and said:

"The eligible list of the civil service is a humbug, of course, as we all know, because the certification of the three names at the top from which the appointing officer must choose, and failing to find the proper material for the clerk in the first three, can then call for another certification, makes it possible for the Republican who is in charge of the bureau or department to find the kind of man or woman he is looking for, and if he is a negro lover, as many Republicans are, it will be a negro in the bunch, reasonably bright, the negro is usually selected for the appointment. At least, that is my interpretation. I may be mistaken, but the number of negroes in the government service would indicate that some such system as this has been in vogue and is responsible for the disparity in the number of white clerks as compared with the others.

"I have not the statistics to show the relative racial ratio, but from a general knowledge of conditions, I am inclined to believe that the railway mail service, for instance, considering the relative population to be served, there must be three to one of negroes who are qualified according to the civil service ideas and regulations."

"Do you think this healthy for the negro race?" the senator was asked.

"I do not, because it increases the antagonism of the white race for the negro and will result possibly in the negro's being completely shut out of the government service," replied Senator Tillman.

FAVORS SEGREGATION.

"Do you think this segregation of the races in the government service would do any good?" he was asked.

"I would heartily favor segregation in the service, if it were practicable," answered the senator. "I certainly would never consent, if I were the head of a bureau, to having white girls or white women work side by side with negroes. It is an abominable thing to have such a condition exist. And to have white women superintended by negroes is unspeakable!"

"Do you believe it possible that the smallness of salaries in the government service has anything to do with the absence of white people from it?"

"Judging by the eagerness with which white men and women are seeking places and willing to get on them jobs, the size of the salary has nothing to do with it," declared the South Carolinian.

Senator Tillman was asked as to what remedy he had to suggest. He said:

"The leaven is at work now in the north, and I find public opinion and sentiment very much changed since I first went to the senate, as I have already told Mr. Tillman."

"It is your idea, then, that the education of the people in the north will ultimately solve this problem?" was suggested.

"Education is hardly the word for it," said Mr. Tillman. "It is a fuller knowledge of the qualities of the negro race. It is a fuller and better knowledge of the great ends a man of that race which is necessary, and only intimate association with the negroes can give this to anyone.

CASTE FEELING IN CALIFORNIA.

"We have an illustration of racial and caste feeling in California right now which shows more clearly than anything else I can see just what I mean. The Japanese are outworking and underliving the white men out there, and that is the root of all the trouble. Then, too, I imagine very few white men would like to sleep with a Chinaman, though the Chinese are reported by travelers to be the higher type of men of the two, they lacking a willingness to fight which the Japanese possess in an eminent degree because of their religious training.

"Caste feeling is at the bottom of it all, and the Yankees will some day learn more about it than they now know. The more negroes we can induce to go among the northern people, the sooner this problem will be solved, for close contact always gives fuller insight. The trouble with the Yankees has been that they have been theorizing on the square of the distance and sentimentality has governed them entirely."

"If President Wilson and the cabinet officers under him use the proper corrective—and I think there will be no revolutionary change to the drastic or revolutionary—I should think in three or four years we would have a very radical change in conditions in Washington."

NO GRADUATING CLASS AT DALTON'S HIGH SCHOOL

Pupils Were Ready for Commencement When the Blow Fell

DALTON, Ga., May 16.—The pupils of the tenth grade of the public high school suffered the severest disappointment yesterday when the board of education made the announcement that there would be no graduating class this year, because of the decision to establish an eleventh grade next year.

It proved nothing less than a tragedy for the young pupils who had made every arrangement for the graduation exercises, the class prophecy, history, poem, salutatory, valedictory, etc., having been prepared and invitations for the closing exercises had been ordered. The worst feature however, was the fact that all of the young ladies had gone to the expense of having their beautiful dresses made especially for the occasion.

Several have stated that they can't attend school next year, and don't want to be deprived of their diplomas. It may be that the board of education will give certificates to those who want them, or those who have finished the tenth grade work. The board regrets the occurrence no less than the pupils but feels that the change is an important one.

Tom Tankersley, larceny, four years; Andrew Summey, assault and battery, eleven months and fine $100; Jim Poindexter and John Townsend, burglary, one year.

Judge A. W. Fite, Solicitor General S. P. Maddox and others will leave after court adjourns, for Jack river, for a ten days' camping trip.

Parrish, state school work, and State School Superintendent Brittain addressed the teachers on the need of local taxation for the better support of Catoosa county schools.

GENERAL STRIKE MAY BE DECLARED IN PATERSON

(By Associated Press.)

PATERSON, N. J., May 16.—All power plants in Paterson are under guard today in view of threats of a general strike made by speakers yesterday at a meeting of striking silk mill workers called to protest against the conviction of Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Workers of the World leader, found guilty of inciting riot.

Ten thousand strikers and sympathizers at the protest meeting cheered madly when Adolph Lessig, one of the strike leaders, called on them to "tie up every garage and street car line in the city and put all the lights for a couple of nights."

Quinlan predicted that "Big Bill" Haywood, Lessig, Carlo Tresca and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn would also be convicted, as he was, and Haywood advised a boycott of the newspapers by "jerrying police." He advertised in newspapers which have advertised in favor of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Haywood said there were those "ready to take his place if he went to prison."

"We are out for the eight-hour work day," he said, "and we are going to get it, and no court in New Jersey can declare our law unconstitutional," said Haywood. "Yes, I tell you, we are going to get eight hours this year, and next year we will strike and demand six hours as a work day, and we will get it."

Macon Police Raid Alleged "Blind Tiger"

MACON, Ga., May 16.—Following a story told by two negroes that they purchased whisky in the saloon of P. J. Cronin, at the corner of Broadway and Murry's alley, chief of police purchase they were led. Chief of Police Chapman, Lieutenant Davis and two officers made an immediate raid on the place, but not the slightest evidence of whisky could be found.

Every cabinet in the bar counter from beginning to end was thoroughly searched, but no whisky was in evidence. The officers made mention after the raid that a "tip" had been given the bartender and that all the whisky in the place had been hidden before the police arrived. Cronin denied ever having whisky in his saloon. The two negroes were fined $30 each after the officers reported to the recorder that the raid was unsuccessful.

amendment to writing. Coleman said he already had it in writing. Then it was referred to the order of business committee, of which Rev. O. L. Hailey, of Corsicana, Tex., is chairman.

When news of the amendment was tawen to the Woman's Missionary union, auxiliary to the convention, there was manifest enthusiasm. Rev. C. H. Rust, of Rochester, N. Y., fraternal delegate from the Northern Baptist convention, today expressed to the Southern church the esteem of his organization and presented a large folral key which, he said, was the key to the love of the Northern Baptists.

The convention broke out in enthusiastic demonstration.

Walter Dunson, of Atlanta, treasurer, of the home missionary board, resigned after nineteen years of service because of the pressure of private business. Rev. L. B. Warren, of Atlanta, reported on the million-dollar fund which is being raised for the support of poor churches in the south. He said the more than a fourth of the amount had been raised and that the remainder would be subscribed within a reasonable time.

The Southern Baptist convention began considering the Laymen's Missionary Movement at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and did not conclude it until 4 o'clock. Just a few minutes before the report was adopted a telegram was received from Baltimore announcing that J. Harry Tyler, the head of the movement, had died at 3 o'clock. He had been in declining health for several months. Special prayer was made for his family, an da telegram of sympathy was ordered sent to his family.

The evening session was spent in considering the Judson memorial movement. This is a movement projected last year to raise one million and a quarter dollars to build churches and school houses on the foreign field. Dr. T. B. Ray, of Richmond, who is in charge of the work, reported that $250,000 had been raised during the year.

Dr. R. T. Bryan, president of the Baptist Theological seminary at Shanghai, said the time was ripe for planting the gospel in China. He told of having been invited last year by the commander in chief of the rebel army to preach every day for a week to his officers and men and how they had applauded his sermons. This was quite a contrast to what it was twenty-one years ago when the mission station was started, and he and his fellow laborers were called "foreign devils" wherever they went.

Two very striking addresses on the Judson movement were made by Dr. John E. White, of Atlanta, and Dr. H. A. Porter, of Louisville, Ky.

The report of the home mission board shows that $369,595 was contributed for the work by the churches in the territory of the convention. The year closed with no debt, but with a balance of $955 in the treasury. In order to accomplish this, $22,000 worth of conditional appropriations had to be cancelled. The report calls attention to the fact that Rev. L. W. Warren has been engaged to enter upon the work of pushing the campaign to raise the million-dollar church building fund.

In the sixty-seven years from 1845 until now this body has received from our people for home missions $7,104,000, has employed missionaries who have baptized 270,000 converts and organized 6,717 churches. Many of the missionaries have been employed in co-operatin with other Baptist bodies, but a large number have been employed by no agency other than our board.

The number of churches, the organization of which has been effected by these missionaries, is more than one-fourth the entire number at present in the southern Baptist convention. If this statement seems strong enough to need corroborative evidence, we call attention that the missionaries of the state mission boards last year organized 290 churches, either alone or in conjunction with the home board, while the net increase of churches in the southern Baptist convention between 1911 and 1912 was only 328. Most of the churches being added to our denomination today are the children of home and state missions.

The last ten years has been characterized by a wonderful development in home mission interest and work on the part of southern Baptists. Approximately as much has been accomplished that can be shown in a tabular statement as was accomplished during the previous fifty-seven years of the history of the board.

The growth of home mission interest has been very marked in the last ten years. The receipts have increased approximately 300 per cent, the baptisms 270 per cent and additions to churches 240 per cent. This same growth is shown in the following charts, the years chosen being 1904, 1909 and 1912.

The report shows that 56 per cent of the churches are unenlisted or are doing nothing for the causes fostered by the convention, and, commenting, on this, says:

"It is distressing in the extreme to have to confess that 57 per cent of the churches in our convention body are practically unenlisted in the constructive work of the body. Though these churches are the homes of many truly saved souls, embracing thousands who are capable of large service, our denominational program has been such that we have failed to enlist for the Master their almost incalculable Baptist resources. As never before our nation is turning its eyes to the necessity of the conservation of our national resources. There is no greater work today that challenges our southern Baptist body than that of the conservation and development of the spiritual potentialities of this large numbter of our Baptist churches. In which so many men and women and boys and girls await only the inspirational touch of the whole spiritual body to fit them to be fellow helpers in the great work of bringing the kingdom of Christ on earth."

During the year the workers of the board have held 205 evangelistic meetings and have brought into the churches by baptism 26,935 people and 22,090 by letter.

In these meetings there have been 1,200 volunteers for the ministry and for mission work. Two hundred and twenty-two churches have been constituted during the year and 418 Sunday schools organized.

In commenting upon the need for the building and loan fund the report says:

In church extension we started behind our fellows, and we have walked where others ran. Today the leaders are almost at the goal, and we are almost where we started.

In the good year 1883 a recommendation was made for the establishment of a building-loan fund. One year earlier such a fund had been founded by Southern Methodists, and six years later a similar movement was inaugurated by the Disciples.

During the years that have passed, each of our conventions has chronicled a renewal of the statement of need and a reaffirmation of the recommendation.

During these same years Southern Methodists have invested $1,650,000 in churches and parsonages. Every alternate Methodist spire is a monument to the building fund.

During these same years, but commencing six years later, the Disciples have invested $1,500,000, and are striving for the $2,000,000 goal in 1925. They have a permanent fund of over $1,000,000 in the treasury, are organizing 200 churches a year, and rejoicing that two out of three call for assistance.

During these same years Southern Baptists have expended $500,000.

What is the result of this inactivity on our part?

Thirty-five hundred Baptist churches in the confines of our convention are homeless in the present and hopeless for the future unless help can be given.

Hundreds of organizations have died and the membership is scattered, or else absorbed by some denomination whose extension fund has aided the local organization in the erection of a fitting hflouse of worship.

WOMAN'S UNION REPORTS.

The executive committee of the Woman's Missionary union made its recommendations today to the convention of that auxiliary of the Southern Baptist convention.

The cogmittee urged that special efforts be made to enlist the young women of the church in the missionary movement, that the missionary contributions for this year be higher than any apportionment made, and higher by 10 per cent t han the contributions of any preceding year.

The Southern Baptist convention today heard reports from missionaries in the home field.

CHURCH IS URGED TO MAKE CRUSADE ON DIVORCE EVIL

in connection with marriage and also to secure such legislation as will make the laws of divorce more strict and more nearly in accordance with the law of God."

OTHER RESOLUTIONS.

Other resolutions proposed by the committees included the following:

"That churches are advised, wherever the way is clear, to united with churches of other denominations, in the communities in which they are located, for the purpose of carrying on co-operative Christian work, and presbyteries and synods are urged to stimulate this work within their bounds."

The Northern assembly opened Friday morning with a thirty-minute devotional service of hymns and prayers.

The new moderator, Dr. John Timothy Stone, constituted the assembly at 9:35 with a brief invocation of the divine blessing.

Rev. R. H. Evans, a missionary from Corisco presbytery, West Africa, was introduced to the assembly. He presented to Moderator Stone a gavel made from ebony and red wood by a native black boy convert to Christianity. He made an unusually interesting talk and was applauded with enthusiasm.

Dr. W. H. Roberts, the stated clerk, in making announcements, was several times interrupted by calls of "Louder!" in the back of the house. The loudest came from a commissioner in the Seattle, Wash., section.

"Shout to us as though we were at home," he requested, and Dr. Roberts, amid laughter, made him a speech in stentorian tones.

A moment later, when Moderator Stone commenced an announcement, and there were more calls of "Louder," he replied "that the noise of the doors made it hard to hear, and he would, therefore, appoint a "bouncer" if the late coming commissioners were not more careful to move quietly.

The reports of special committees were distributed to the assembly, printed in convenient book form.

The foregoing preliminaries being disposed of, the assembly proceeded to the stated order of business, which for Friday consists mainly in considering the special committee reports.

The committee on evangelistic work was the first taken up. Charles L. Huston, Coatesville, Pa., chairman of the committee, called attention to the salient features of the report. These were the policy of the committee, as stated in the report; co-operation with presbyterial committees; the need for earnest pastoral evangelism; vangelistic rank in the colleges; world-wide work; finance, and recommendations.

LAPSE OF MEMBERS.

As a supplement to the report, the committee submitted a resolution providing that the committee be made per*manent, and the members*, named by the medorator, be instructed among other things, especially to call on pastors and elders to check the "appalling loss to the church through the lapse of members," and to press the evangelistic work in Presbyterian colleges. The resolution was adopted.

Following Chairman Huston, there was a seven-minute talk by George A. Mahy, of Philadelphia, field secretary of the committee, giving actual instances to illustrate the methods and results of the committee's work.

Dr. John R. Davies, of Philadelphia, spoke twenty minutes along the same line. He gave an inspiring account of the evangelistic committee's campaign to bring souls to Christ, touching on "the audience, the message and the results" of evangelistic conferences in various parts of the country.

At the close of Dr. Davies' address the moderator halted the procedure for a prayer by Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, specially concerning evangelistic work, and at the close of the prayer the assembly sang verses of "Rescue the Perishing."

Moderator Stone then announced the evangelistic committee for the ensuing year as follows:

COMMITTTEES ANNOUNCED.

Ministers—Rev. John F. Carson, Brooklyn; Rev. E. B. Cobb, Elizabeth, N. J.; Rev. John R. Davies, Philadelphia; Rev. Stephen S. Estey, Topeka, Kan.; Rev. William Hiram Foneken, Philadelphia; Rev. William P. Fulton, Philadelphia; Rev. Murdock McLeod, Tacoma, Wash.; Rev. Henry C. Minton, Trenton, N. J.; Rev. S. S. Palmer, Columbus, Ohio.

Elders—John Willis Baer, Los Angeles; Foster Copeland, Columbus, Ohio; H. Jefferies, Philadelphia; E. A. K. Hackett, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Ralph W. Harbison, Pittsburg; Charles L. Huston, Coatesville, Pa.; Calvin N. Payne, Titusville, Pa.; L. H. DeVerance, New York; Thomas W. Synnott, Wenonah, N. J.

EXECUTIVE COMMISSION.

Next the assembly took up the report of the executive commission, a lengthy document submitted by the retiring moderator, Dr. Mark A. Matthews.

The report proceeded without interruption until Dr. Matthews reached section 9 touching men's societies, with *particular reference to the Presbyte*rian Brotherhood.

This section, after some discussion, was referred to the committee on brotherhoods, on the ground that this is the committee which should properly initiate a report on the subject.

The following sections, from one to eight inclusive, were adopted without discussion: Meetings, members, executive secretary, Chinese students, church erecting, finances of assembly, home missions, legal matters.

The sections on moderator's itineraries and overtures from synods were likewise adopted without discussion.

The section on relief and sustenation and on resolution as to assembly business were adopted.

The section on vacancy and supply was deferred.

The section on young people's societies was referred jointly to the committee on Sunday schools and the publication board.

The sections on budget, official conference of the boards and the executive commission, ond on the report of the joint executive committee were deferred.

A LIVELY DISCUSSION.

The final section on the subject of evangelistic preaching provoked the liveliest discussion of the whole report.

The section read as follows:

"Resolved, That the executive commission recommends to pastors, sessions and churches that an appeal be made following each sermon for an immedi*ate acceptance of Jesus Christ* as the sonner's personal Saviour."

Half a dozen commissioners were on their feet, some wanted the resolution adopted at once—others wanted it referred to the committee on bills and overtures.

Rev. H. J. Cumpsten of Hacerua, N. M., questioned the constitutionality of the resolution.

"Is it constitutional or Presbyterian for this assembly to regulate the form of service in churches?" he demanded.

Moderator Stone explained that the resolution did not instruct, but simply recommended that the appeal be made.

After considerable discussion the resolution was referred to the committee on bills and overtures.

The report of the committee on the Assembly Herald was adopted without discussion.

"Keep Your Bowels Open"—Doctors Estimate 75 Per Cent. of Sickness Due to Torpid Liver.

Some undigested food is left in the stomach daily, which the liver should clear away. A heavy or unusual diet, or a change in water, may cause the liver to leave a few particles to press and clog, and the next day more are left over. So this waste accumulates, clogging stomach and intestines, and causing constipation.

That is not all. If the waste is not eliminated it ferments and generates uric acid, a poison which gets into the blood and through the system.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately flushes the stomach and intestinal tract and washes away every particle of waste and fermentation; it purifies the blood by dissolving what uric acid has accumulated and passing it off in the urine.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is much better than calomel: no danger of salivation, no need of an after-cleansing dose of oil. It acts quickly and mildly; never forces, gripes or nauseates. It effervesces agreeably. Take it before breakfast and in an hour you'll feel splendid.

Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. All druggists should have the genuine JACOBS LIVER SALT. 25c.
